WILSON MAY DROP FREE TRADE VIEWS

Governor Expected to Yield Somewhat to Protectionists in His Party.

TARIFF TO BE MAIN ISSUE

Democratic Presidential Nominee Confident of Success but Some of His Friends Fear Bryan May Yet Cause Trouble.

OREGONIAN NEWS BUREAU, Washington, Aug. 3.—Governor Wilson, according to those who have talked with him, believes in every delegate at the Baltimore convention, that this is a Democratic year, and that the voters in November will overwhelmingly reject both President Taft and Colonel Roosevelt, regardless of what manner of campaign they may make. Personally, Wilson has chosen the tariff and the main issue for his campaign, and that choice will be respected by the campaign managers.

But, at the very outset, this one issue is causing worry to some of the ablest men in the Democratic party, for the Democratic platform declared in favor of free trade, and Governor Wilson is personally a free trader. Not many days ago the New York World, perhaps the most influential Democratic paper in the United States, called upon Wilson to denounce the tariff plank in the Baltimore platform and to come out for a reasonable degree of protection. The World declared flatly that the vast majority of Democrats no longer believe in free trade, but wanted a reasonable amount of protection, as evidenced by the votes of some of the leading Democrats in the Senate. The opinion voiced by this newspaper is known to be the opinion of a great many Democrats in the Senate and House of Representatives, where protectionists from the South are no longer objects of interest.

Compromise May Be Made.

While Governor Wilson will not advocate the tariff plank, it is probably he will soften the hearts of Democratic protectionists, it is asserted, by favoring some form of tariff commission, thus adhering to the plan of revision schedule by schedule, basing such revision on facts gathered by some competent non-partisan body. This is not all that is desired by the more earnest Democratic protectionists, but it is a compromise ground, and may prove popular.

The demonstrated unpopularity of the prevailing Payne-Aldrich law, and the fact that that law will remain in operation throughout the campaign this year, and the further fact that the Republican Senate declined to revise the wool and cotton schedules in accordance with the findings of the Tariff Board—and even refused to make any attempt at such revision—will give the Wilson managers their strongest tariff argument in the campaign this fall, and Governor Wilson informs his callers that this omission on the part of the Republicans will make for him the best sort of campaign material.

Bryan May Turn on Wilson.

But while Governor Wilson sees clear sailing ahead on the tariff issue, some of his friends fear he may run into expert trouble with William J. Bryan before the campaign has progressed far. It will be recalled that at the Baltimore convention Mr. Bryan, in the Tammany, Ryan and Belmont, and other representatives of Wall street, and did his utmost to read them out of the Democratic party. He did succeed in forcing the convention to declare itself to be progressive and opposed to the domination of such men, and the victory for Bryan was a signal one.

But after the convention adjourned, and leaders began to talk harmony, Governor Wilson sent for Boss Murphy, and the Tammany chief was on the first visitors received at Seagirt. There also came Boss Nugent, of New Jersey, who had been an out-and-out opponent of Wilson, and then came word that the Ryan-Belmont interests, notwithstanding Bryan's resolution at Baltimore, were to support Wilson in his campaign, and that their support was welcomed by the Governor. The relations between Wilson and the Ryan-Belmont element are not positively known; it may be that Governor Wilson is entering the support of all Democrats. But if it is later demonstrated that Wilson is depending largely upon these men to carry him through in New York and the East, it is feared by the Governor's friends that there will be another outburst from Mr. Bryan which will only stir up dissension in the Democratic ranks.

Bryan Has Nothing to Lose.

Bryan, of course, can continue his warfare on Murphy and Ryan and Belmont, for he has nothing to lose and everything to gain. He wants to keep before the public; he wants to be known as a great factor in his party; and yet he is relieved of all responsibility, in a position to make such trouble, if he determines upon such a course.

It has been explained several times that Woodrow Wilson is going to abandon the West, and make his entire fight in the East, confident that the South will stay with him. This is not correct. On the other hand, the Democratic platform made a strong bid for Western support when it declared in favor of sane and practical conservation of our game and natural resources, and it is known that Governor Wilson has hopes of carrying a large part of the West in November. Montana, Colorado and Nevada he counts as certain; Idaho, Washington and Oregon he believes are easily debatable ground, with more than an even chance for the Democratic victory if the third ticket is placed in those states to divide the Republican vote, and California is listed as a probable Wilson state if there is no let-up in the Taft-Roosevelt fight now in progress. And men close to Wilson declare that these states will be as bitterly contested as any state in the East, notwithstanding their comparatively slender vote in the Electoral College.

and sent to Dan Kellaher, president of the East Side Business Men's Club, a statistical report on the tonnage and resources of the Logan district, in Clackamas County, showing advantages of that section. This report is part of the general statistics which are being gathered throughout the section extending southeast to Willhoit Springs, with a view to securing an electric railway to Portland. Mr. Robbins says in his report that from the Logan district without railway facilities, there are 14,575 tons handled yearly; 378 homes owning farms of 20 acres each; 11,200 acres of tillable land; 2,223 acres of timber land and more than 220,000,000 feet of timber standing. Mr. Robbins says:

"This one of the most wealthy and prosperous sections of Clackamas County, with vast timber and dairying resources. The tonnage figures are large considering that we have no railway connection with Portland. We have the most prosperous Grange in the state, which owns its own hall, and has 120 active members. We have churches and schools, and now want electric railway connection with Portland."

There are now nine active improvement clubs organized in that territory, all of which are collecting statistics showing probable tonnage and resources, agricultural and timber, all of which will be used to induce the construction of an electric railway.

Clubs were formed last night at Viola and at Willhoit Springs. Dan Kellaher, president of the East Side Business Men's Club, was present at Willhoit and outlined in a brief talk what is proposed for the Logan district railway facilities for that district from the East Side. Mr. Kellaher pointed out that the Hill lines are coming in on the East Side, and that a public dock will be built there.

"Your vast timber and other resources," said Mr. Kellaher, "can be poured right through to the coast by public docks when the electric line is built, as it will be in the near future. The Hill lines will have a grand central depot on the East Side. This territory is the largest undeveloped section in the state, and it is worth your time and energy to work for this electric railway. We of the East Side Business Men's Club will cooperate with your clubs in every way possible in getting this electric railway."

COUNTY IS PROSPEROUS

CONTRAST WITH WASHINGTON DISTRICT GRATIFYING.

Multnomah Has Net Resources of $4,196,060—Expense of Tax Collections Is Small.

For the purpose of contrasting the business management of the two counties, County Auditor Martin has published a comparative statement showing the financial condition of King County, Wash., in which Seattle is located, and Multnomah County, at the close of business June 30, 1912. Multnomah County has the better of it from every standpoint, according to Mr. Martin's figures.

The net resources of Multnomah County are figured at $4,196,060, and this county has no bonded indebtedness. King County has a bonded indebtedness of $2,688,000 and assets of only $4,548,261, leaving net resources of $1,860,261.

For 1911 Multnomah County levied in taxes $7,554,941.54 and King County $7,697,229.72. The expense of collections between $200,000 and $250,000, and in Seattle $1.41. Multnomah County spent $26,822.28 for the operation of its tax department and the County Treasurer's office. For the same items King County expended $80,761.95. Taxes of 1911 outstanding in Portland amount to $852,274.69 and in Seattle $1,772,718.72. Sheriff Stevens explains, however, that between $200,000 and $250,000 of the amount still uncollected by him is due in October from people who took advantage of the law permitting them to pay half their taxes in the Spring and the balance in the Fall.

The following items go to make up the $4,178,315.39 assets of Multnomah County:

Cash on hand, general fund, $758,843.71; cash on hand, road fund, $121,858.89; cash on hand, public library building fund, $143,771.77; value of courthouse and furniture, $1,895,000 (this includes the site of the building which is put in at $375,000); value of armory, $350,000; value of Multnomah Farm and building, $1,070,000; 250 Portland, (the site for the new library building), $160,000; Multnomah Hospital and grounds, $80,000; Kelly Butte, $25,222 acre, $70,000; Lincoln rock quarry, 7.5 acres, $16,000; lots and lands $44,500; still due from purchasers of old poor farm, $19,530 in notes for 2, 3, and 4 years, $2,000; road taxes for year 1911, $124,456.55; five ferry boats, $90,000; road machinery and tools, $35,000.

LOGANBERRY SEASON GOOD

SALEM, Or., Aug. 3.—(Special.)—With an average yield of about five tons an acre in the Brooks district, with $80 a ton being paid for berries delivered at the station, the loganberry harvest is practically over and the year has been an excellent one for Marion County loganberry growers. Thirty-seven cars of loganberries were sent to the Portland cannery alone. Included in these shipments were 125 tons from the Aspinwall ranch. Practically $1,000 was paid by the Portland cannery to loganberry growers living near Brooks.
