DESIGNERS SUGGEST MANY CLEVER TRIMMING NOTIONS FOR BLOUSES

Latest Style of Yoke Adds Character and Can Be Made by Women Who Sew-Chiffon Waist Properly Made Is Suitable for Theater Wear-Transparent Material Has Special Use.

ESOURCEFUL designers of readymade blouses hit upon many clever trimming notions which the woman sews at home would never think of. The striped blue and white taffeta blouse is trimmed most effectively with blue and white striped taffets of a bolder pattern, the strips of crosswise striping being set under a corded piping. This blouse has one of the new yokes which are extremely fashionable now, many of the French blouse and hodice models having yokes of one sort or another. This blouse matches a blue permo coat and skirt suit for Autumn traveling wear.

Elaborate and dainty enough for an appearance at the theater in the - should necessity demand -is this dainty costume blouse of lace and embroidered chiffon. The chiffon is in Copenhagen blue color and the lace is creamy in tone. The vest of lace over a tucked chiffon chemisette is edged with tiny blue glass beads and the blue chiffon drapery over the shoulders has embroideries of blue beads and pearls. This blouse is a " "costume" blouse, in-tended for wear with a handsome afternoon tailored coat and skirt costume of blue velvet, worn with a plumed hat and smart boots of patent leather with buttoned suede tops.

Nothing in the blouse line is as useful as the dainty overblouse which may be slipped over a sim-ple freck or bodice to make it suitable for a gala occasion. This overblouse is made of Venise lace motifs, dovetailed with motifs of pintucked net, and the band thus achieved forms the outer edge of the overblouse, the center being filled in with tucked net. In front the border bands cross in surplice fashion over a little vest of the net with a small bow of amber velvet and a row of amber buttons. The overblouse, as shown here, has been used to dress up a trotabout frock of prune-colored permo fabric — a worsted and mohair combination much liked for Winter in-day wear and the elaborate costume blouse for formal occasions as there is between day and night. The "blouse for formal occasions" seems a new and somewhat extraordinary whim of fashion, but in this era of handsome tallored coat and skirt costumes made of velvet and silken materials, the formal blouse is an examplal item.

All the new blouses, tailored or blouses for wear with the tailored suit just now, and these blouses are exhibited by the thousands in the shops at prices or metal and sometimes of the sash material shirred or pleated over buckram.

blouse builders this autumn. Ratine collars decorate silk blouses for afternoon wear, and there are whole blouses of ratine, some of them showing the new figured ratine materials, with contrasting color. For example, tan ratine may have arabesque of old blue, the Robespierre collar being of oid blue satin and the smart little neckbow of black velvet; or a blue ratine waist with scarlet figures may have a collar of white ratine and a bow of red velvet. Unless one is very slender, the blouse of taffets will be a better choice than the one of ratine, and there is no blouse of taffeta will be a better choice than the one of ratine, and there is no doubt about the prettiness of the new taffeta blouses. They come in striped and plaided taffetas with silk pipings and pleated frills in contrasting colors, the color scheme, of course, being selected to match the skirt. A charming taffeta blouse accompanies a honeymoon traveling suit of navy blue permo fabric, intended for wear in the South. Over this collar turns a smaller collar of sheer white eyelet embroidery, and in the V-shaped front opening of the blouse is a little vest, also of the eyelet embroidery, with blue glass buttons set close together.

Color Fnd Takes.

Color Fad Takes.

Never did a color fad "take hold" with more emphatic grip than this burnt onion color fad of the present Fall season. One comes across the sunny, orange-yellow tone everywhere. Very little of the strong color is used—just a touch of it in collar, neckbow, pipings or buttons; but wherever it is used, it gives tone and modernness to the whole costume. Many of the new blouses of white satin or of lace have buttons of amber, which is the shade that in fabrics goes by the burnt onion name. A smart velvet neckbow will re-that in fabrics goes by the burnt onion name. A smart velvet neckbow will repeat the color touch of the yellowish buttons and give brightness and modishness to the whole blouse.

On black blouses for dressy wear the burnt onion touch is especially effective, and somehow or other women who would never dream ordinarily of wearing such a strong and trying shade as orange are wearing burnt onion this Autumn and looking very smart in it. A black chiffon costume blouse brightened by burnt onion was noted the other day at the Waldorf when the coat of a black charmeyse sult was removed of a black charmeyse suit was removed at afternoon tea hour. The blouse was not all black, the black chiffon being mounted over white satin or silk and mounted over white satin or silk and the mousquetaire chiffon sleeves being transparent. A little bolero jucket of black chantilly lace crossed the tucked chiffon at back and front, and within the V forved by the jacket was a crossed vest of burnt onlon chiffon fastening with jet buttons over black lace. At the neck was a deep Robespierre coliar of black satin and turning over it a very narrow collar of burnt onion vel-vet completed the color touch. The small toque of black velvet had an amber plume curling over the hair at the left side and smart boots of patent leather with buttoned tops of dull kid com-pleted an immensely chic afternoon cos-tume.

the bewitching silliness of the panier. Charming styles for girls is young as 10 show scant puffs put on so that the fall will be longer at the back than front and going all round the skimp skirt, which, by the way. is narrow in proportion to the look of becomingness. The frock is in one-piece style, with belt high, sleeves long and narrow, the bodice fitting flatly over the bust, and sometimes adorned with the sharply-pointed revers of Revolutionary times. Such dresses, of course, must be made of limply failing materials, such as louisine and veiling.

For girls of 18 and over, the panier takes many ramifications. One dress in "night-blue" silk has delicious little hip puffs opening over a glimpse of plaited white lace as if this were the petiteoat A Robesplerre collar goes with this model, one of those high, close stocks which look so well on silm young throats and so ridiculous on fat old ones, and a three-cornered felt hat in the same shade of blue with white lace roseties, was bought for the costume.

Fashions and Styles.

The mothers who regard the real panier a little too eccentric for their means, or two coquettish for daughters, will have no difficulty in finding delightful little frocks with skirts trimmed to simulate it in a very simple and childish way. One very smart frock seen recently, of pink and white striped veiling over a white silk slip, was made full and gathered over a cord at an overskirt line, the bottom of the dress falling like a limp flounce. Frills of lace or silk, narrow and scant, are often put on party frocks to simulate a tunic, the line running up in a V at the front, but often in this case the skirt is cut in two pieces, as the top part must be fuller than the bottom. To hold up the top with a slightly baggy suggestion there is a skirt lining of very thin silk there is a skirt lining of very thin silk or lawn to the knee.

The kimono model is still much used for the waist of the misses' party dress, as this permits the simple lines and the round neck and short sleeves so becoming to youth; but the jonger peplum tail is shelved in favor of the narrowest frill, which goes about the high waist line in a very pretty manner.

Petticont Is Sinshed. The very latest dancing petticoat is slashed all the way from ankle to hip at one side, the slashed edges being held together with ribbon bows. Of course this rather daring slashed effect is not visible through the gown, as there is always a foundation slip of satin or thin silk beneath the net or the gown, as chiffon gown. Dancing petticoats are dainty affairs, made of thinnest, soft-est batiste, with flounces of fine ma-chine embroidery, which is just now more fashionable then lace for dainty lingerie garments. One Cause of Bad Complexion—the Cure

(From Family Physician.)

"Look at a section of skin under the croscope and you will readily understand why cosmetics generally injure the complexion," says Dr. H. Robert Mackenzie, "The skin, smooth as it looks to the naked eye, under the glass exhibits a lacework of tiny holes, mouths of myriads of little glands. To keep the skin healthy these holes must be unobstructed, that the perspiration and natural oil can have free outlet Should the glands be blocked up with irritating, gritty particles, a common result of using powders and creams, Nature retaliates by causing sallowness, roughness, blotches or pimples.

"As a substitute for all cosmetics I recommend ordinary mercolized way.

Clothing and dress are as speech and language. The one expression—that which is evolved from within; the other is of the tongue only. The two words, "speech" and "language," are formed from two meanings.

Clothing should speak something; it should have the three—qualities of speech—simplicity, sincerity, fitness to person and occasion. Singleness, directness, are of grace and truth; complexity is confusion and more or less of porest complexion. It is put on night-faisehood. Apply the principles to garment and garniture.
