Festival Chorus Grows.

The chorus of the rose musical festival has grown so much in numbers that it will be necessary for the members to meet henceforth in the main auditorium of the Taylor-street Methedist Episcopal Church. Dr. Frederick E. Chapman, the director, is handling the choral situation well. The oratorio "Creation" and other selections are being sung each week, and the outlook for a great festival is bright. Tomorrow night at 7:45 o'clock will be the last opportunity for entrance into the chorus. There will be 10 more re-hearsais, which each singer should at-tend. The festival will be given un-der the auspices of the Multnomah Gounty Sunday School Association. morrow night at 7:45 o'clock will be

CO-OPERATIVE STORE IS AIM

Central Albina Citizens Are Investigating Proposition.

A co-operative store may be started tions to the project are received. W. C. Benbow, secretary of the committee appointed by the Mayor to investigate cost of living, will receive the subscriptions of those who will part. In general the plan is to form an incorporated association of at least 100 members, who shall pay $10 each into the city treasury, making a total of $2000. On this amount the coperative store is to be established. The stock of the association is not transferable except by consent of the association. Only one share can be owned by one individual, so that it will not be possible for a combination

Articles are to be sold at market prices and the profits are to be di-vided among the subscribers in provided among the subscribers in proportion to the amount of their purchases. Anybody can trade with the co-operative stores, but only subscribers will receive profits.

The question has been raised as to whether the co-operative store can get the goods for sale, but W. H. Daly gives assurance that there will be no trouble about getting the goods direct from the producer and the manufacturer. The concern will have a manager under bonds. The advantage will be in the dividends or rebates that the shareholders will receive out of the profits of the concern. Success has been schieved by the co-operative stores in Bowider, Col., and other places.

Electric Census of Portland

In order to secure the necessary statistical information regarding electricity in Portland and vicinity, we have engaged a large number of high school boys, carefully chosen and recommended by their principals, to assist our regular force in making a house-to-house canvass of the entire city.

These young gentlemen will visit your homes and places of business, and we hope the result of their efforts will lead to pointing out methods for the improvement of the

It is our aim to give Portland the very best electric service possible, and for that reason a census of the users and present non-users will be of great assistance.

We respectfully solicit your kind cooperation in aiding these young men in their work. Each representative will carry a credential card signed by the Sales Manager of the Company.

TESTIMONY IN COLE CASE RE-SULTS IN INDICTMENT.

Charges Against Fuller and Larfield Due to Their Conflicting Statements.

Indictments charging perjury were returned yesterday by the grand jury against Patrolman Guy E. Fuller and George Larfield, the star witnesses for the state at the trial of E. W. Colo, an ex-sergeant of police, acused of grafting, which resulted in a hung jury. The indictments are based on discrepancies between the statements made by the policemen when a hearing was given Cole December 29, 1911, before the Civil Service Commission and those made at the trial.

At the Civil Service Commission the

At the Civil Service Commission the patrolmen gave their former superior a clean bill of health, deciaring that they had never known him to take money and had not even suspected him of wrongdoing of any kind, their only complaint against him being that he was inclined to be somewhat of a tyrant. At the trial several months later the same two men bared themselves to the public gaze as self-confessed grafters from women of the underworld, swearing that they had collected money and turned it over to Cole. Larfield testified that he had the South End district organized on cole. Larneld testified that he had the South End district organized on a basis of regular weekly contributions and that the "graft" sometimes amounted to as much as $100 to $200 a

The witnesses who appeared against The witnesses who appeared against the two men before the grand jury were Chief of Police Slover. E. W. Cole, J. H. Hitchings. J. F. Wood and D. L. Dufur. Dufur is the stenographer who took the proceedings at the Commission hearings in December, and Wood reported the trial of Cole. Mr. Wood is Circuit Judge Morrow's official reporter. Hitchings appeared as one of the attorneys for Cole at his trial.

The indictments against Fuller and The indictments against Fuller and Larfield came somewhat as a surprise, as it was generally believed that they had been promised immunity in consideration for their testimony against Cole. When on the witness stand they were asked by E. S. J. McAllister, principal attorney for Cole, if there was such an understanding and they denied it. The best that could be got from them were indefinite answers to the them were indefinite answers to the effect that Chief Slover had intimated that "everything would be all right if they came through."

The two policemen have never been suspended, although such action was expected after their self-incriminating statements at the Cole trial. They were drawing pay from the city when the true bills against them were returned. Bench warrants were issued for their arrest yesterday immediately after the true bills against them were returned.

PACKERS BANQUET GOOD

Retiring Secretary Union Meat Company Honored by Friends.

Heads of different departments of the Union Meat Company last night gave a banquet at the Portland Commercial Club complimentary to James C. DOCTOR JOINS LIFESAVERS

Newport Physician Goes to Aid of "Shipwrecked" Fishermen.

NEWPORT, Or., March 36,-(Special.) -Dr. F. M. Carter, Coroner of Lincoln County, has added life-saving to his present role of Coroner and physician, which seems to have met with the approval of everybody except Sea Lion Charlie, Newport's famous sea admiral. When the life-saving crew, accompanied by the launch Beaver, hastened to the rescue of apparently ship-wrecked sailors anchored off Yaquina Bay, the main rescuer on the launch was no other than Dr. Carter. Finding that a little cognac and some gas oline was all that proved acceptable to the supposed shipwrecked fisher-men, halling from Coos Bay, the heroes

On the dock awaiting the return of the rescuers was Sea Lion Charlie; and he was first to spot the blanched countenance of the good doctor, and in a mild tone resembling the whistling buoy in a storm, said:
"You ain't no sailor, Doc. What were you doing out on the ocean?

You've got a whole sack of pills, wasn't that enough? Here, take my flipper and I'll help you ashore. You seem to have a list both starboard and port." And taking the doctor's arm he assisted him ashore.

Mr. Brownell passed me on to her manager, W. H. Leahy, who told me lots of interesting things about his new Tivoli Opera Company and his fine new playhouse in Sau Francisco. Then finally we were headed for the royaf suite.

A diminutive boy in cerise livery stands outside her door, day and night, I believe, and searches people before they may even look at her door. That is what I privately think. But Mr. Leaby was with me, so we walked

Mr. Leady was with me, so we haughtly past.

Quick as the proverbial wink the doors fell to behind us, and a regular jack-in-the-box guard jumped at us 'from the ante-chamber. He did the all-quiet-along-the-Potomac act and Mr. Leahy led the way into Madame's deswing-room.

Flowers in tall vases, flowers in short vases, flowers in pots, in baskets!
Now and then occurred a handsome plece of furniture, mostly divans, like oases in a great desert.

To us here came madame's husband, M. Bazelli, who looks mighty proud of his job. He said madame would be in at once. So we waited: Again the doors parted, and from seven miles away, walking through a vista composed of the rest of the suite, came madame. A maid stood on either side, one holding the portferes back and the other seeing that madame didn't gap at any of her fastenings. "English" Is Limited.

She is perfectly charming-and sh can't talk 10 cents' worth of English! Her smile is warm and friendly, she's roly poly and thoroughly feminine, and reminds one at once of a big doll come to life. She wore a wonderful creation—that's the only word, creation in purple, soft, clinging purplish purple, unrelieved by any other colors. I couldn't for the life of me tell how it was made. In fact, it apparently wasn't. I believe it had just been wrapped and wrapped and wrapped

In spots madame appeared poured into the deep purple. A long, snaky train hid under her chair. Her plump bands were unringed; she were no ornaments save a brooch of pearls. Fifty-seven little, soft, red-bronze red curis snuggled atop her head, and clustered prettly about her face. And to settle a discussion, her eves are brown-golden like the topaz when the sun hits its heart.
