RECALL ELECTION MONDAY

Hogquam Will Vote on Ousting of Rev. Harry Ferguson, Mayor. HOQUIAM, Wash., June 1.—(Special.)—This city will hold its first recall election Monday when an effort will be made to oust from office Rev. Harry Ferguson, first commissioner Mayor of Hogquam. Hogquam was the first city of Washington to adopt commission government as provided by the Allen charter law. The clock at present indicates that Mayor Ferguson will be recalled and Chris Knouell elected in his place. The latter is known as the "Good Government League" candidate. This estimate is based on the showing made at the primary two weeks ago when Knouell was nominated. At that time, out of a registration of 2,215 and a total vote of 1,454, he was given 1,190 ballots. For the recall election the issue is drawn clearly on the Industrial Workers of the World question and the maintenance of order during the recent mill workers' strike in this city. Mayor Ferguson is accused of sympathizing with the Industrial Workers of the World to the extent of allowing them full sway and not protecting the interests of the citizens. Mr. Knouell long has been a resident of Hoquiam and was formerly proprietor of a meat market here. He was picked to make the race against Mayor Ferguson at a mass meeting held after the recall petitions had been filed.

RAINIER HIGH SCHOOL GRADUATES FIRST CLASS WITH THREE PUPILS.

GRADUATES OF RAINIER HIGH SCHOOL.

RAINIER, Or., June 1.—(Special.)—The commencement exercises of the Rainier High School were held Tuesday night in the Congregational Church here, and the building was filled to capacity with friends of the graduates. The class members are: Harry Rice, Mae Nadeau and Esther Dawson. The address was delivered by Superintendent L. R. Alderman. This is the first class to be graduated from this school.

noon by Barney McCaugh, a veteran hack driver, when his frightened horses dashed through crowded streets in the business district with the wagon-tongue broken, to be finally stopped by the driver's deft manipulation without an injury.

The hack was returning from a funeral, and had stopped on Alder street at the corner of Fourth, when an auto-truck frightened the horses. They bolted and broke the wagon-tongue. They shot up Alder street with the carriage only held by the tugs. They went at full speed, the driver holding a tightened rein and shouting to the crowds ahead to clear the way.

In front of the Telegram office the equipage dashed through a crowd of baseball fans watching the bulletin boards. The wild hack brushed by an automobile, damaging it somewhat and losing a lamp, but no one was hurt. At Twelfth and Alder streets, with a clear path, McCaugh averted his horses up Twelfth street, and then, with a sudden jerk of the line at the left, threw the horse on the right side to the pavement, bringing the runaway to a stop. Barney McCaugh is 54 years old. A member of the funeral party was still in the hack and took the free ride.

TAP LINES CLASSIFIED

Commission Holds Mere Private Facillities Are Not Entitled to Division of Compensation. WASHINGTON, June 1.—In a supplemental decision of the so-called "tap line" case announced today, the Interstate Commerce Commission holds that 40 of the lines, which it names, perform transportation service for which they are entitled to receive compensation out of the through rates. In some of these cases the commission fixes switching allowance ranging from $1.50 to $2 a car, while in others it fixes a switching allowance ranging from 1 to 2 cents a hundred pounds are established.

Twenty-two tap lines are held to be mere private facilities and not entitled to either switching allowances or divisions of the rates. The commission divides the tap lines into two classes—those which are purely industrial facilities and those which may be considered as common carriers. Of those thus far passed upon, 58-22 today and 36 on April 23 were in the first class and 40 in the second.

BORAH BILL PASSES

House Agrees to Three-Year Homestead Provision.

SPEAKER AFFIXES NAME

Idaho Senator, if Congress Session Lasts Long Enough, Will Call Up Measure Affecting Irrigated Claims.

OREGONIAN NEWS BUREAU, Washington, June 1.—Without word of debate, without a dissenting vote, the House of Representatives this afternoon agreed to the conference report on the Borah-Jones three-year homestead bill and it was signed by Speaker Clark. As soon as it is signed by the Vice-President it will go to the White House for President Taft's approval and the general expectation is that the bill will become a law before the end of next week.

It is customary for the President to refer all public land bills to the Secretary of the Interior before signing, and this course may be taken with the three-year bill, but that is not likely. The action of the House today was accomplished without any friction, those in charge of the bill waiting until its opponents were out of the hall before calling it up. Five minutes after the conference report was read, it had been approved by the House without rollcall. Half an hour later some who intended opposing the adoption of conference report found it too late. If the session of Congress lasts long enough Senator Borah will endeavor to get through the House his correlated bill directing the patenting of homesteads on Government irrigation projects soon as entrymen comply with the homestead law. This bill has passed the Senate, but has not been reported by the House committee. If it is enacted, homesteaders on Government projects can get patent in three years, instead of waiting 10, as at present required.

COOS GROWERS GET AID

FRUIT INSPECTOR PLANS EXPERIMENT STATION. Apples, Peaches, Pears and Strawberries Successfully Grown. Industry in Its Infancy.

MARSHFIELD, Or., June 1.—(Special.)—An experiment station in Coos County to supply aid to the fruit growers and farmers west of the Coast Range of mountains is the plan which P. M. Hall-Lewis, the Coos County fruit inspector, is endeavoring to carry out. The inspector has organized fruit growers' societies in different districts of the county and has arranged the visit of several eminent specialists to assist the growers. The inspector has announced to the farmers the possibility of locating an experiment station in this county, and has asked their co-operation. There is no station west of the Coast Range, and as this district is somewhat isolated time is required to secure aid. Furthermore, the conditions west of the mountains are so different it is felt that a local station will be of great value. The county inspector has arranged for a visit of a party of experts to Coos County this month. The party will include Professor A. H. Carson, of the State Horticultural Society, Professors Jackson and Wilson, of the Oregon Agricultural Experiment Station, and possibly one or two others. The experts will make a tour of the county and give advice to the fruit growers. Inquiries regarding the fruit-growing possibilities of Coos County are being received in large numbers. The industry is only in its infancy. There are in the county 162,000 fruit trees, including those bearing and young ones planted within the past few years. Of this total about 45,000 are apple trees and 60 per cent of these are Gravenstein. The total land of the county planted in fruit is about 1700 acres, of which 650 acres were planted within the past three years. The total land cleared and brush, available for fruit growing, is estimated at about 70,000 acres, which indicates the possibility of the growth of the industry. Strawberries and other small fruits have proved highly profitable. Peaches and pears are grown successfully in parts of the county. Prunes, as far as they have been tried, have been a success. Cherries are yet to be proved for this locality, but the success of apples in Coos County, and particularly the Gravenstein, has been established beyond any doubt.
