

CAMERA MEN CATCH GLIMPSSES OF SOME NOTABLE EVENTS

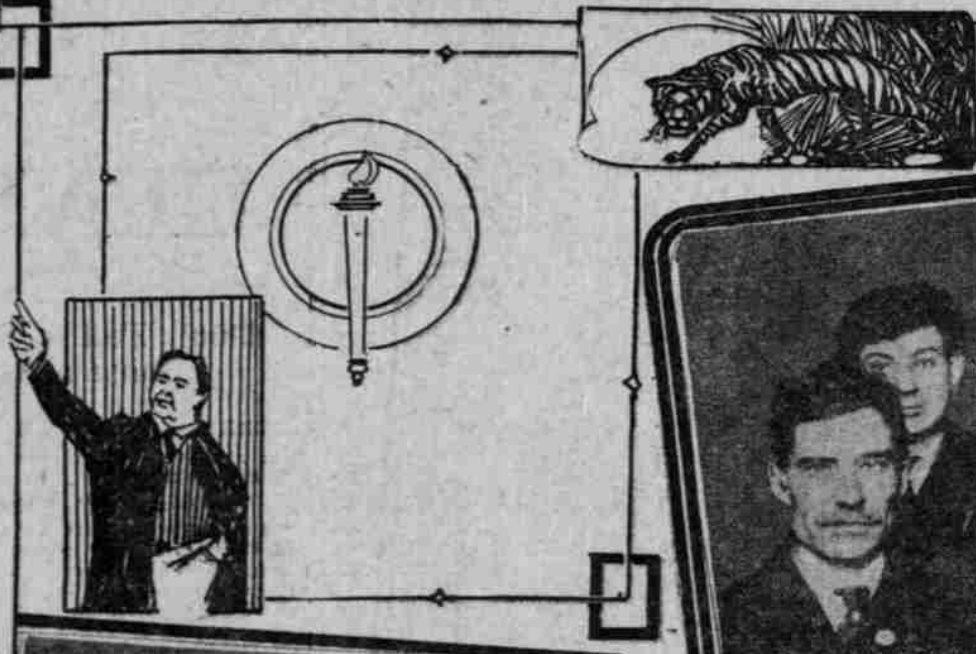

F. Rodman Law
Leaping from Statue of Liberty with Parachute

King George Viewing
Results of Day's Hunt

William D. Haywood
Addressing
Mill Strikers
at Lawrence:

Scene at Hobo Convention in Cincinnati

Col. Goethals and Daughter-in-Law
Arriving in America

Lawrence, Mass. The trouble at Lawrence has been growing more serious. Recently J. G. Ector and his lieutenant, Giovannitti, were arrested on a charge of being implicated in causing the death of Anna Toppan.

King George had great sport hunting big game in India after the Durbar. The king hunted from the back of elephants and himself brought down some of the finest specimens.

Colonel George Goethals, who is at the head of the Panama Canal work, has arrived in the United States for a semi-annual visit. He says the work is in different stages of development at different points, but the whole project is about 70 per cent completed.

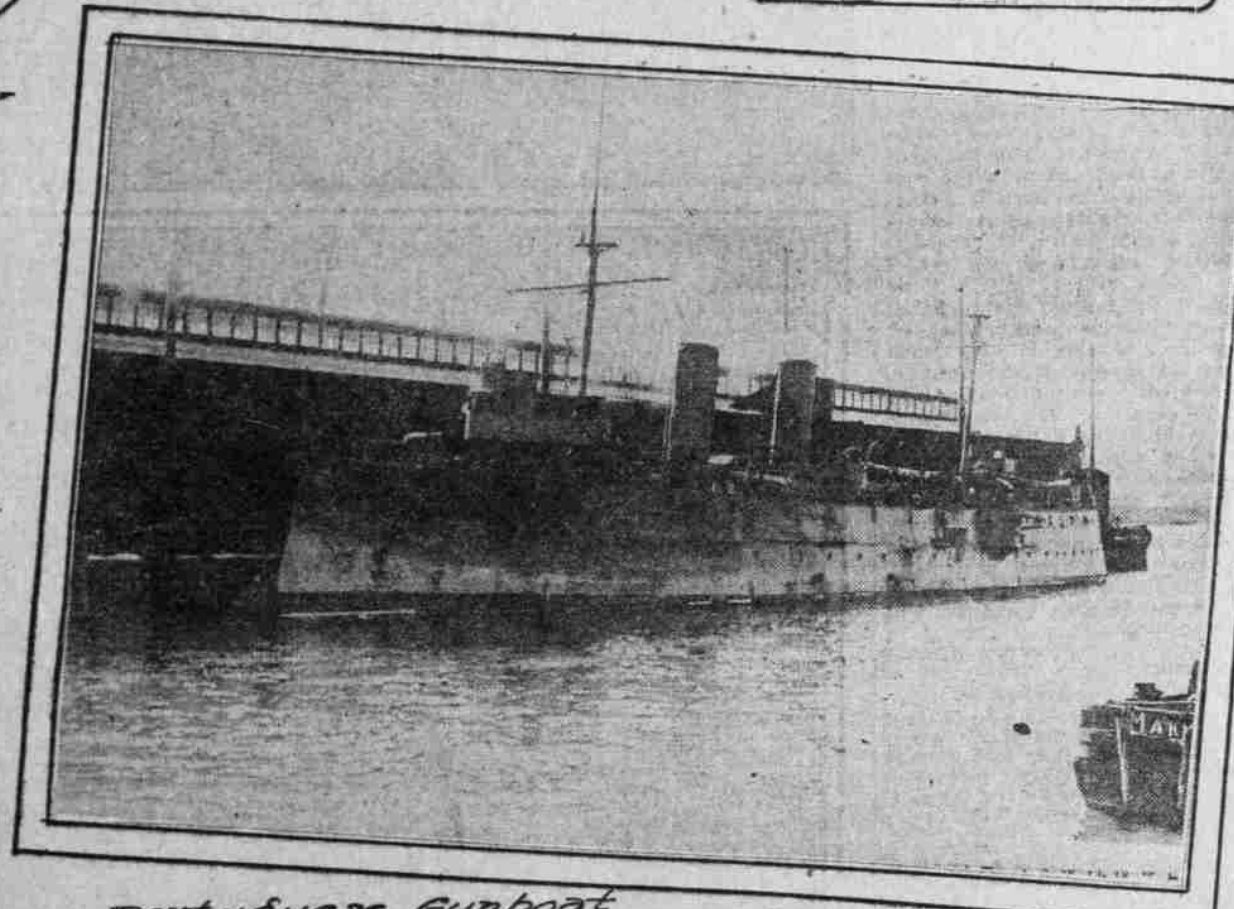

ENGLISH SCHOOLS SATISFY

Peersage Not Inclined to Send Sons to American Academies.

LONDON, Feb. 11.—(Special.)—There is no inclination among the peersage to follow the example of Lord Tankerville, whose son, Lord Ossulston, has been sent to a private school at Boston. The old tradition still clings, even where the mother is American.

So the youthful heirs to titles are back to Eton and Harrow. Their rank avails them little, however, for no titles are used at Eton, where W. W. Astor's two sons, young Anthony Drexel and Marshall Field's two grandsons were educated.

Prince George of Teck, who is now at Eton "fagging" for G. F. Freeman-Thomas, is simply called "Teck" by his school fellows, just as the present Duke of Westminster was known by his subsidiary title of "Belgrave" when at school. In fact a good deal of good-natured fun has been poked at Lord Tankerville for his preference for a trans-Atlantic seminary, and during the last few days the phrase "is he going to Boston?" has been laughingly exchanged by parents when discussing their boys' scholastic careers. Eton and Harrow are just as much

Portuguese Gunboat
Republica at New York

Gunners on Portuguese
Gunboat Republica

NEW YORK, Feb. 11.—(Special.)—Fred K. Law, a hobo stepladder, dropped from the top of the Statue of Liberty in New York harbor yesterday, and, buoyed by a parachute, made a safe landing. Mr. Law was trying out a parachute which is intended for the use of aeronauts, stepladders and others whose occupation is dangerous. The drop was about 113 feet. It was made safely, though Law received a bump as he landed.

His usual hike for the South. But there is uncertainty on the road, and where the "convention" of unwilling workers is held there is always sure to be a handout. So 600 of the never-laborers got to Cincinnati somehow and passed sundry resolutions and elected J. Eds. How their chief. How is known as the "millionaire hobo." In fact he is not even well off; but he has a wealthy mother who was the daughter of the late James B. Eds. and she helps him with food and clothing.

One of Portugal's sea fighters reached New York yesterday. She was the little cruiser Republica. Had no guns been peeping from her ports no one would have suspected that she was

William D. Haywood, ex-president of the Western Federation of Miners, has been addressing the mill strikers at institutions as Covent Garden Opera, and how strongly that is entrenched Oscar Hammerstein has now learned.

London Consumes Much Water.

LONDON, Feb. 17.—(Special.)—London consumed the enormous total of 223,526,884 gallons of water every day last year. This means that each of the seven million-odd persons in the metropolis used 31.57 gallons a day, and that at each house 204.24 gallons were disposed of in the same period. The water delivered by the Metropolitan Water Board is derived from the rivers Thames and Lea, from gravel beds in the Thames Valley, from Chadwell Springs, in the Lea Valley, and from wells in the chalk and green sand formations. The average supply delivered from the Thames during the year was 129,863,411 gallons, from the Lea 52,734,937 gallons, from springs and wells 40,887,485 gallons, and from ponds at Hampton and Highgate for non-domestic purposes 61,671 gallons.

Shakespeare Exhibit Planned.

LONDON, Feb. 17.—(Special.)—Arrangements are in progress for the holding of a Shakespeare exhibition at Earl's Court next summer, and it is hoped that it will help in practical fashion the scheme for the building of a Shakespeare memorial theater. The originator of the scheme is Mrs. George Cornwallis-West, mother of Winston Churchill. A replica of the Globe playhouse is to be built in the Empress Hall at Earl's Court. The village of Stratford-on-Avon, with its streets and houses will be reproduced, as well as Shakespeare's house and Ann Hathaway's cottage. In the secluded Western Garden there will be a Shakespeare club.