WARDS' CHRISTMAS BEST

Aid Society's Boys and Girls Enjoy Happiest Time on Record.

Children at the Receiving Home of the Boys' and Girls' Ald Society of Oregon enjoyed a better Christmas this year than any Christmas in the history of the society. The reason for this is that outside residents have taken a personal interest in the welfare of the children and in several instances they were taken to private houses and given a good time and returned to the Home. Thanksgiving day a friend of the society went to the institution in the morning and took eight of the children, four boys and four girls, in a taxicab to his home, where they enjoyed a tur-key dinner, after which they were taken to one of the large picture shows in the city. Then they were returned Saturday before Chrisamas a woman living on Multnomah street invited all the children to a party at her residence, and about $6 availed themselves of the invitation. They were admitted free into a moving-picture show on Grand avenue between Burnside and Couch streets, after which they went to the home of the friend, where they were served with hot waffles and cocoa, as much as they desired. Candy, nuts and oranges were distributed. The children arrived home in the early evening. dren arrived home in the early evening.

Writer Discovers Inaccuracy in Historical Treatise.

DALLAS, Or., Dec. 28.—(To the Editor.)—The other day while looking over a recent historical trealise. "The World's Work and Its Makera," edited and compiled in ten large volumes, for school and college use, by four distinguished authors, I ran across the fol-

owing veracious excerpt:

that is intensely Huxleyan if no more— wel IV, page 240. It is probably unimportant as to what the late Professor Huxley's philowhat the late Professor Huxiey's philo-sophical views were, although, to my way of thinking, there are but few of the world's great thinkers who excelled him in sticking to the solid basis of facts, and in avoiding the quagmires of metaphysical speculation; but, it is quite another matter when the intal-lectual integrity of this distinguished actentific thinker is so brutally and un-truthfully assailed in a historical work of large circulation and recognized erudition.

The refutation of this slanderous statement is to be found in the clos-ing remarks of Professor Huxley's preface to his life of Hume, the Apple-ton Company addition. In order to make my refutation complete I shall have to quote at some little length, as follows:

Colewa:

One word, by way of parting sdvice to the rising generation of English readers. If it is your desire to discourse fluently and learnedly about philosophical questions, begin with the Ionians and work steadily through to the latest new speculative treatise. If you have a good memory and a fair knowledge of Greek, Latin, French and German, three or four years spent in this way should enable you to attain your object.

and German, three or four years spent in this way should enable you to attain your object.

If, on the contrary, you are animated by the much rarer desire for real knowledge; if you want to get a clear conception of the deepest problems set before the intellect of man, there is no need, so far as I can see, for you to go beyond the limits of the English tongue. Indeed, if you are pressal for time three English authors will suffice, namely, Berkeley, Hume and Hobbes.

If you will lay your minds alongoide the works of these great writers—not with the view of mersly ascertaining their opinions, still less for the purpose of indolently resting on their authority, but to the end of seeing for yourselves how far what each says has its foundation in right reason—you will have had as much sound philosophical training se is good for any one but an expert. And you will have had the further advantage of becoming familiar with the manner in which three of the greatest masters of the English language have handled that noble instrument of thought.

that noble instrument of thought.

Where can there be found, I would ask, a nobler exponent of Christian thought than Berkeley, and yet Huxley, an agnostic, earnestly recommends to his readers the philosophical writings of this distinguished Christian bishop; but our college-bred historians say that he recommends a materialist and a skeptic only. Bryan Expected to Oppose Candiducy Violently, but Leader of House Is Not Man to Run Away From Conflict.

OREGONIAN NEWS BUREAU, Wash ington, Dec. 39.—The steadily increasing popularity of Representative Underwood, of Alabama, and the frequency with which he is being mentioned as a suitable man for Democratic Presidential nominee in 1912 seems to indicate that Mr. Underwood will appear before the next Termowill appear before the next Democratic National convention in other than a darkhorse role. That Under-wood will be presented to the conven-tion as Alabama's favorite son is no longer open to question and it is more than likely that many other Southern states will rally to his support on the first rollcall.

But of late it has been observed that Underwood is mentioned with great favor by Democrats in New York and New England, and in states to the westward as well, where no favorite sons have been mentioned for the nomination next year. It is not to be questioned that Underwood is a grow-ing man, and one with whom the next Democratic convention will have to

It also is noticeable only Southern man of distinction who is new being discussed as a possible nominee for President and the fact nominee for President and the fact that others have not come out at a time when the South is apparently preparing to demand recognition is taken to mean that Underwood is generally satisfactory to Southern Democrats.

Underwood is likely to be one of the chief centers of interest at the Democratic convention next Summer, particularly if he goes there with the backing of the solid South. Not only will he play an important part as the will be play an important part as the candidate offered by the South, but because of the fact that he will meet the bitter opposition of William J. Bryan, with whom he quarreled publicly at the special session of Congress. Underwood in truly convenient of the derwood is truly representative of the anti-Bryan element in the Democratic party, and will draw Bryan's fire as much and as strong as will Governor Harmon.

That Bryan will have to be reckoned with is not to be doubted, for while he has declared he is not now a candidate for another nomination, few politicians accept this word, and it is politicians accept this word, and it is thought he still has aspirations. But even if he is willing to remain out of the race, he will not keep his hands off the convention. He will want a say, and a big say, in the selection of the nominee. And he will make it his first business to attack Underwood, for Un-derwood's will be the first name pre-sented, Alabama heading the alphabet-ical list of states. ical list of states.

The South is one section of the country that has had its fill of Bryan. That section did not want him nominated four years ago, and it does not want him now. When Bryan was chosen, however, the South did what it regards as its sacred duty-sup-ported the Democratic National ticket, even though it preferred other men for the Presidency. To the average Southern Democrat. Bryan is an impossible candidate, that is to say, the South feels that the Democracy can never win with Bryan at the head of the ticket. Moreover, the South is growing more conservative, and is getting further and further away from Bryan and his radical ideas. Having had enough of Bryan, the South

VIEW OF SKEWES UNDERTAKING CO.'S BUILDING.

Most Modern Undertaking Parlors on the Pacific Coast

A two-story brick building has just been completed at the corner of Third and Clay streets and will be occupied exclusively by the Skewes Undertaking Company. This building was constructed expressly for the undertaking business and has every convenience for the purpose intended. On the first floor there is a large reception hall with a cosy fireplace, two offices, a beautiful chapel with two rooms adjoining for mourners, and in the rear of chapel is the embalming-rooms, constructed upon the most modern and sanitary principles. There is also a large wault room where bodies can be kept any length of time desired. A broad, easy stairway leads from the reception hall to the second floor, where four rooms are used to display a complete stock of caskets, robes, etc. One room on this floor is especially furnished for the convenience of relatives or friends of deceased people who desire to remain constantly with their loved ones until time of interment.

Mr. C. H. Skewes, the President, has long been a resident of Portland, and for ten years was associated with a West Side undertaking firm in the capacity of funeral director. His careful attention to all the details in funerals has contributed largely to his success in the past and the same painstaking care will be exercised in the future.

The parlors are now open for inspection and the public is invited to visit this modern establishment at any time.

During the brief time he has been recognized Democrafte leader, Mr. Underwood has demonstrated his fearlessness, and also has shown his willingness to clash with so popular an idol as the "peerless one." Having clashed once, he will be willing to clashed once, he will be willing to clash again next Summer, even though he knows that such a clash may cost him many votes in the convention. Underwood, however, does not want the nomination bad enough to wear the Bryan yoke in order to get it, he would rather fight for it, and lose, if need he, though he will make a determined fight, once his name is presented to the convention and will fight

Probably Underwood would be the legates of the Harmon strength, in the event it should be shown Harmon could not land the nomiantion, for both Underwood and Harmon are of the conservative element, and both are strongly anti-Bryan in their views. Harmon unquestionably possesses great strength in the North and East, and at strength in the North and East, and at this time must outrank Underwood, but in the South and West Harmon has not developed much strength as yet, and in those sections Underwood is likely to distance him at the outset. Therefore a combination of the Underwood and the Harmon following would give the word and a formidable array of give either man a formidable array of votes, and his support would be ample to prevent the nomination of any other candidate now in the field, the thirds rule still being in vogue in the Democratic convention.

The quintet were left orphans 46 Years ago and separated at that time, Fred J. Tooze at that time being an infant in the cradie. For the first time since that separation, the five brothers met last week at the beautiful residence of Professor F. J. Tooze at Oregon City, where, with the wives and children a magnificent banquet was enjoyed, a banquet that formed a striking contrast to the log-cabin scene of desolation near Battle Creek, Mich., in 1885, when the mother died, leaving these orphan children to practically care for themselves. One brother, Henry Tooze, of Banfield, Mich., was unable to attend.

Of these brothers, Walter L. Tooze became the earliest resident of Oregon, coming here in the Spring of 1877, and for 25 years has been active in the politics of the state. He now resides at Falls City, Polk County, Frank F. Tooze, a prominent farmer of Sherwood, Or., and Charles T. Tooze, an attorney of Oregon City, came to Oregon in the Fall of 1877. David C. Stiles Tooze lives at Banfield, Mich., and is passing the Winter in Oregon, with his wife and daughter. He is staying at Oregon City.
