

PORTLAND'S FIRST COMMUNITY HOUSE ANSWERS LONG-FELT DEMAND OF CITY

Free Lectures, Baths, Musicals, Debates and Gymnasium Add to Facilities Offered in Peninsula Playground; Park Season Opens and Children and Adults Frolic in Natural Recreation Resorts.

On A Teeter Board, North Portland Park.

SIX hundred to 2000 children will splash in the wading pools, teeter down the slide, enjoy the exhilarating effect on clothing, "skin the cat" on horizontal bars and lounge comfortably in the shade of Portland's eight playgrounds each day this summer between listening to tales and stories, read and told them by the instructors in charge.

The North Parkway playground, the first ever owned and operated by the city, is the most popular in the community. The City Park grounds are best appreciated and most used on Sundays. In the early morning children begin to come and by evening it is crowded.

Peninsula playground is the most liked and the best attended of all. Here are hammocks, swings, tennis courts, trapezes and the slide.

Community House Lures. It is at this playground that the first community house in the city is being built; a place where families may go to spend their evenings, listening to free lectures, reading popular literature in the rooms set apart for that purpose, exercising in the big municipal gymnasium and bathing in the swimming pools.

With the close of the schools the time of the playground has just begun. At times the playground is crowded with the eight different grounds of the city. After the recreation places are overcrowded and the park management is constantly being brought face to face with the fact that there is an insufficiency of equipment.

Chicago has spent $6,000,000 in two years on her playgrounds and community houses alone. Portland can do as well as Chicago, and there seems to be no reason why within a few years this city should not have a sufficient number of community houses to keep up with the needs of the people.

Portland still backward. "Portland is far behind other cities in this respect," declared the Superintendent. "Seattle has 22 playgrounds and four community houses, while Portland, an equally progressive city in other respects, has only eight and no community houses at all."

At the Sunset Hotel, Beach Center, Mrs. Pedman has welcomed numerous guests. Many improvements have made the place dearer than ever to those who visit from year to year at Sunset.

Perhaps the most elaborate of the beach homes on North Beach is that of "N. Sappo" of Mrs. Isam White, high on the ridge near the Breakers, Wash. Built along bungalow lines, with 11 spacious rooms, furnished simply but elegantly in mission furniture, the "Nesapo" is in plain view from any point on the shore line.

HOOD RIVER GIRL OF 15 KILLS 300-POUND BEAR IN CENTRAL OREGON.

HOOD RIVER, Or., June 29.—(Special.)—One of the youngest huntresses of big game in the state is Miss Adrienne Epping, the 15-year-old daughter of J. A. Epping, of this city, who last week while on a fishing trip with her father on the Metolius River in Central Oregon, killed a 300-pound bear.

HOOD RIVER, Or., June 29.—(Special.)—A sensation was sprung in the trial of Lee York yesterday upon alleged charge of selling intoxicating liquor, when James Trimble, a witness for the state, refused to answer a question put to him concerning whether he had had any understanding with York as to the delivery of the liquor or for the purchase of the same.

HEILIG'S LEADING MAN WANTS TO BE CREATOR

Sydney Ayres Returns to Portland to Head Masculine Players in Summer Engagement of Cathrine Countess, Who Opens Here July 14.

It is a new and vastly different Sydney Ayres who returned to Portland yesterday. A greater depth of experience, a maturity that is the gift of four added years of hard work and a broader vision mark him, who is to be leading man at the Heilig Theater in the starring Summer engagement of Cathrine Countess, which begins Sunday, July 14.

Ayres has just as much enthusiasm as before. In addition, he has acquired a histrionic temperament that is not the gilt gingerbread often mistaken for the real thing and not the temperament produced for press purposes only.

So, at the meeting in Portland, it was quite natural that the conversation should turn in the channels of what Mr. Ayres has done since he left the old Baker Theater. Possibly, most people are aware that he played a long season as stock star at the Liberty Theater in Oakland, Cal.; later at the Burbank in Los Angeles and the Alcazar in San Francisco, in the same capacity.

It will be remembered that it was in his love scenes that Ayres always was able to hold attention, even more thoroughly than in his other parts. Plays and players, theaters and dramatists—all were scanned in the conversation. The big revolving stage of the Liberty Theater hobbled mentally with Drury Lane, London, and H. B. Irving satirized, while Wilton Lackey cracked jokes through the mouth.

RAYCOAST IS ATTRACTIVE

Event of Week at Coast Resort Is Visit of Portland Party.

RAYCOAST, Or., June 29.—(Special.)—The event of the week here was the visit of a party of Portland business men, members of the Commercial Club, with their friends. Special entertainment was the order. A dinner, followed by dancing, was given the visitors Wednesday night. There was a constant round of gaiety until the party left for home Thursday afternoon.

On Thursday night, an informal private dance was given, at which many from Tillamook, Bay City and the Gearhald beaches were present.
