The Semi-Annual Housefurnishing Sale Starts Tomorrow--Lipman, Wolfe & Co.

"Postscript"

The Shopper

—Interesting fashions continue to unfold their charms before us. Models from Paris reflect the mood of that city, colors are gay, fabrics alluring and toilettes ravishing.

—On all sides the charm of novelty and accidental effect confronts us. This promises unabated interest throughout the season in all things fashionable.

Fringe and Fashion

—I find the Trimming Department a happy outlet for my surplus enthusiasm. Here novelty vies with novelty. Reds, yellows, blues, greens and heliotrope independently rub elbows in a riot of color, the whole producing captivating harmony.

—There are yards upon yards of shiny silken fringe—silver fringes and beaded fringes. Here is the exquisitely beaded tassel and the beaded band, all of which proclaim the splendor and daring of the Orient in material and color. Prices, of course, vary as to quality and width. There are beautiful silk fringes for 20c to $3.95 a yard and beaded ones from 35c to $7.50 a yard.

—While I think of it, I must tell you the secret of the crystal and metal tassel. A few seasons past the decided wish of a crisp petticoat announced the presence of stylish femininity. Now it is different. There will be a mysterious click as of metal, an indescribable, miniature din, scarcely perceptible, but nevertheless marking her every move and gesture. And then—look for the beaded tassel, even so, you may catch it right "in the net."

The Thistle Bag

—The Ribbon Counter is offering some exquisite creations in satin and velvet for bags and millinery purposes. Each bolt I looked at seemed handsomer than the preceding one. I was particularly pleased with a raised thistle pattern in velvet on a wide satin foundation, the edges of which are bound by dainty cord. The tinsel note of the season is carried out by a dainty gold thread woven parallel to the cord.

—The flowers are a delight in their pink, blue and lavender hues. They are soft enough and natural enough to swell the proud Scotch lass' heart with joy. I'm sure Mademoiselle's precious head would be quite turned by their beauty.

—This ribbon sells for $2.75 per yard. I couldn't help fancying a thistle bag all made up—even as it dangled from the arm of its fair owner. The dainty gold thread had been taken as the cue for decoration. Dull, almost tarnished Roman gold beads had been used in tasty abundance to form decorative stripes and to accent floral details. The bag hung from long gold cords which boasted two heavy-looking gold bead tassels.

—Her Austrian Hand Bag
—I want to call attention to a couple of the new arrivals in the Leather Goods Department.

—Two wonderful handbags from Austria. One is of fine Russian pin seal mounted on a massive elephant's tusk frame and lined with handsome moire. This bag is designed with such simplicity and economy of line that one's interest in it increases as the eye dwells upon it. This bag is $85.00. —Another bag for $45.00 is of glazed Russian Seal. The wide opening reveals a complete equipment of gold plated toilet requisites.

Smart Hats

—On display tomorrow are many beautiful dress and street hats selling from $8.00 to $12.00.

—It will be a revelation to you to note the exclusive styles, the close resemblance of these hats to French hats selling at double the price—the superb materials used in their modeling.

Untrimmed Hats

—Women tell us that no other store shows the superb assortment of imported French velvet hats as we are displaying. Indeed, we doubt if you will find a single authentic French untrimmed velvet hat outside of this store. $4.95 to $15.00.

Hoods $1.48-$6.95

—New arrivals every day in two-toned, bright finish velour and scratch felt in solid colors and in color combinations embracing every desirable shade.

The Popularity of Taffeta

—One of New York's famous dressmakers sums up "Fashions in Silk" as follows:

—Present indications in the world of fashion point to a continuation of the popularity of sheer and diaphanous fabrics as well as satin-faced goods.

—The demand for these classes of silks is far from being satisfied, and the present vogue will continue for another season.

—Taffetas have been good in Paris and are popular in New York. Chiffon taffetas are rapidly usurping first place in popular favor, for exclusive gowns.

—Tomorrow we exhibit new taffetas in plain and colored stripes. $1.35 and $1.50 Yd.

Reversible

Polo Cloth

—Another shipment of this popular fabric for motor and outing coats increases our assortment vastly. Color combinations in all the desirable Fall shades can now be found in our dress goods section.

—Price $4.00 the yard.

Marabou for Tone

—If you were to walk up Fifth Avenue and note the window displays and exhibitions of that city's exclusive shops you would be struck at once with the elaborate displays of marabou neckwear.

—Not in years has this soft and beautiful trimming enjoyed its present popularity. For tone, for grace and style it ranks above all other neckwear.

—Paris sends us her latest styles in this importation of marabou scarfs and muffs. —In black, brown, natural, white, silver, sky, rose, black with white, natural with white, and other color combinations.

$3.95 to $39.00

—They are today counted as one of the most popular styles adopted by the well-dressed, tailor-made woman.
