'The Crucifixion'

Fifth Floor, New Building

The Meier & Frank Store gives to every man, woman and child in Portland and surrounding cities an opportunity to view and study at close range one of the most famous of the many great paintings of "The Crucifixion."

Valued at $100,000, the 9x14 canvas is the largest and most precious of the artist's works. Franz A. Lundhal, the painter, was born in Stockholm, Sweden, in 1849. He began the study of art under the famous Robertson of Chicago, and afterwards studied in Paris and Munich, and in Stockholm, under such masters as Jerome and Benjamin Constant.

Lundhal's close adherence to the new Testament description of "The Crucifixion" is remarkable. Wonderfully impressive is the canvas. Brought out in compelling vividness—the silent, insistent message becomes a sermon none can mistake.

LIBERAL TRAINING URGED

Lecturer Would Not Crowd It Out for Industrial Work.

UNIVERSITY OF OREGON, Eugene, July 27.—(Special.)—"I believe in and sympathize with the efforts we are making to bring education, whether cultural or industrial, within the reach of all the people," said Professor Grant Showman, of the University of Wisconsin, in his concluding lecture at the University of Oregon Summer school today.

"But I do not for a minute believe that industrial and vocational education should be allowed take the place of liberal training, or to crowd it out, or that our efforts to minister to the needs of the masses should result in our neglect of the training of our young people who have intellectual talent above the ordinary. The state should afford every possible encouragement to higher education.

"This is its duty, or its privilege: its duty because intellectual talent has as just a claim to the fostering hand of the state as the more ordinary talents; its privilege, because if our generation is to be useful to posterity, or even known, it will be so by reason of its transmitting to future generations not merely the memory of its achievements and discoveries, but of the emotional experience which begot them. Those nations of the past which command our admiration and stir our idealism are the nations which produced great leaders in literature and the arts, and thus gave us not only a knowledge of their times, but preserved for our inspiration the emotional ideals which made their times great."

The subjects of Dr. Showman's lectures for the past week were: "The Roman Ideal," "The Spirit of Roman Literature," "The Roman Contribution to Prose Style," "A Roman Poet and Philosopher of Life," "The Significance of the Greek and Roman Civilization."

Fish Company Incorporates.

FISKE FUNERAL IS HELD

Impressive Services Over Auto Victim Largely Attended.

So large was the gathering of mourners at the funeral of Bertrand E. Fiske, who was killed in an automobile accident last Tuesday, that more than 100 persons were compelled to remain in the reception room while the services were conducted in the Skewes chapel yesterday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock by Dr. Luther R. Dyott, pastor of the First Congregational Church. Flowers were massed in profusion in the chapel, covering the entire rostrum.

Members of the Portland lodge of Elks, of which the deceased was a member, acted as pallbearers. After the services in the chapel members of the Washington Lodge of Masons, to which the victim also belonged, headed the procession as far as First and Madison streets. There they boarded a special car which took them to the Portland Crematorium. On arrival the full ritual of the Masons was carried out.

In his sermon Dr. Dyott spoke feelingly of the sudden loss of a life so young and promising. The pallbearers were Frank Coffinberry, Gus C. Moser, W. C. Haseltine, T. E. Manner, C. E. McDonnell and C. C. Bradley.

Two wagon loads of flowers were displayed, wreaths from the Elks lodge, the Portland opticians and from the letter-carriers being prominent. Two enormous baskets filled with beautiful flowers were sent by personal friends.
