

"DON'T SPECIALIZE" IS MARY EDGETT'S ADVICE

Young Actress of Baker Company Who Is Real Artist in Indian Characters Admits Qualifications to Talk and Gives Some Original Views.

MARY EDGETT AS THE INDIAN GIRL, "FAWN AFRAID," IN "THE GIRL I LEFT BEHIND ME."

day I'll get her to talk about it for print. It's all mighty instructive.

To resume about the Indian type. Mary's hair is a dark brown, and she has a good deal of it—soft, curling and very long. So she doesn't need the thick braids sewed into the headband that most actresses require in similar roles. Mary just uses her regular hair.

This week she again plays an Indian maid. She is Fawn-Afraid in "The Girl I Left Behind Me."

"And by a queer coincidence," smiled Mary Edgett, "both Indian girls I've played get killed, both are sweet on the hero, and both give their lives to save his."

And then as, women-like, we squabbled over the check, Mary confessed that she wants to take a dip in vaudeville this summer.

And if she does, I'll have something else to write about.

Society News and Notes

Continued From Page 4.

married at the Hoyt Hotel Thursday afternoon, April 10. Rev. Benjamin Young, pastor of the First Methodist Episcopal Church, officiated.

Carlson-Alsop.

John Carlson and Miss Selma Alsop were married April 5 at Immanuel Lutheran Church by Rev. J. Richard Olson.

Johnson-Anderson.

Swan Johnson and Miss Louise Anderson were married at Immanuel Lutheran Church April 5. Rev. J. Richard Olson officiated.

Bruce-Hejme.

S. E. Bruce and Miss Cies Hejme, of Minnesota, were married April 5 at the Immanuel Lutheran Church by Rev. J. Richard Olson.

ANNOUNCEMENTS.

The engagement of Miss Alice Cline and Albert Ertz was announced yesterday at a reception given by Mrs. J. B. Smith. A large number of friends were present. Miss Cline is a Rocky Mountain belle and is a finished musician, the daughter of Mrs. William Cline, of Denver. Mr. Ertz is a prominent business man of Portland, son of Mr. and Mrs. P. Ertz and brother of C. W. Ertz. The wedding will be some time in June.

Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Waddle announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Grace Schirle-Waddle to Clark Richards, son of Emmet Richards. The wedding will take place the latter part of this month.

The announcement of the engagement of Miss Hilma Thersia Gustafson and Roy Winfred Glass was made at the birthday party of Miss Gustafson at the Methodist Deacons' Home, 762 East First street, Tuesday evening. Only the relatives were present.

SOCIETY PERSONALS.

Mr. J. W. Goodwin, of Portland, is a recent arrival at Coronado Beach.

Miss Mabel Blake is passing a week with Mrs. P. X. Marks at Long Beach.

Mrs. Carl G. Liebe has as her house guest Miss Valeria Liebe, of the Dalles, Or.

Mrs. J. Shaugnessy and daughter Lillian are guests of Mrs. Nye, of Oswego, N. Y.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank J. McGittigan have taken apartments at the Wheel-don Annex.

Registered at Hotel Coronado from Portland are Mrs. James Robinson and Miss Robinson.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Logie Richardson (Helena G. Burton) are receiving congratulations on the arrival of a daughter, born April 2.

Mrs. Mary Goldstein, of San Francisco, is visiting Mrs. S. Goldstein at the Seaward Hotel, where she will be pleased to see her friends.

Dr. W. F. Ames, who is at St. Vincent's Hospital for appendicitis operation, Dr. R. C. Coffee in charge, is reported as rapidly improving.

Mrs. S. S. Rich will leave on an excursion to Europe next Thursday.

She will stop at Chicago to visit her mother-in-law, Mrs. J. D. Rich.

Mrs. R. Jacobs and the Misses Hilda and Miriam Jacobs, who have been touring in California, the past winter will return to their home on Thursday next.

Miss Jeanette Park, of 7221 Forty-fifth avenue, was in at present a student at the University of Oregon, arrived on Friday to pass the Spring vacation week at home.

Miss Margaret Park, a teacher of Franklin School, Vancouver, Wash., is passing a day or two with her father, E. H. Park, at his residence, 7221 Forty-fifth avenue.

Mrs. J. Hunter Wells returned Tuesday from Seattle and Seattle, Wash., where she had been asked to give addresses on her work in Korea. At Everett she was entertained by Mr. and Mrs. S. J. Johnson and at Seattle by Dr. and Mrs. M. M. Null, formerly of Korea, but now located permanently in Seattle.

Mrs. W. C. Francis and daughter, Miss Alma Francis, arrived last week from New York to visit Mr. Francis. Miss Francis has been studying music in New York for the past three years. She is prima donna with K. H. Er-langer and has just closed in Franz Lehár's operetta "Eva." She will return to New York soon to prepare for the musical season in one of their big Fall productions.

SPECIAL ANNOUNCEMENTS.

Miss Buckenmeyer's dancing classes. Private daily. Main 7755, A. 1192.

Mrs. Nina Lawrie will read the play of "Every Woman" before the Business Girls' Club, 129 Fourth street, old Woodard & Clarke store building, Monday evening, April 14. No charge for admission. Free to lovers of the drama.

Big needlework contest now in progress; $75 in cash prizes. Call for particulars. Special Monday and Tuesday, $4 extra S. & H. green trading stamps with every purchase of $1 or over. Bring this clipping with you. The Needlecraft Shop, 384-388 Yamhill, two blocks west Broadway.

Philippine embroideries, Japanese cotton crepe and Swiss dress patterns at reasonable prices. Lissa E. Buckenmeyer, The Annex.

NEWPORT ROYAL HOST

PRESBYTERY CONVENES, HEARING MANY ADDRESSES.

Reports Show Faithful Service and Good Progress—Rev. I. G. Knotts Compelled to Resign.

NEWPORT, Or., April 12.—(Special.)—When the Willamette Presbytery met with the First Presbyterian Church here this week reports were presented by Rev. E. H. Edgar, as pastor-evangelist; Rev. I. G. Knotts, as Sunday school missionary; and Rev. C. T. Koehler, as chairman of the home mission committee. The reports all showed faithful service and good progress. Rev. E. H. Edgar was relieved of his duties as pastor, but when you want a peroxide of hydrogen you want peroxide of hydrogen, and not a whole lot better, as it is almost an instant relief for Hay Fever, Colds in the head and kindred troubles. Price 25c.

On Wednesday evening the service was in charge of the Ladies' Presbytery. An inspiring sermon was given by Rev. D. W. Lynn, a missionary from Chicago. After showing the various needs of China in a picturesque way, he rearranged the initials of the words presented, so as to spell "Tray" for the church.

In the evening Rev. William Parsons, of Eugene, gave an illustrated lecture on Alaska, "A Sea Voyage Among the Mountains." At the close of the session of the Presbytery the large new church was filled to capacity. Every session was well attended, the being about a dozen delegates present, besides a good attendance of the Newport congregation.

The delegates to the Presbytery were assigned to the homes of the different members of the Newport Presbyterian Church, where they were entertained and given breakfast. The menu for each day was served in the basement of the church by the Ladies' Aid, assisted by members of the local Christian Endeavor Society. The menu for the different meals was composed of Yaquina Bay sea products, among them being the famous rock oysters, that are found in only three places in the world: clams, crabs and a number of different varieties of sea fish.

The hospitality of the people, combined with the delightful weather and the spirit of fellowship which prevailed, tended to make this a most delightful meeting of the Presbytery.

DRAMA TREAT IS IN STORE

Ben Greet Players to Get Royal Welcome Here Tomorrow.

Students of the intellectual drama will have what might be termed "a feast of the soul" tomorrow afternoon and night, when the famous Ben Greet Players appear in Portland at the Lincoln High School auditorium in two plays of all-time. "She Stoops to Conquer," Goldsmith's famous play, which has been the vehicle by which more than half a dozen famous actors and actresses rose to fame, will be the matinee bill at 2:15 o'clock tomorrow afternoon and the Keen, intensely funny and dramatic "The Comedy of Errors," of Shakespeare, will be the evening attraction at 8:15 o'clock.

The Ben Greet Players are brought to Portland at this time in commemoration of the 34th birthday anniversary of Shakespeare, by the Portland Shakespeare Study Club.

The coming of the Ben Greet Players is an event in itself, and the choice that has been made for the Portland programme holds another significance. It is to Mr. Greet that the laurels for knowledge and understanding of Shakespeare drama go. He is considered by critics of all lands one of the greatest living authorities on English dramatic literature in all its forms and its producers of Shakespeare and other English authors his fame has become world-wide. He has been identified with the stage for more than 30 years and has taught many actors, developing more actually finished artists than any one man, perhaps. For 20 years or more Mr. Greet has been prominent in England for his splendid productions in London, Cambridge, Stratford-on-Avon and other places in "Shakespeare's England."

The Shakespeare Study Club has arranged to present the famous players and has made an especial effort to interest the younger generation in the performances. The brief engagement promises also to be a great affair of the city.

On his recent visit to the Coast, William H. Crane, dean of American actors, publicly remarked that for anyone

Woodard & Clarke & Co.

AMERICA'S LARGEST DRUGSTORE ALDER AT WEST PARK

The Wood-Lark Soda Fountain

GROUND FLOOR

Is made of solid marble, topped by an onyx draft arm, with a back bar of solid mahogany. The Soda Fountain parlor is very prettily arranged amid the palm trees. All this is done to please the eye. Our fountain is in charge of two expert dispensers, who have instructions to and who do serve absolutely the purest and best of all products. A shopping tour is not complete unless you visit the Wood-Lark fountain. Dainty lunches served in dainty ways.

WE GIVE 25c GREEN TRADING STAMPS

Paint Department

We do not charge you for information as to what is the best paint to use in the different parts and finishes.

Johnson's Wood Dye—All colors, 30c to 85c

Johnson's Floor Wax—Natural in past form, 40c to 82c a can. Powdered for dance floors, 25c and 40c a can

Old English Floor Wax—50c and 80c

Liquid Veneer—20c and 40c a can

Olives and Olive Oil

Gallons, $3.50 up

Half gallons, $2.00 up

Smaller sizes 25c 50c and 85c

Imported Greek Olives

Packed in pure olive oil, at 25c 45c and 75c the package.

Fancy Ripe Olives

Packed in glass bottle, at 35c 60c and 85c the bottle.

Medium Ripe Olives

At 25c the pint, 40c the quart and $1.50 the gallon.

Large Ripe Olives

35c the pint, 60c the quart and $2.25 the gallon.

Pfunder's Oregon Blood Purifier

Makes two red blood corpuscles grow where only one grows now. Cleanses from Oregon-grown herbs, roots and bark. Price, $1 the bottle, 3 bottles for $2.50

Baseball Specials

Fielders' Gloves, made of the best quality Napa leather, in brown and black, kid lined throughout, absolutely guaranteed. Regular price $1, cut to 75c

Boys' Fielders' Gloves, made of genuine Yucatan leather. Regular price 35c, cut to 19c

$1.25 Official League Ball cut to 98c

FREE FREE FREE

Get into the game. Official 1913 Rule Book and Score Card Free.

Peroxide of Hydrogen

You no doubt see all kinds of prices and descriptions on peroxide of hydrogen. The Wood-Lark Peroxide of Hydrogen has but one quality of description, it is combined in the single little words "The Best." It is not the cheapest, but when you want peroxide of hydrogen you want peroxide of hydrogen, and not a whole lot better, as it is almost an instant relief for Hay Fever, Colds in the head and kindred troubles. Price 25c.

Weather Changes

Bring throat irritations. We offer the best remedy in the world. Pine Drops, Wood-Lark Pine Drops, Menthol Cherries and other good old-fashioned home-made drops.

Allen's Catarrh Balm

Does your head feel all stopped up in the morning? If so, Allen Catarrh Balm will make you feel a whole lot better, as it is almost an instant relief for Hay Fever, Colds in the head and kindred troubles. Price 25c.

At the Candy Bower

With Double Stamp Monday Only

Royal Nut Fudge, the pound 25c

Rainbow Candy, the pound 25c

Chestnut Gumdrops, the lb., 25c

Peanut Butter Chews, lb., 25c

Allen's Catarrh Balm

Does your head feel all stopped up in the morning? If so, Allen Catarrh Balm will make you feel a whole lot better, as it is almost an instant relief for Hay Fever, Colds in the head and kindred troubles. Price 25c.

Three for One With Double

In Art Department

Three for one with double sounds rather mysterious, but it refers to a beautiful assortment of Framed Pictures, which we have on display in our Art Department, and on which we have placed a ridiculously low price of only 35c each, or 3 for $1 with double stamps.

A visit to our Art Department is a most enjoyable way to spend an afternoon. Investigate our exhibit of Oil Paintings, on which we are making a wonderful reduction in prices at the present time.

Cut Glass

We have just received a shipment of Cut Glass, included in which were some absolutely new designs in cut glass as well as shapes. Now we are showing a combination of old-style and new-cut glass, and our interest is woven with the very latest foreign design of cutting. We have entirely new many different styles to enumerate prices here. A visit to our Cut Glass Room on the Second Floor will suggest many new novelties to you. Double Green Trading Stamps With Cut Glass All This Week.

Sweet Grass Baskets

Just received a complete line of Sweet Grass Basket and Sewing Aid Baskets. To wit, we have on display on the Second Floor.

Don't Forget That We Give 25c Green Trading Stamps

FOR YOUR CONVENIENCE—Postoffice Station No. 35, stamps, money orders, registration, pay your water bills here, buy your car tickets—both city and suburban, American Express money orders. Parcel post stamps.

ISLE OF PINES WANTED

MAJORITY OF RESIDENTS ARE AMERICAN CITIZENS.

Declared United States Property Being Circulated.

Petitions addressed to President Wilson and to the United States Senate, asking that such action will be taken as well make the late of Pines permanently a possession of the United States, are being circulated in Portland. Although there are few people in the city who have ever visited the beautiful little island which lies 10 miles south of Oahu, N. H. Dunsmuir, 1884 Twelfth street, who is circulating the petitions, declares that such interest is being manifested.

The tale of Pines contains about 1000 square miles, is fertile and well watered, and out of the track of the heavy Caribbean storms. Of its population of 4000 a majority are Americans. By the Treaty of Paris, Spain ceded the island to this country in 1898. President McKinley thereupon had it placed on the official maps of the United States, and the War Department informed intending settlers that it was our territory. As a result the island has become a distinctively American colony.

Ninety-five per cent of the land is owned by Americans. When the Cuban Republic was established the Isle of Pines was omitted from its constitutional boundaries. Yet against the protest of its inhabitants a treaty was negotiated eight years ago surrendering the island to Cuba. This treaty the United States Senate refused to ratify, and a Nation-wide effort is now being made to have a new agreement.

FLOWER LECTURE TUESDAY

Professor Peck, of Agricultural College to Speak.

A lecture on flower culture and landscape gardening will be given at the East Portland Branch Library, East Eleventh and Alder streets, on Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock, by Professor Peck, of the Oregon Agricultural College. This will be illustrated with stereoscopic views and will be of special interest to those competing in the garden contest.

On Friday evening at 8 o'clock H. S. Hald will give a talk on Australia in the auditorium of the North Portland Branch Library, 128 East Killingsworth avenue, corner of Commercial street. An interesting collection of South Sea weapons and other curios, collected by Mr. Hald during his residence in Australia, is now on exhibition at this branch and will be used to illustrate his talk.

Professor Ogburn will deliver his next lecture in the course on city government and political problems at the North Portland Branch Library on Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock. His subject will be "The Budget."

The Public Library is desirous of obtaining copies of the Portland Daily Examiner for February 14 and April 1, 1912, in order to complete its file for binding.

A list of books on "How to Make Boats" may be found in the children's room of the Central Library, Broadway and Stark streets.

ISLE OF PINES WANTED

MAJORITY OF RESIDENTS ARE AMERICAN CITIZENS.

Declared United States Property Being Circulated.

Petitions addressed to President Wilson and to the United States Senate, asking that such action will be taken as well make the late of Pines permanently a possession of the United States, are being circulated in Portland. Although there are few people in the city who have ever visited the beautiful little island which lies 10 miles south of Oahu, N. H. Dunsmuir, 1884 Twelfth street, who is circulating the petitions, declares that such interest is being manifested.

The tale of Pines contains about 1000 square miles, is fertile and well watered, and out of the track of the heavy Caribbean storms. Of its population of 4000 a majority are Americans. By the Treaty of Paris, Spain ceded the island to this country in 1898. President McKinley thereupon had it placed on the official maps of the United States, and the War Department informed intending settlers that it was our territory. As a result the island has become a distinctively American colony.

Ninety-five per cent of the land is owned by Americans. When the Cuban Republic was established the Isle of Pines was omitted from its constitutional boundaries. Yet against the protest of its inhabitants a treaty was negotiated eight years ago surrendering the island to Cuba. This treaty the United States Senate refused to ratify, and a Nation-wide effort is now being made to have a new agreement.

MADGE KENNEDY WINS FAME AS STAR AT 20

Playwright Shapes Character of "Little Miss Brown" to Fit Young Leading Woman in Play.

MADGE KENNEDY AS LITTLE MISS BROWN.

MADGE KENNEDY, a young girl of 20 years, with but little previous stage experience, leaped into fame in a night through her impersonation of the name part of "Little Miss Brown," Philip Bartholomae's play of youth and laughter, which will appear at the Helling Theater for four nights, beginning tonight with a popular matinee Wednesday.

Miss Kennedy was "discovered" by Grace George while playing in Cincinnati. The young girl at that time was playing a minor part with Henry Woodruff in "The Genius," her first season on the stage, which Miss George went to see one afternoon when she had no matinee of her own. She wrote a letter to the manager of the play, asking that she be permitted to play the part of "Little Miss Brown," which she was engaged for the number three "Over Night" company, where she rapidly developed such ability that Mr. Bartholomae reshaped his central character of "Little Miss Brown," then in course of writing, to fit her.

Woodruff in "The Genius," her first season on the stage, which Miss George went to see one afternoon when she had no matinee of her own. She wrote a letter to the manager of the play, asking that she be permitted to play the part of "Little Miss Brown," which she was engaged for the number three "Over Night" company, where she rapidly developed such ability that Mr. Bartholomae reshaped his central character of "Little Miss Brown," then in course of writing, to fit her.

Woodruff in "The Genius," her first season on the stage, which Miss George went to see one afternoon when she had no matinee of her own. She wrote a letter to the manager of the play, asking that she be permitted to play the part of "Little Miss Brown," which she was engaged for the number three "Over Night" company, where she rapidly developed such ability that Mr. Bartholomae reshaped his central character of "Little Miss Brown," then in course of writing, to fit her.

Woodruff in "The Genius," her first season on the stage, which Miss George went to see one afternoon when she had no matinee of her own. She wrote a letter to the manager of the play, asking that she be permitted to play the part of "Little Miss Brown," which she was engaged for the number three "Over Night" company, where she rapidly developed such ability that Mr. Bartholomae reshaped his central character of "Little Miss Brown," then in course of writing, to fit her.

Woodruff in "The Genius," her first season on the stage, which Miss George went to see one afternoon when she had no matinee of her own. She wrote a letter to the manager of the play, asking that she be permitted to play the part of "Little Miss Brown," which she was engaged for the number three "Over Night" company, where she rapidly developed such ability that Mr. Bartholomae reshaped his central character of "Little Miss Brown," then in course of writing, to fit her.

Woodruff in "The Genius," her first season on the stage, which Miss George went to see one afternoon when she had no matinee of her own. She wrote a letter to the manager of the play, asking that she be permitted to play the part of "Little Miss Brown," which she was engaged for the number three "Over Night" company, where she rapidly developed such ability that Mr. Bartholomae reshaped his central character of "Little Miss Brown," then in course of writing, to fit her.

Woodruff in "The Genius," her first season on the stage, which Miss George went to see one afternoon when she had no matinee of her own. She wrote a letter to the manager of the play, asking that she be permitted to play the part of "Little Miss Brown," which she was engaged for the number three "Over Night" company, where she rapidly developed such ability that Mr. Bartholomae reshaped his central character of "Little Miss Brown," then in course of writing, to fit her.

Woodruff in "The Genius," her first season on the stage, which Miss George went to see one afternoon when she had no matinee of her own. She wrote a letter to the manager of the play, asking that she be permitted to play the part of "Little Miss Brown," which she was engaged for the number three "Over Night" company, where she rapidly developed such ability that Mr. Bartholomae reshaped his central character of "Little Miss Brown," then in course of writing, to fit her.

Woodruff in "The Genius," her first season on the stage, which Miss George went to see one afternoon when she had no matinee of her own. She wrote a letter to the manager of the play, asking that she be permitted to play the part of "Little Miss Brown," which she was engaged for the number three "Over Night" company, where she rapidly developed such ability that Mr. Bartholomae reshaped his central character of "Little Miss Brown," then in course of writing, to fit her.

Woodruff in "The Genius," her first season on the stage, which Miss George went to see one afternoon when she had no matinee of her own. She wrote a letter to the manager of the play, asking that she be permitted to play the part of "Little Miss Brown," which she was engaged for the number three "Over Night" company, where she rapidly developed such ability that Mr. Bartholomae reshaped his central character of "Little Miss Brown," then in course of writing, to fit her.

Woodruff in "The Genius," her first season on the stage, which Miss George went to see one afternoon when she had no matinee of her own. She wrote a letter to the manager of the play, asking that she be permitted to play the part of "Little Miss Brown," which she was engaged for the number three "Over Night" company, where she rapidly developed such ability that Mr. Bartholomae reshaped his central character of "Little Miss Brown," then in course of writing, to fit her.

Woodruff in "The Genius," her first season on the stage, which Miss George went to see one afternoon when she had no matinee of her own. She wrote a letter to the manager of the play, asking that she be permitted to play the part of "Little Miss Brown," which she was engaged for the number three "Over Night" company, where she rapidly developed such ability that Mr. Bartholomae reshaped his central character of "Little Miss Brown," then in course of writing, to fit her.

Woodruff in "The Genius," her first season on the stage, which Miss George went to see one afternoon when she had no matinee of her own. She wrote a letter to the manager of the play, asking that she be permitted to play the part of "Little Miss Brown," which she was engaged for the number three "Over Night" company, where she rapidly developed such ability that Mr. Bartholomae reshaped his central character of "Little Miss Brown," then in course of writing, to fit her.

Woodruff in "The Genius," her first season on the stage, which Miss George went to see one afternoon when she had no matinee of her own. She wrote a letter to the manager of the play, asking that she be permitted to play the part of "Little Miss Brown," which she was engaged for the number three "Over Night" company, where she rapidly developed such ability that Mr. Bartholomae reshaped his central character of "Little Miss Brown," then in course of writing, to fit her.

Woodruff in "The Genius," her first season on the stage, which Miss George went to see one afternoon when she had no matinee of her own. She wrote a letter to the manager of the play, asking that she be permitted to play the part of "Little Miss Brown," which she was engaged for the number three "Over Night" company, where she rapidly developed such ability that Mr. Bartholomae reshaped his central character of "Little Miss Brown," then in course of writing, to fit her.

Woodruff in "The Genius," her first season on the stage, which Miss George went to see one afternoon when she had no matinee of her own. She wrote a letter to the manager of the play, asking that she be permitted to play the part of "Little Miss Brown," which she was engaged for the number three "Over Night" company, where she rapidly developed such ability that Mr. Bartholomae reshaped his central character of "Little Miss Brown," then in course of writing, to fit her.

Woodruff in "The Genius," her first season on the stage, which Miss George went to see one afternoon when she had no matinee of her own. She wrote a letter to the manager of the play, asking that she be permitted to play the part of "Little Miss Brown," which she was engaged for the number three "Over Night" company, where she rapidly developed such ability that Mr. Bartholomae reshaped his central character of "Little Miss Brown," then in course of writing, to fit her.

Woodruff in "The Genius," her first season on the stage, which Miss George went to see one afternoon when she had no matinee of her own. She wrote a letter to the manager of the play, asking that she be permitted to play the part of "Little Miss Brown," which she was engaged for the number three "Over Night" company, where she rapidly developed such ability that Mr. Bartholomae reshaped his central character of "Little Miss Brown," then in course of writing, to fit her.

Woodruff in "The Genius," her first season on the stage, which Miss George went to see one afternoon when she had no matinee of her own. She wrote a letter to the manager of the play, asking that she be permitted to play the part of "Little Miss Brown," which she was engaged for the number three "Over Night" company, where she rapidly developed such ability that Mr. Bartholomae reshaped his central character of "Little Miss Brown," then in course of writing, to fit her.

Woodruff in "The Genius," her first season on the stage, which Miss George went to see one afternoon when she had no matinee of her own. She wrote a letter to the manager of the play, asking that she be permitted to play the part of "Little Miss Brown," which she was engaged for the number three "Over Night" company, where she rapidly developed such ability that Mr. Bartholomae reshaped his central character of "Little Miss Brown," then in course of writing, to fit her.

Woodruff in "The Genius," her first season on the stage, which Miss George went to see one afternoon when she had no matinee of her own. She wrote a letter to the manager of the play, asking that she be permitted to play the part of "Little Miss Brown," which she was engaged for the number three "Over Night" company, where she rapidly developed such ability that Mr. Bartholomae reshaped his central character of "Little Miss Brown," then in course of writing, to fit her.

Woodruff in "The Genius," her first season on the stage, which Miss George went to see one afternoon when she had no matinee of her own. She wrote a letter to the manager of the play, asking that she be permitted to play the part of "Little Miss Brown," which she was engaged for the number three "Over Night" company, where she rapidly developed such ability that Mr. Bartholomae reshaped his central character of "Little Miss Brown," then in course of writing, to fit her.

Woodruff in "The Genius," her first season on the stage, which Miss George went to see one afternoon when she had no matinee of her own. She wrote a letter to the manager of the play, asking that she be permitted to play the part of "Little Miss Brown," which she was engaged for the number three "Over Night" company, where she rapidly developed such ability that Mr. Bartholomae reshaped his central character of "Little Miss Brown," then in course of writing, to fit her.

Woodruff in "The Genius," her first season on the stage, which Miss George went to see one afternoon when she had no matinee of her own. She wrote a letter to the manager of the play, asking that she be permitted to play the part of "Little Miss Brown," which she was engaged for the number three "Over Night" company, where she rapidly developed such ability that Mr. Bartholomae reshaped his central character of "Little Miss Brown," then in course of writing, to fit her.

Woodruff in "The Genius," her first season on the stage, which Miss George went to see one afternoon when she had no matinee of her own. She wrote a letter to the manager of the play, asking that she be permitted to play the part of "Little Miss Brown," which she was engaged for the number three "Over Night" company, where she rapidly developed such ability that Mr. Bartholomae reshaped his central character of "Little Miss Brown," then in course of writing, to fit her.

Woodruff in "The Genius," her first season on the stage, which Miss George went to see one afternoon when she had no matinee of her own. She wrote a letter to the manager of the play, asking that she be permitted to play the part of "Little Miss Brown," which she was engaged for the number three "Over Night" company, where she rapidly developed such ability that Mr. Bartholomae reshaped his central character of "Little Miss Brown," then in course of writing, to fit her.

Woodruff in "The Genius," her first season on the stage, which Miss George went to see one afternoon when she had no matinee of her own. She wrote a letter to the manager of the play, asking that she be permitted to play the part of "Little Miss Brown," which she was engaged for the number three "Over Night" company, where she rapidly developed such ability that Mr. Bartholomae reshaped his central character of "Little Miss Brown," then in course of writing, to fit her.

Woodruff in "The Genius," her first season on the stage, which Miss George went to see one afternoon when she had no matinee of her own. She wrote a letter to the manager of the play, asking that she be permitted to play the part of "Little Miss Brown," which she was engaged for the number three "Over Night" company, where she rapidly developed such ability that Mr. Bartholomae reshaped his central character of "Little Miss Brown," then in course of writing, to fit her.

Woodruff in "The Genius," her first season on the stage, which Miss George went to see one afternoon when she had no matinee of her own. She wrote a letter to the manager of the play, asking that she