

HAY TAKES FINAL PLEA TO VOTERS

Washington Governor Says Extravagance Cry Is Campaign Bugaboo.

RECORD MADE HIS SPONSOR

Executive Tells of Progressive Legislation Enacted and Shows Wherein Opponents Have Fallen Short on Facts.

SPOKANE, Wash., Nov. 2.—(Special.)—Governor Hay, Republican candidate to succeed himself today, tonight might his closing statement of the campaign.

"Now that the campaign is drawing to a close, I feel that it is an opportunity that I should make a final statement respecting my candidacy to the people of this state.

"From the day that I announced my candidacy for Governor on the Republican ticket prior to the primaries, down to the present time, I have based my campaign on the record of this administration and have offered that record of things accomplished as a guaranty of my good faith in carrying out my pledges of further progress made to the people in case of my election.

"Extravagance Cry Follows."—"The progressive character of the laws enacted and the efficient administration of the state government during the past four years so far as the authority of the executive extends, has not been questioned or assailed by any of my opponents. Falling to find here a point of attack, they have set up the cry of extravagance, the time-worn slogan of the party of reaction which in this instance, has been thoroughly exploded.

"Early in the primary campaign one of my opponents made a bid for votes by promising to save $500,000 a year to the taxpayers if given the opportunity. He was soon followed by another rival, who raised the bid to $1,000,000 and now in these closing days a third rival still further raises the bid to $2,000,000. I presume if a little further time were allowed to brighten a candidate would promise to pay dividends to the taxpayers were he permitted to handle the finances of the state. All of the claims of these gentlemen have been conclusively shown to be absurd and mathematically impossible. They unquestionably have been made in the hope of discrediting the excellent financial record of the present administration and to detract from the exceptional record of progressive enactments that have distinguished the recent legislative sessions.

"As long ago as last July I issued a statement in pamphlet form dealing with the cost of state government and giving the exact figures showing the financial condition of the state. Up to the present time that statement has stood unchallenged for the simple reason that it could not be controverted honestly.

"Assertion Shown Ridiculous."—"The figures given in that statement show how ridiculous is the claim that $500,000 or $1,000,000 or $2,000,000 can be saved each year by any rearrangement or elimination of state commissions and departments. It shows that the only way saving nearly approaching the least of these figures can be made is by absolutely ceasing to exercise all of the functions of government vested in the public service commission, the tax commission, the industrial insurance commission, the bureau of inspection and supervision of public offices, the board of control and the other administrative departments and by superstiting the penal charitable reformatory and educational institutions of the state.

"The gentleman who now says he can save the state $2,000,000 a year if given the chance, suggests that the one way would be to abolish the tax commission as a starter. How effective that would be as a means of economy can readily be understood when it is noted that the annual expenditure of that board is a little over $18,500, while it collected in indirect revenues in 1911 from inheritance taxes, escheats, private castles and express companies and state liquor licenses the sum of $312,575.81. The collection of this revenue is not merely clerical, but requires the appearance in scores of cases involving escheats and the settlement of estates.

"If this so-called unnecessary commission were abolished some other board or commission would have to be created to perform its duties or else the state would lose a large part of the $13,700 annual revenue in striving to save the $18,000 annual expenditure. I fear the gentleman is talking through his campaign hat. He knows too little of the conduct of state affairs to be entrusted with official responsibility.

"Cry Is Campaign Bugaboo."—"The fact is the whole cry of extravagance is a campaign bugaboo, entirely devoid of substance. On the contrary, the present administration has managed to place the state in the soundest financial condition it has ever experienced. We have paid off all the general fund bonded indebtedness, which amounted, when I became Governor, to $1,300,000, which, by the way, was a legacy from the Democratic administration, to which one of the candidates now points as proof that he who was one of the managers of that administration can make a big saving to the people if elected, and we have turned a liability of $826,179.19 in September, 1908, to a resource of $244,556.23 in September, 1912.

"Instead of the per capita of the state government showing an increase, it shows a very material decrease during this administration. In 1909 the amount raised by direct taxation for the state general and military funds was $2,544,378, while in 1911 but $2,200,000 was raised by direct taxation for these funds.

"Cost Is Greater Now."—"It is true that it costs more now to run the state government than it did ten years ago, but in that time the population of the state more than doubled. The Federal census of 1910 shows an actual increase of 120 per cent; the number of state wards in the several institutions is more than three times as great, and the cost of all supplies, food, clothing and material of every sort has reached upward. Ten years ago the state had neither a railroad nor a Public-Service Commission; now it has both in one. Ten years ago the state did not have a Tax Commission, as it has now. Neither did it have an Industrial Insurance Commission, as it now has.

"So with many other departments and functions of government that have come at the express demand of a progressive people. Of course we could abolish all of these and go back to the conditions of ten years ago, when big business and the timber barons absolutely dominated the politics in the government of the state, and the ordinary citizen farmer, merchant, tradesman, mechanic, etc., could get no relief from arbitrary rates and services fixed at the sweet unheeded will of public-service corporations, and when all big interests notoriously dodged taxation, only to shift the burdens on the little fellows, who had no means of hiding property or escaping the Assessor.

"That day has gone, and gone forever, and the people of the great State of Washington have got the slightest intention of yielding to the siren song of extravagance to be carried back to those 'good old days' when might was right. They placed the Republicans in power in this state because they promised to carry out their will and give them the protection that government should to state weak as well as to the strong. The Republicans in this state have kept their promises faithfully and have made the government of Washing-

A GOOD LEGISLATIVE TICKET. In response to numerous requests from individual voters for suggestions as to desirable candidates for the State Legislature from Multnomah County, the Oregonian presents the following list of representative men deserving of support: State Senators—I. McArthur, J. H. Neila, Conrad P. Olson, W. Irving Spencer, Republicans, and A. F. Hoyer, George H. Watson and Dr. Jack M. Yates, Democrats.

ton progressive and responsive to the people's will. The record thus established is a sufficient guaranty that the Republican party will continue to keep its promises and keep the state on the highway of progress that has made it a proud example that should be emulated by the other states of the Union.

SALEM SUFFRAGISTS DINE Two Hundred Prominent Men and Women Are Hosts.

SALEM, Or., Nov. 2.—(Special.)—At one of the most enthusiastic banquets ever held here, the Salem Equal Suffrage League tonight entertained 200 prominent men and women of Oregon who have enlisted in the cause. With the absence of Mrs. Henry Waldo Coe, of Portland, Mrs. L. B. Therkelsen, acting as chairman, Judge P. H. Darcy, of Salem, acted as toastmaster, and in introducing the speakers declared that the colored race are more entitled to enfranchisement than the women. The program was as follows:

TURKS TO BE DISCUSSED Rev. M. A. St. John Announces Lectures on European Situation.

The Turkish situation is to be the subject of an address by Rev. M. A. St. John at the Central Church, Portland, at 7:45 P. M. today. The official title of the address is: "Drying up of the Great River Euphrates; or, the black spot in European politics." The subject is to be discussed from a prophetic standpoint. An invitation has been extended to the public.

Within the next week the pastor is planning to hold a mass meeting in the Gipsy Smith Auditorium when a symposium will be delivered on the European situation and what it means to the world in general.

"We believe, and many business men believe with us," said Mr. St. John, "that prospectors of 2500 years ago with regard to Turkey are being fulfilled today. The Turks themselves, for instance, have long said that they knew the time would come when they would be driven out of Europe, and they have a saying that, when they were, they would make their home between the sea and the mountains or in Jerusalem itself."

ASHLAND OFFICIAL WEDS H. G. Butterfield Takes Albany Girl as Bride on Thursday.

ASHLAND, Or., Nov. 2.—(Special.)—H. G. Butterfield, City Electrician, was married to Miss Edna Knott at the home of the bride's parents in Albany, Thursday. The bride was formerly a member of the faculty of the Ashland High School, while the bridegroom for some time past has been the superintendent of the municipal electric light and power plant.

Students of the high school anticipated the happy event by "rounding up" Mr. Butterfield early in the week previous to his departure for Albany by showering upon the prospective bridegroom not only rice, but an abundant supply of old shoes. He has been the efficient coach of the high school students in their various athletic stunts and in return they most heartily entered into the spirit of extending a royal send-off on the eve of his approaching marriage. The newly wedded couple will make their home in this city.

Stagedriver Buys Farm. WALDPORT, Or., Nov. 2.—(Special.)—Kit Williamson, for a number of years stage driver between Waldport and Newport, has sold his interest in the stage line to his partner, Les Doty, and purchased the Hayes place, at Tidewater, on the Alsea River. The place contains 100 acres and the purchase price was $5000.
