IN HANDS OF JURY

Mother of Defendant in Murder Trial Faints in Court-room Corridor.

$5000 REWARD ALLURING?

Attorney Stevenson Declares Detective Leving's Efforts to Secure Conviction Caused by West's Offer of Stipend.

ST. HELENS, Or., June 8.—(Special.)—Following a two-hour sum-up of the evidence by District Attorney Tongue, during the course of which the only incident which detracted from the intense stillness of the courtroom was the action of the defendant's mother in rushing from the room to fall fainting on the floor of the corridor, the jury in the Pender murder case retired at 2:40 o'clock this afternoon. Mr. Tongue gave a vivid and forceful presentation of the circumstances which the prosecution contends indicate that Pender committed the crime and the deductions to be drawn from them. He was preceded by John H. Stevenson, who closed for the defense, and who impressed upon the jury that the law requires that a conviction must result from suspicion or on probabilities. He urged that if the defendant went to the Wehrman cabin—a fact which itself is denied—for an improper motive there was no reason why he should have armed himself. He said that Detective Leving's probable was convinced of the defendant's guilt, but charged that Leving's strenuous efforts to secure Pender's conviction were caused by the hope of securing the $5000 which the Governor West has promised to recommend that the next Legislature appropriate as a reward for the arrest and conviction of the murderer. He argued that the state had proved nothing but suspicion against the defendant, and in conclusion warned the jurors of the terrible injustice which would result from an erroneous conviction.

Political Effect Charged. Deputy District Attorney Miller opened the argument for the state, but he occupied only 15 minutes of the two hours which it was stipulated each side should use in addressing the jury. John F. Logan, who followed him for the defense, declared that Sheriff Thompson and Coroner Sherwood were anxious to secure Pender's conviction for political effect. He said that Thompson had caused the defendant to be arrested and prosecuted, not on evidence but on the theories of Detective Leving. He urged that the scratches on Pender's face, if any existed, had been completely explained by witnesses for the defense, and that Guy Whitney was not entitled to the $5000 reward from the postoffice in Seaside, as the paper found in the Wehrman cabin. He pointed to the fact that the boy had admitted telling relatives of the defendant that he did not give Pender the mail on that day. He recalled that the state had connected Pender up with the Hilley and Hasson pistol only by the fact that Pender had once borrowed it, and would not admit that the state had proved that it was the weapon with which the crime was committed. Mr. Logan recalled that E. E. King, the expert, had testified that most pistols have gaspits. He offered to stop in the middle of his argument if Mr. Tongue would waive the rules and give him 10 minutes before the jury retires prior to their retirement, but the District Attorney called the offer a "bluff" and refused to accept the challenge.

Mail Question Probed. "On Labor day, when Pender went to Seaside, he carried the mail for Siltzerville," argued District Attorney Tongue. "That included the Wehrman mail, which the defendant admits he had often taken from the postoffice. That paper was in the office on that day. If he didn't take it, how did it get away from the office? We have established that the mail was in the community secured it. Every circumstance corroborates Guy Whitney's evidence." "Why did Pender suggest that the authorities be notified when he had seen Sheriff Thompson and Deputy Sheriff Grant driving up that way and returning the afternoon of the day before?" demanded the District Attorney. "Why did he suggest, at a time when nobody knew when the murder had occurred, that it was no use sending for bloodhounds as he had done in the past two or three days would have obliterated the scent? If he didn't have trouble with Mrs. Wehrman on the day they walked down the road, why did she pass a chair to him through the window when he stopped at the cabin the Thursday preceding the murder, and why did she fail to recognize him when they met at the home of John Nelson? (The defendant on the witness stand denied meeting Mrs. Wehrman at the Nelson home, although Mrs. Nelson testified positively that he did, and Mr. and Mrs. William Goin declared on the stand that he was at their place helping to fight forest fires at the time the state contends he was at the Nelson place.)" Mr. Tongue recalled the testimony of several witnesses, including that of the defendant, that Pender was acquainted with the Wehrman baby and urged that the child was killed to remove the only eye witness of the slaughter of the mother.
