Several corporations refused to pay the taxes so imposed, and the Attorney-General commenced actions at law against them, notably of which wore cases against the Pacific States Telephone & Telegraph Company, the Sunset Telephone Company, Wells-Fargo & Co., and the Standard Oll Com-pany, a California corporation. These companies all set up the defense, among others, that the law having been en-scied by the initiative method was in conflict with the Federal Constitution, and therefore unconstitutions and void. and therefore unconstitutional and void. "A test case was made of the case against the Pacific States Telephone & against the Pacific States Telephone & Telegraph Company, and being won in the state courts, the company appealed to the United States Supreme Court, where it was duly affirmed. In the case against the Standard Oil Company and Wells-Fargo & Co., Judge Burnett de-cided that the said gross earnings tax law was superseded by the law of 1907, which provides that 'the term real property shall include all fran-chises and privileges granted by and pursuant to any law of this state, or municipal ordinance, or resolution owned or used by any person or cor-poration other than the right to be a corporation.' and held that the state could collect for 1906 and 1907, but not later. not later.

"The company appealed the case to the Supreme Court and on the trial in that court the Attorney-General argued that the court should consider the question of the 1908 taxes, under the provisions of the constitutional amend-ment to article VII of the constitution. One of the most persistent campaign-ers and one from whom much is ex-pected as the vote progresses, is Wil-liam Garrett, of the East Side, who is carrying on an active campaign among jusion for and nation to imagine that a few millions of reserve and more millions of capital at disposal form an in-expungable rampart against attack or guarantee the success of an offensive. It is a fatal error to repeat, as some ham Garrett, of the East Side, who is carrying on an active campaign among the business men of the city. He has visited several business men's clubs, outlined his platform and requested their support, and is planning this week to carry his campaign to the West Side and try to gain an audience before the writers do, that a modern war requires such expenditures that even the vic-forious nation would be exhausted and could not profit by its win.
