HH opening of the Baker stock company is always of more than ordinary interest to many theaterpers, as this organization has won a listinctive place in amusement matters locally. For 10 years it has played an important part in the history of the city's amusement world, and during all that time has been inactive only a few months now and then, when circumstances such as the lack of an adequate place to play or a dearth of good stock plays, have made such inaction advisable. And at such times there is invariably a large class of playgoers who want stock, dissatisfied.

To t ese, and hundreds of others not quite so one-minded in their pleasure seeking, the reopening of the company today, after nearly a whole season of quiet, is an event of importance. Man-ager Baker says that the reason Portager baser says that the reason rort-land has not had the company so far this season is both because he had no adequate place to present it and also because up until the past few weeks there have been practically no new plays released for stock. But weeks there have been practically no new plays released for stock. But the closing of the road attractions at the Baker and the sudden jarring loose of many recent big New York successes into the stock market now makes it possible to offer a most ideal season, running up into the Summer.

A company has been organized, headed by Willard Mack and Mande Leone, whose photographs were published last week. A few of the other members are shown above, all of whom are entirely new to Portland with the exception of J. Frank Burke, who proved his worth last season during the Roherts-Bergen engagement at the Baker and a few weeks previous to that. Mr. Burke is without doubt one of the most excellent character acturs Baker stock has ever had.

It were idle to waste words to recite the story of "Rebecca," and thereby hope to convey any idea of its subtle appeal. Its atmosphere is so illusive that one must see it to feel its charm.

Manager Baker Announces One of Foremost Comedies for Company.

MRS. WIGGS IS COMING AGAIN

It is now definitely settled that the Baker Stock Company will offer for its second week that great comedy, "Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch." No one expected this play to be seen in stock for several years to some, so great a drawing card has it proved on the road, with promises to continue so prosperous for a long time yet. But by a rare stroke of business Manager Baker was able to secure it, and also by a rare stroke of business Manager Baker was able to secure it, and also by payment of an unusually exorbitant royalty for the week. The story of Mrs. Wiggs, both in book and play form, is well known, or at least has been heard about in nearly every household in the land, and a general idea is held as to what it is all about. There are probably more genuine hearty laughs of the right sort in Mrs. Wiggs than in any other play now on Wiggs than in any other play now on the boards. And there is many a good lesson in the art of living, no matter lesson in the art of living, no matter what your circumstances or surroundings, and getting all that is good and cheerful out of life—a lesson nearly every man, woman and child in this broad land should learn. The story is set in the most unlovely spot imaginable and the characters from the wonderful monument of patience, Mrs. Wings, down, have positively nothing to look forward to and nothing in the present, and yet what wonderful fund of comedy and cheer we find in their lives. No one should miss this opportunity to see this great play.
