KRASNER INDICTED AT FINAL SESSION

Deputy District Attorney Is Quick to Act Following Criticism in Case.

OTHER TRUE BILLS FOUND

Early Dismissal of Charges Against North End Saloonkeeper Resented and Jury Again Holds Defendant for Trial.

Stirred to action by criticism of his conduct in allowing the former indictments against Sam Krasner, North End saloonkeeper and familiarly known as the "administration stool pigeon," to be dismissed without a struggle, Deputy District Attorney Michelet yesterday morning succeeded in getting the witnesses against Krasner before the grand jury. The jury made its final report at noon and included in the indictments found were two true bills against Krasner.

One of the indictments charges the saloonkeeper with placing his wife in a disorderly house, while the jury in the other accuses him of having accepted the earnings of Pauline Kristal. The witnesses examined by the jury were Anna Banks, Pauline Kristal and H. Cohen.

Similar Indictments Quashed. Two exactly similar indictments were found against Krasner by the grand jury which preceded the one dismissed yesterday. J. D. Mann, attorney for Krasner, demurred to the indictments on the ground that they did not contain the name of one of the witnesses before the jury and, without argument, Deputy District Attorney Michelet allowed Presiding Judge Gatens to quash the charges. Later Michelet came before Judge Gatens and, pleading that influence was being brought to bear to prevent the witnesses again appearing before the jury, sought to resurrect the original indictments. Judge Gatens held that this could not be done.

Michelet then succeeded in getting the witnesses to the grand jury room just an hour before the life of the jury expired by law.

Gus Docas was indicted on a statutory charge. Two true bills were found against Thomas Boggess. One charges him with having passed a fictitious check for $100, drawn on the Canadian Bank of Commerce, on J. E. Reynolds, while in the other he is accused of larceny by bailment, the specific complaint being that he wrongfully withheld from J. E. Reynolds an agreement for the sale of land in Union County, Or. This agreement is purported to be worth $100.

M. Reuter, a contractor, was indicted on a charge of allowing men to work on an unrailled scaffold suspended more than 20 feet above the ground. The charge was pressed by members of the Sheet Metal Workers' Union and pictures were introduced as evidence. These photographs showed men working on a scaffold on an apartment-house in course of construction at the corner of Washington and St. Clair streets.

Another true bill charges William Gibson with the larceny of 20 chickens valued at $30. The fowls were the property of Rachael Lewis.

Not true bills were found in the following cases: L. C. Keating and Dan Flood, held from Justice Court for exhibiting pictures of the Weigast-Moran fight. The prosecution was instituted by the Municipal League. The jurors were the guests of Keating & Flood at a special matinee at which the pictures were shown.

E. Furukawa, charged with the theft of scrap iron from M. Barde & Sons.

Girl Falls Washing Windows. Serita Cascoetto, 12 years old, while washing windows at her home at 284 Sheridan street, yesterday afternoon, fell to the ground and sustained bruises and cuts about the face. She was hurried to the Good Samaritan Hospital, where her injuries were pronounced minor. Her father is a laborer.

REVIVALIST ATTRACTS LARGE CROWDS BY FORCEFUL EXHORTATIONS.

C. M. Van Marter, conference evangelist of the Methodist Episcopal Church, is conducting revival services at the Centenary Church, East Ninth and Pine streets. He is a forceful speaker and comments such as "Human Gating Gun," "Better Than Billy Sunday," "From Flow to Pulpit" have been made in connection with his addresses. He is said to have the record of holding more revival meetings than any other evangelist on the Pacific Coast. The meetings are held each evening, except Saturday, and will continue another week at least and longer if the present crowds continue.

2 MAGAZINES JOIN

Sunset and Pacific Monthly to Merge Next Month.

OFFICE IN SAN FRANCISCO

Periodicals Are Combined After Long Deliberation--Northwest to Be Exploited as Usual--Lute Pease Quits Chair.

Following negotiations that have extended over more than a year, an announcement was made yesterday by Fred Lockley, general manager of the Pacific Monthly, that the Pacific Monthly and Sunset will be consolidated and will appear after January 1, 1915, under the joint title, Sunset-The Pacific Monthly.

Many of the large National advertisers, said Mr. Lockley, "do not care to use a magazine having less than 150,000 circulation. Realizing that the position of the Pacific Monthly would be strengthened by consolidation, the Sunset magazine was sounded on the subject and negotiations for consolidation were begun.

The joint magazine will be issued from the Sunset plant in San Francisco. The Sunset has just completed a new building, fully equipped with the latest labor-saving devices that apply to magazine publication. Owing to the excellent equipment of the San Francisco plant and the fact also that the Panama-Pacific Exposition is to be held in that city, the publishers decided to issue the magazine in its consolidated form from that city.

Lockley Kept as Manager. "The interests of the Northwest will, however, be as fully served under the new regime," said Mr. Lockley, "as they have been in the past. Sunset magazine has always paid great attention to the upbuilding of the Northwest, and this policy will be continued, making the Sunset-The Pacific Monthly as much an exponent of Northwestern development as of the development of the other Pacific States."

Mr. Lockley has been retained as manager for more than a year, and his territory will embrace Oregon, Washington, Idaho, Montana, British Columbia, and Alaska. The Pacific Monthly was founded in 1894, the first number appearing in October. Two of the principal contributors were Captain Cleveland Rockwell, of Portland, and David Starr Jordan, president of Stanford University. William Biddle Wells was the first manager of the magazine. Shortly after its founding, two other small magazines published in Portland, the Native Son and Drift, were merged with it. Mrs. Lischen M. Miller, of Eugene, was editor of the Pacific Monthly in its early years.

Lute Pease Retires. Lute Pease has held the editorial reins for about four years, taking up the work about the same time Mr.

Lockley was appointed manager. Mr. Pease said last night that he would not be connected with the magazine under its new management. He will leave in about a month for a winter vacation in California, after which he will return to Portland. Mr. Pease was not prepared to make a definite statement as to his future plans, but said that he intends to remain a resident of this city.

"One of the men who deserves highest credit," said Mr. Pease, "for having contributed to the maintenance of a first-class magazine in Portland is Charles E. Ladd, who has been one of the principal stockholders in the company since a few years after the founding of the Pacific Monthly. He has willingly contributed to its support, asking only of the management that it produce a magazine that should be a credit to the Northwest. To his efforts a great deal of the advertising that the Northwest has received through the Pacific Monthly is due."

The principal stockholders in the Pacific Monthly at present are: C. E. Ladd, president; B. S. Josselyn, secretary; C. H. Carey, Paul Wessinger, Fred Lockley and Lute Pease, directors.

Horse Owners Take Action. Robert Tucker, president of the Portland Horse-Owners' Association, has announced the appointment of the following committee, the first to be appointed since the organization was formed: Executive--Dan Kellner, Retail Grocers' Association; Harvey Beckwith, Well Fargo Express Company; Charles J. THE LOGIC OF TEETH

Everything has its value, its intrinsic value, and its relative value to every other thing. A precious stone may, by virtue of its substance, have an intrinsic value of one thousand dollars. To me its relative value may be five times a thousand dollars, and to the undeveloped mind of infancy, not the value of a pebble. So, a thing must be judged, not only by value of its substance, but according to its relative worth to some other thing.

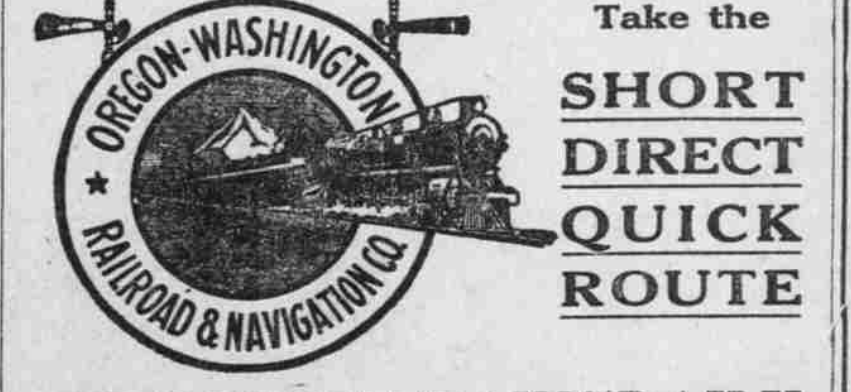

To possess a true discernment of the value and relative value of things, we must have been a seeing eye which can see common sense. Logic is nothing more than the power to appraise everything according to its value. The human eye is a wonderful piece of mechanism, so wonderful in its construction and so powerful in its functions, that we can realize how useful and valuable it is to the human anatomy. And so, with each of the senses. Did you ever hear of an oculist who could give a glass eye which would transmit the power of sight, an artist who could revive the flesh of the deadened ear-drum, a physician who could revive in the paralyzed limb the sense of touch? BUT THERE ARE DENTISTS who can give you teeth to eat with, when Nature's teeth are gone, and indeed it must have been a seeing eye which would invent the first dental. The blind, deaf and dumb man can eat and grow fat, but the TOOTHLESS MAN must meet the inevitable doom of starvation. And, indeed, it would seem that the possibility of TEETH RECONSTRUCTION were an all-powerful law of Nature. A tooth, my kingdom for a tooth! is the cry we hear every day, and we want to teach you "tooth logic," the value of teeth, and their relative value to the infatuated smile of the healthy digestion and the happy disposition. There is no truer logic than this, that to live we must eat, and to eat we must have teeth. Acquire the art of common sense and learn that teeth investment will pay you big dividends. And, don't "one-session teeth." Make your first investment your only investment. You will do this if you buy ALVEOLAR TEETH. Alveolar Teeth--Where Bridgework is Impossible. If only your front teeth are left, say three or four or more, we can replace all those that have been lost on both sides cleared up in perfect Alveolar teeth, whilst bridgework would be impossible, even if you had eight or ten teeth to rely on. If you have only two back teeth on each side, say molars, we can supply teeth that are serviceable, life-like Alveolar teeth. This could not possibly be done by the bridge route, and where bridgework is possible there is no comparison between the two. A very large percentage of our work is taking out bridgework put in by supposedly high-class dentists and replacing it with the beautiful and artistic Alveolar teeth. And, unlike bridgework in any respect, it is practically painless. No boring or cutting into the gums, nothing to be dreaded. Now, then, prices being equal, which would you choose? Curing Pyorrhea (loose teeth), a disease given up by most dentists as incurable, is another of our specialties. We cure it absolutely. It's a beautiful statement to make, but we can do anything that is possible in dentistry, and what we do is always of the very highest class. Our booklets, Alveolar Dentistry, are free. Write for one if you cannot call. We have samples of work to show you at all times and the very best of references, an army of them in this city and state.
