Stanley and Hagerman Show Well in Duel With Big Ethiopian Flinger.

Shortstop Makes Three Errors but McCredie Says He Will Become Better Later-Lindsay Is at Last on Scene.

VISALIA, Cal., March 15 .- (Special.)

VIRATA, Cal, March 15.-(Special) -For the third consecutive time the negro American Glants, of Chicago, humbled the Portland Coast Leaguers today, but the game differed from its predecessors as a barren highway dif-fers from a field of red clover. If was a mighty pitching duel be-tween Gatewood, a huge black, and Stanley and Hagerman of the AA dir-cuit. The score was 2 to 0. The Ethopians drow only four hits off Southpaw Stanley in six innings, but one of them was a homer that singled between Krueser and Doane in the third inning. Their other tally was presented by Shortstop Kores in Hager-man's opening inning, the seventh, in an overthrow to first on an easy double play. play.

McCredie Is Pleased.

Hagerman was particularly effective against the shony hords. In his three innings he allowed one scratch hit and innings is anowed one set at it in inth whifflod six men, three in the ninth inning, after he thoroughly warmed to his work. His terrific speed had the negroes tamed and despite the souffle effects, McCredie wore a broad smile at the close.

at the close. "Looks like the best pitching bet I've seen in the league for years," declared Mac enthusiastically. "No wonder he had the Western League strike-out record in 1912."

Mac's new southpaw Stanley handled himself well and has a baffling assort-ment of hooks and slow balls, but he had trouble with his control in his early innings. In his two hast two frames, however, not a hit was chalked up. In the fourth he retired the hast up. In the fourth no routh the bases two battors in justice in the negro gun-ner, Gatewood, had the Beaver batsmen hoodwinked. He was never in deep water; in fact, but two hits were chalked in the first seven innings. The Portland hopes did bite off two asfeties in the eighth, but on one of them Gus Fisher was nabbed at second trying to leg a double. Kores Shows Poorly.

Reres Shows Poorly. Kores Shows Poorly. On the whole the Beavers looked good with the exception of Kores, the new Western League shortstop. Kores had a very tremulous afternoon, tessing over Derrick's head twice and letting a drive whistle through his atlassed lace. SEALS LOSE TO WHITE SOX legs.

If Rodgers were not ill, Kores could work better around the second station on doubles." Clevelander Returned to Portland Only Little Man in Bunch and Also Only One Who Failed to Make Record in 1912.

BY ROSCOE FAWCETT.

VISALIA, Cal., March 15 .- (Special.) -With seven new twirlers on the pitching roster-only one holdover from 1912-more interest probably attaches to the squad of flingers trying out for the Portland Coast Lengue team this Spring than to all the others of the bunch put together, And this interest is well based, for,

And this interest is well based, top, upon the salary flippers of McCredle's new men, will rest, in a great measure, the success of the 1913 club. Higgin-botham, a Toledo man secured in midseason last year, is the one familiar figure, with Krause, Stanley, Krapp, Carson, West, James and Hagerman as hopes. Not one of the bunch that started with the Beavers one year ago remains to tell the story.

Gene Krapp Still Wild.

Here in camp the opinion seems gen-eral that McCredie has assembled a dandy coterio of pitchers. Eugene Krapp is still troubled with wildness, out, outside of theformer Beaver star, the men appear to be in wonderful shape. Sacramento and Oakland seem to be the only clubs with pitching staffs ranking up anywhere within reach of Portland and McCredia ap-parently need not quall under any comparently need not quall under any com-parisons. A squint at the 1912 records of Mc-Credie's pitchers gives partial expla-mation of the buoyancy predominant in Beaver headquarters. Every one of the new men had good seasons in 1912 except Krapp, and, as McCredie needs only four pitchers working at top speed, it should be no difficult trick to have four of eight right all the time. Eight Winners in 1912.

Seven Pitchers Are Big.

Higglabotham is only one of Mo-Credie's giants. Hagerman, Krause, James and West are all big, strong fel-lows, James is 6 feet 4 or 5 inches tall; Higginbotham and Hagerman, 6 feet 2 inches and Krause and West an even 6 feet. Stanley is no Lilipu-tian either, as he is a chunky fellow 5 feet 10 inches tail, while Carson and Krapp are the midgets. Hagerman is rated as the best of the Western League crop of 1912; West has always been a great twirler at Toledo and Cleveland, and Bill James has looked good enough to Cleveland to earn for himself trials in the Nap camp during the Spring seasons of both Higginbotham is only one of Mc-

McCredie refused to comment fur-ther on his plans in re Lindsay. "We'll wait and see how he rounds into shape," said he. "Lindsay is a good man when right, but he wasn't right half of the time last season and I don't see why I should bear the burden. Now if he is of no service to me the first month this Spring why should I fool along with him?"

It is still a little early to ventury an opifion on the merits of the 1913 Beaver squad, but by Wednesday night, after the hard seven-same series, it should be possible to make some sort of an analysis. Thus far Derrick and McCormick look satisfactory, although the latter has made only one bit in the three hard

He is a well knit, fine looking young fellow of 24 years, quiet in demeanor and well liked by his teammates. Connie Mack picked him up from St. Mary's College when only 17 years old, and, after a year of seasoning in the Tri-State League, he broke in with Philadelphia and startled the baseball world. He has kept his arm in shape this Whiter by pitching an occassional game of ball and should be a stumbling block to rival Coast clubs. eluby

Southpaw Stanley is a young fellow Southpaw Stanley is a young fellow who had a three-years' trial in inter-national League ball, which ranks up with the Conait, and was then shunted down to Class B. Stanley has had two great seasons in the 3 league, winning 23 and losing 7 last year at Atlantic City in the Tri-State, and he should be ripe for the AA again.
Unlike Temple and some other B league recruits, Stanley has been in the game long enough to know all the arts and fine points of pitching, and, unless he has some weaknesses that have not cropped up in the Spring workouts, the quiet German should strengthen the club.
