GRADUATES FROM COLLEGES OF LIBERAL ARTS AND ENGINEERING, UNIVERSITY OF OREGON, 1912.

UNIVERSITY OF OREGON, Eugene, Or., June 15.—(Special).—According to the latest list of students who will receive their diplomas at Wednesday's commencement, as given out from the president's office, the graduating class of the colleges of liberal arts and engineering of the University of Oregon will number 105.

This is, of course, exclusive of the graduates of the colleges of law and medicine in Portland, and also does not include the 11 post-graduate students who will be given their master's degree, including those departments, the total number of graduates from the university this year is 114.

The final list of seniors eligible to receive sheepskins in the colleges of liberal arts and engineering furnishes several surprises in that it shows that a number of prominent members of the class have been unable to present the necessary credits to place their names among those of the chosen. However, it is barely possible that the names of one or two of the delinquents who are endeavoring to make up the deficiency in their work will be added at the 11th hour. About two weeks ago it was announced that there were 115 candidates for graduation.

Even if the ranks are not augmented, this year's class will enjoy the distinction of being the largest ever graduated from this institution. Prior to this time the class of 1910 held the record, with a graduation enrollment of 93. The present band of seniors also takes high rank in student achievement, there being an unusually large number of its members who have left their impress on college history. The backbone of Oregon's debating, football, track and basketball teams this year was furnished by this class.

The final list of students who have taken sufficient post-graduate work to earn a master's degree is as follows: Master of Arts, Ruth Dunaway, Portland; Hamilton H. Hoffman, Ferdinand; J. Neubauer, Oakland; Benjamin H. Williams, Eugene; Olive Woodward, Master of Science, Paul G. Bond, Eugene. Civil Engineer, Chester G. Fisher, Boise, Idaho; Milton B. Germond; Joseph W. McArthur, Eugene; Carl A. McClain, Eugene. Electrical Engineer, Charles R. Field.

Ministerial Association Considers Bringing Dr. Charles M. Sheldon to City for Three Days—Jason Lee Memorial Dedicated at Salem Today.

THE Portland General Ministerial Association will meet in the Y. M. C. A. building in special session at 12:15 tomorrow noon to consider whether or not to bring to Portland Rev. Charles M. Sheldon, of Topeka, Kan.

Dr. Sheldon, author of "In His Steps," has resigned as pastor of the First Congregational Church of Topeka and is planning to tour the West and to lecture on "Christian Sociology." Should he come to Portland he would remain about three days. The trip to the West will be made in October and November.

The next regular meeting of the Portland General Ministerial Association will be held September 2.

The new building of the Montavilla Christian Church, at East Hoyt and East Seventy-sixth streets will be dedicated at 3 P. M. today. Rev. W. F. Resgor, of the First Christian Church, will preach the dedicatory sermon. Members of the church and their friends will take their dinners and spend the entire day at the church.

The church was organized about a year ago and has 190 members.

Jason Lee Memorial Methodist Episcopal Church, at Salem, will be dedicated today. Dr. Fletcher Homan, of Willamette University, will preach at 10:30 this morning and at 2:30 a platform meeting will be held, with addresses by laymen. The dedicatory service will be held at 8 o'clock tonight. Dr. Homan will deliver the address and will be assisted by James Moore, D. D., district superintendent of the Salem district, and Rev. W. C. Stewart, pastor of the church. The building was erected at a cost of about $15,000, is built of cement blocks and will seat about 800 persons.

Rev. Harry Leeds, the pastor, called attention to the decorations of roses. He referred to them as "fragrant beauties which aid largely in making the City of Portland the best city in America."

Rev. E. Nelson Allen will review the "Bridge of the Gods" in the pulpit of the Hawthorne Park Presbyterian Church tonight.

Rev. John R. Griffiths has been installed as pastor of the Beaver Creek Congregational Church. The installation services were held May 30. Many Welsh church members of Portland attended. The installation sermon was delivered by Rev. J. I. Jones, of Park Place. The charge to the pastor was by William H. Jones and the charge to the church by Rev. George H. Paddock.

The Young People's Society of Christian Endeavor of the First Congregational Church will give a launch party Friday night.

Women of the First Congregational Church will send a box to Dr. Susan Tallman, in North China, this week.

Sam M. and Clara A. Kristensen, evangelists from the Pitsgah Home at Los Angeles, are holding meetings at the Pitsgah Home, Ninth avenue, on the Mount Scott carline. They advertise to heal "the lame, the halt and the blind." The meetings are held Sundays at 11 and 2:30.

MUCH MONEY IS WASTED

STATE OF OREGON WORST IN UNION, SAYS ABSTRACTER.

Secretary of Oregon Association of Title Men Says Faulty Deeds Are Too Numerous These Days.

"Thousands of dollars are wasted each year in the state of Oregon straightening out titles to property that have been bungled by incompetent and poorly equipped abstracters," said W. C. Saunders, secretary of the Oregon Association of Title men yesterday, "and to prevent this the Oregon Association of Title men has agreed not to recognize any man or company who has not a fully equipped abstract plant. The association met at the Commercial Club.

"Oregon is absolutely the worst state in the Union in this respect," continued Mr. Saunders. "Trouble is constantly occurring because some unqualified abstracter has made a mistake through lack of records and equipment and it must be stopped. People cannot afford to buy property and find themselves at once involved in a lawsuit over a faulty deed.

"Articles on such subjects as 'What Constitutes an Abstract,' 'Reliability of Oregon Abstracters' and 'Possible Flaws in Titles' will be sent to the newspapers of the state with the request that they be published and our pamphlet 'Who's Who Among Organized Title Men in Oregon,' will help to educate the public in the proper buying and selling of property.

"An abstractor must have a fund of information at his immediate command. There are 600 deed books with an average of 500 deeds in each one; 40,000 ordinances, 50,000 court cases and innumerable other records with which he must be familiar or at least to which he must have ready access.

The association elected Charles H. Weder, of Albany, president; Henry Sengstacken, vice-president; M. H. Stevenson, of Hillsboro, second vice-president; W. B. Sargent, of La Grande, third vice-president, and W. C. Saunders, of Portland, secretary and treasurer. J. P. Daly, of Portland, was named as delegate to attend the National convention to be held in Galveston, in September. Mr. Daly is president of the Title and Trust company, C. S. Booth, of Seattle, a member of the National executive committee and C. W. Hall, secretary of the Washington State association, were visitors at yesterday's session. About 20 abstracters were present.

A banquet was held last night at which speeches were made by Jay Bowerman, W. L. Brewster and John R. Kollack.

DIPLOMAS GIVEN TO GIRLS

"Sheepskins" Bestowed by Archbishop Christie at St. Mary's.

Eight graduates were awarded diplomas by Archbishop Christie at St. Mary's Institute, near Beaverton, Friday afternoon. Three of the graduates had completed the academic course, four the commercial course and one the music course.

In addressing the graduates, Archbishop Christie warned them against flashy dress, and told them to think of the austere religious garb of the nuns who educated them when at times in their daily life temptations seem to surround them, and they become satiated with the pleasures of the world.

The following were the graduates: Academic course—Vera Alice Hendricks, of Beaverton; Oma Belle Emmons, of Beaverton; Annabell Margaret Sparkman, Hillsboro.

Commercial course—Rose Christine Kennedy, Bandon; Gertrude Ha Epochs, Hillsboro; Sadie Agnes Tellow, Fort Stevens; Vesta Loretta Baker, Tillamook.

Music course—Sophia Marie Holboke.
