Good Things in Market

CANNING time for strawberries is here now and berries are plentiful at $1 to $1.40 a crate. "Clarkes" and "Wilson" are preferred by most housekeepers for canning, and these varieties sell at $1.25 to $1.40. In smaller quantities berries can be had at 4 to 8 cents a box. Apples are coming in and probably will be next on the canning list. At present, however, they cost 40 to 60 cents a basket, or 10 to 15 cents a dozen. Other newcomers are cantaloupes at 12 1/2 cents each, watermelons at 8 to 7 cents each, California peaches at 2 cents a dozen, the first of the loganberries, red raspberries, and blackberries at 15 cents a box, and a few early green apples. Oregon cherries sell at present at 15 to 20 cents a pound, but will soon be available at lower prices. Gooseberries are still to be had at 5 cents a pound, but are getting past their prime. Grape fruit is less plentiful than it has been, but is still selling at 15 to 20 cents each. Pineapples of good quality are available now at 15 to 25 cents each, and red bananas at 40 cents a dozen.

FRIDAY 13 HOODOO PROVED

Charles E. Clayton, Pickpocket, Admits Date Is Unlucky for Him. Faith in the Friday-13 hoodoo has been clinched and copper-riveted in the mind of Charles E. Clayton, a prominent member of a party of well-known professional "gentlemen" in the pocket-picking line, now touring the Pacific Coast. It was on the fateful Friday 13, 1912, that Mr. Clayton debonairly submitted, in Sergeant Hunter's room at the detective headquarters, to having his fingerprints recorded for publication all along the Pacific Coast. This incident alone might have been deemed fortuitous, but Mr. Clayton recalled that it was Friday, August 13, 1912, when he last submitted to similar treatment at San Francisco. To make it worse, Detective Plack assigned Clayton an identification card bearing the serial number 23. "Guess I'll quit this game and go into real estate," said Clayton. "That's legitimate graft."

At the meeting he will tell some of the problems that are presented by the early opening of the Panama Canal.

Opinion of Liquor Shipments Given.

SALEM, Or., June 14.—(Special.)—An opinion rendered today, Attorney General Croft holds that transportation companies cannot accept intoxicating liquor for shipment to dry territory unless they have in such territory an agent to receive the same. The decision is based on the provisions of the last session of the Legislature. It also is held that intoxicating liquor shipped into dry territory must be labeled as such, and a record must be kept by the transportation companies at the office where received and the office from which it is delivered.

MATT WELCH DISMISSED

COUNTY HEADS HIRE NEW BRIDGE SUPERINTENDENT. Commissioner Lightner Opposes Appointment, Intimating It Is Payment of Political Debt.

Matt Welch, for several years superintendent of bridges and ferries for the county, was dismissed from his $150 a month job by County Commissioners Holman and Hart yesterday, and M. J. Murnane was appointed in his stead. His appointment to the position of bridge and ferry commissioner was opposed by Commissioner Lightner, through whom Welch originally was appointed. Mr. Lightner expects that this is the first of several appointments to be filled, as the other two commissioners constitute a majority and control the situation. Murnane was a member of the Multnomah County delegation in the last Legislature. It was the Multnomah delegation which selected Mr. Holman as the third commissioner after the passage of a bill elevating Judge Cleeton to the Circuit Court bench and providing for another Commissioner. There were several contenders for the position. Murnane was one of Holman's champions, and Commissioner Lightner does not hesitate to give it as his opinion that the appointment of Murnane as superintendent of bridges and ferries is the payment of a political debt. "I have no knowledge as to Mr. Murnane's qualifications to fill the position, but I do know that Mr. Welch came to us from the O-W-R. & N. Company, as a practical man of wide experience in this line of work, and that he has made good. I understand that prior to his election to the Legislature Murnane was running a gasoline engine in the rail-
