MULEMANSHIP COURSE
VANCOUVER BARRACKS MEN MUST LEARN TO RIDE.
Classes Now Convening Thrice Weekly and Enlisted Men Fast Becoming Expert as Officers.
VANCOUVER BARRACKS, Wash., Nov. 16.—(Special)—Officers and enlisted men alike, in this post, as in other stations in the United States Army, are required to know how to ride either mule or horseback under strenuous conditions, and the War Department, to attain this object, holds an annual school of equitation or school of horsemanship. Quite often it occurs, in the case of enlisted men, that they are a course in mulemanship, as mules are ridden more than horses in the artillery.
The infantry officers are required to ride well enough to perform any riding that might come up in connection with their duties, but the course they take is not nearly so rough or strenuous as that given for the artillery officers or men.
An infantry officer does well to ride a certain number of miles—three miles in 10 minutes—in a certain time, but the artillery officer must be able to do this much, and put his animal over ditches, steeples, brick or stone walls, ride horses that are not easily ridden, and be thoroughly competent to do the most strenuous duty on horseback.
Three times a week these classes in horsemanship are held, on Tuesday, Wednesday, and Friday during the Winter months. The Lieutenants go out one day and then the Captains go. The enlisted men are also required to learn to ride. Many are fully as expert in riding as the best of officers, and one man in particular won many prizes for his daring riding at the Pendleton Round-Up this year.

WART'S VALUE IS $7590

VANCOUVER MAN SEEKS DAMAGES FOR TREATMENT.

Injuries to Nose and Eye Owing to Removal by Practitioners Prove Costly.

VANCOUVER, Wash., Nov. 16.—(Special).—A wart, and its removal in an unskillful manner, has a market value of $7590, according to the price set by George Schooley, who has filed suit in the Superior Court for that sum against Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Packard. Schooley in his complaint says that he had a wart on his nose and in a position near his right eye, and on August 8, 1912, he paid the defendants $1 to remove the abnormal growth.

they alleging, he says, that they were skilled in the removal of such blemishes. Though he cautioned the defendants to use great caution, they again assured him that they knew their "profession" and continued.
The powerful drugs, it is set forth, destroyed the tissues near where the growth was, and injured the sight of the eye, doing damage to the tear sac and muscles of the optic. He was caused intense pain and permanent disfigurement, he further states.
Being unable to work for six weeks at $2.50 a day, Schooley computes that he would have earned $90. He wants $200 for disfigurement, and $3900 for injury done the eye. For pain and suffering he desires to collect $500, and for exemplary damages he would take $2000, making a total of $7590. The Packards were not licensed to practice the removal of warts and similar growth.

Alsea River Reaches Danger Point.

WALDFORT, Or., Nov. 16.—(Special).—Residents along the Alsea say the river is much higher at present than at any time for several years. It is full of drift and debris, which is a constant menace to navigation and does great damage to the salmon settlements in the upper river. There are a number of log and shingleboit booms near Tidewater, also in constant danger of being swept out.

Junction City District Flooded.

JUNCTION CITY, Or., Nov. 16.—(Special).—Between this city and Franklin, located 12 miles west, over six miles of the road is under water, due to the Long Tom River overflowing. The section that is under water constitutes rich farming land. The water varies from two to six feet in depth. Olaf Eihon said he found it necessary to stand upon the seat of the wagon to keep dry when he came to town.

Seghers, Or., Resident Dies.

MOUNT ANGELO, Or., Nov. 16.—(Special).—A. G. Steckel, aged 75 years, died at his home in Seghers, yesterday.

and was buried here today. Mr. Steckel was born at Wertenburg, Germany, and came to this country in his youth. He followed mining and farming after reaching manhood, and came across the plains in '88, settling at Seghers. Since that time he has been active in the development of the country about Seghers, where he acquired wealth on a farm of 160 acres. Mr. Steckel had a wide circle of friends about Mt. Angel, and leaves a widow and one son. Interment took place in Mount Angel Cemetery.
