SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 10.—(Special.)—The baseball today was without particular features, unless you want to count the number of chances that the Seals had to send men around the bases, but didn't. And with all that, the Beavers made the most of the chances that were coming to them and won 3 to 1 after three straight

Young Gregg pitched four-hit ball up to the eighth inning, but when it looked as if there was to be a San Francisco rally, the Northern twirler was benched. He had two men on bases and one down when he said farewell to the pitching mound. Klawitter mowed the boys down, with no more hits.

Bunts Are Beaten Out. Jess Baker was hardly as successful. Two of the runs he forced home were walks when the Beavers had the bases full and the other was as much the fault of hits off the southpaw as Corhan's error. Fortland made a spe-cialty of beating out infield bunts on Baker and got away with it in good shape.

Dell Howard was the hit specialist for the locals and Fitzgerald for the

for the locals and Fitzgerald for the Oregonians, each finishing up with three smashes to their credit. Howard broke into the extra base hit column with a double, which puts him just a trifle in front of the collegian.

Baker had his bases filled in the second with no one out. Butcher sent a twister high in the air. Howard, who was trying for the catch, missed fire. Rodgers trying a sacrifice hit, the ball passed Baker for a single. Fitzgerald laid another bunt along third and beat the throw. A walk for Howley forced Butcher home. Bancroft lined to Corhan and Rodgers was out at the plate, A strike out on Gregg left the Seals in better shape, but Baker insisted on walking Doane, which gave the Beavers their second run.

JOKER DISCLOSED IN NEW AGREEMENT

Major Leagues Now More Than Ever Brokers of Baseball Players.

MINORS SURE TO PROTEST

Under New Dispensation Players Purchased Must Be Turned Over 30 Days Before Draft Season.

Is the new National agreement in organized baseball, which went into effect July 20, to help the minor leagues?

The majors consented to an increase in draft price, giving the Pacific Coast League and other organizations of Class AA. $2500 for drafted men and the B leagues, including the Northwestern, $1200; but an inspection of the agreement, caused by the status of Ward McDowell and other Portland Colt players intended for 1913 Beaver consumption, discloses the joker in the articles.

Under the National agreement now Under the National agreement now in force, an agreement intended to work for the betterment of the minor leagues, the majors are more than ever brokers of ball players, the market place to which the minors must go to purchase badly needed players.

Under the old agreement a minor league could purchase the release of enother minor league player, say a another minor league player, say a Class AA man from a Class B, six days before the opening of the draft seabefore the opening of the draft sea-son. Today the player must be pur-chased and turned over to the purchaser 30 days before the major draft season opens, or on August 15, six weeks be-fore the average, season closes. What minor league club, with the slightest chance for a pennant or the slightest regard for its patrons, is go-ing to sell one of its best men six weeks before the season closes? The result? Why the player is held,

The result? Why the player is held, the majors draft him for from $500 to $1500 and the Class AA club must then dicker with the drafter for the man at an advanced price.

We have a fine example of the workings of the system right here in Portland. The Northwestern League team is primarily a recruiting ground for the Pacific Coast League club. But at the Cub must be prethe same time the club must be pre-served if it is to be a factor in the race and prove anything but one con-tinual drain on the resources of the tinual drain on the resources of the parent organization.

But under the new agreement this is impossible. For example, McDowell, a player whose work entitles him to step into Class AA next year, is sold to the Colta. He is a tower of strength to Nick Williams' team and probably the most valuable man on the squad. But if the Beavers are to protect him against a $1200 major league draft, he must be withdrawn from the Colta 30 days before September 15, the opening of the five-day major league drafting season. ing season.

The result is that the Portland Colts will be weakened and the Beavers forced to resort to illegal means of holding their squad, providing they are carrying more than 20 men.

In these days of baseball there are few minor league clubs without "higher up" affiliations. Each D club has a marking agreement as to players from

The weaker clubs take care of the bigger fellows in the matter of the bigger fellows in the matter of promising material likely to be lost in the draft shuffle, and in turn can alter the draft shuffle and th the draft shuffle, and in turn can always depend upon them for assistance in the early season weeding out.

But under the new arrangement the majors are more than ever the hogs of organized baseball. The matter is squarely up to the little fellows. They must cripple their teams, robbing them of the best players, with the season six weeks from the end, or throw their talent into the major league maw for distribution as the 16 favored clubs

When the minor league magnates meet in Milwaukee next November it is a safe bet that the new agreemen comes in for a terrific grilling and not only that, but it will soon thereafter be known as the "old agreement," insofar as some of the details are con-

BY JAMES H. CASSELL.

The Colts made it four straight victories over the Tacoma Tigers by taking a rather slow and uninteresting game from Mike Lynch's trailers yes-terday 5 to 1. The unbroken string of victories is a duplicate of last week's performance against Victoria and that of the first appearance of Tacoma at Vaughn-street park.

Melkle pitched fair ball, the hit tally showing 12 for the Tigers against only ten for the Colts, but he was the victim of every inning in which the Colts secured two or more hits, while good luck and splendid support saved Ed Doty until the very last inning.

Tigers' Start Checked. The Tigers started out to win the game in the first inning, Millien doubling when Fries played too far in for a fly, and Gordon scratching out a hit to McDowell. But at this moment Neighbors flied to Fries, and a spiendid peg to the plate furnished a double play, with Lynch grounding out weakly to retire the side. In the sixth they bunched three hits, but again a double play, this time with Kibble, McDowell and Williams involved, placed the Tigers on the defensive.

On the other hand the Equine hits were placed to suit the tasts of the game in the first inning. Million doublwere placed to suit the tasts of the most ardent pre-Colt rooter. In the first inning, with two men out and Speas on second as the result of his single and McDowell's forcing of Fries at the plate, Williams drove the ball over second, scoring the Cardinal-to-be. In the third Burch tripled when Mil-lion tried to make a quick pickup of a single, and scored on Mahoney's sacrisingle, and scored on Mahoney's sacrifice fly.

In the sixth, with McDowell and Williams perched at third and second, respectively, from two hits and a sacrifice. Coltrin scored both with a hit to right. Two men were out at the time of the Coltrin swat, and likewise two had retired in seventh, when Speas doubled and scored on McDowell's single. Dowell's single.

Tacoma Scores at Last.

The Tigers scored their lone run in he ninth inning. McMullin best out the ninth inning. McAullin beat one a grounder to Kibble and took second on Jack's wild heave to first. Holderman sont McMullin to third with a single to right. Connors then hit to Coltrin, forcing Holderman at second, but McMullin scored. Crittenden singled, sending Connors to third, but
