

LISTER CONSIDERS SPECIAL SESSION

Direct Election of Senators Is Issue for Proposed One-Day Meeting.

1914 DEADLOCK IS FEARED

Political Divisions in Washington Cause for Contemplated Action if Congress Fails—Candidates Are Groomed.

OLYMPIA, Wash., July 12.—(Special.)—A special session of the Washington Legislature next year, possibly a one-day session, to pass a law providing for the direct election of Senators, appears now to be probable as the result of the failure of the regular session to adopt the Oregon system, and the subsequent ratification of the amendment to the Federal Constitution.

Governor Ernest Lister, although much opposed to a special session, has been giving the subject considerable attention, and he is considering the one-day proposal seriously. He has in his possession a petition signed by a majority of the members of each house, in which the legislators promise, if called together, to do no work other than the repealing of existing statutes and the consideration of such new matters as may be recommended by the Governor.

That there is no need of extending the session beyond one day is Governor Lister's opinion, and he believes also that the lawmakers should not be called together before next Spring or Summer.

Hope Rests With Congress. The Governor still hopes Congress may possibly enact some legislation which will obviate the necessity for action by the state, although word from Senator Wesley L. Jones is to the effect that there is little likelihood of this.

Under the Washington plan legislators take the statutory pledge to vote for the party choice, and, as it is extremely likely that no party may have a majority on joint ballot in the next Legislature, an unbreakable deadlock might easily result unless action is taken.

The Senatorial situation is taking the attention in this state. So far Republicans seem to be interesting Senator Jones, who already has been named as a candidate for re-election. It is quite likely ex-Governor M. E. Hay will actively support Jones, though before Hay's recent victory in the race, it was reported he might be a candidate for Senator.

Candidates Are Groomed.

The Progressives and Democrats are both grooming numerous prospective candidates for the toga, both in Eastern and Western Washington, but it is coming to be the belief of the leaders in both parties that each should rely on the geographical argument and nominate a Coast man, since at present both Senators Jones and Poindeexter are from east of the Cascades.

In Democratic ranks, Mayor George F. Cotterill, of Seattle, and James H. Dugan, of Tacoma, are being discussed, and both probably will be candidates. Among the Progressives, J. A. Falconer, of Everett, now Congressman-at-large, and Will E. Parker, of Seattle, are talked of though it is certain that either will run. Ole Hanson, of Seattle, is said to have given up, for the present, his Senatorial ambitions, and Paulhamus, of Sumner, and ex-Governor Henry McBride, regarded a year ago, as probable candidates, are remaining quiet.

BODY OF SNYDER IS FOUND

Drowned Man of Lents Drifts Nine Miles After Death.

SEASIDE, Or., July 12.—(Special.)—The body of James Snyder, of Lents, who was drowned here a week ago today was found today by O. C. Johnson, on the sands at Strawberry Hill, Sunset Beach. The body had drifted nine miles before it was cast ashore. Coroner Gilbaugh was notified.

There is no doubt about the identity of the body.

Mrs. J. H. Snyder, of Milwaukee, and J. C. Snyder, of Beaverton, relatives of the dead man, were notified. The body will probably be taken to Portland for interment.

HOLD-UP ARTIST ESCAPES

Bank Robber Secures Canoe and Makes Get-Away From Is.

BELLINGHAM, Wash., July 12.—For the second time in 24 hours one of the men who held up two bank clerks near Nanaimo, B. C., July 6, took $2500 from them, and escaped.

Early this morning, while a posse was searching the beach of Orcas Island near West Sound for the man who had a few hours before fired several shots at Sheriff Boyce when the officer ordered him to halt, the holdup appeared and fired at the posse, then disappeared. It is believed now that he obtained a canoe and made his escape from the island.

ENGINE UPSETS; MAN DEAD

William Birkenfeld, of Deep Creek, Is Scalded to Death.

CLATSkanie, Or., July 12.—(Special.)—William Birkenfeld, of Deep Creek, living about five miles from Mist, Or., was killed when his engine on which he was working on the new railroad upset.

The donkey plumed him beneath. The bursting of a steam pipe scalded him so badly that he died a few hours later. Mr. Birkenfeld was 24 years old and lived with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Antons Birkenfeld, at Deep Creek.

Paving Nearly Finished.

HOOD RIVER, Or., July 12.—(Special.)—The extensive street improvements here will soon be completed. With the exception of about three blocks, the Reliance Construction Company has finished laying 20,000 feet of Russian-concrete paving. The three main residence streets, more than a mile in all, are being surfaced with oilbound macadam. Other side streets will be hard-surfaced later in the season.

RESCUERS IN STORM

down the mountain side in the storm that enveloped St. Helens last Sunday afternoon was brought to Etna today by E. G. Steel one of the members of the first search party that fought hardships and storms for three days in the hope of finding a trace of Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Smith, of Portland.

Mr. Steel, who started on his search Wednesday, said tonight that Mr. Carroll fairly dived down the mountain side after Miss Verdi when she became separated from the others. There is still evidence in the snow, where Miss Monroe said and where Mr. Carroll dived after her. For half a mile down the mountain side the trail is visible. Then the trail is found where the two made for safety and later to the Ranger's station.

Mr. Carroll and Miss Monroe now are at the Ranger's station near the Ole Peterson ranch.

Mr. Steel told today of the faint traces found on the mountain peak of the two lost Portland people. The trail was picked up within about 400 feet of the mountain top Thursday morning.

"The tracks end near the moraine," said Mr. Steel. "Just east of the moraine which is only four feet wide, there is a series of broken up crevasses, which could not be seen in a storm. There is nothing to show that any of the party started for the crevasses, but as the trail is lost entirely anyway about there there is nothing to indicate that they did not. These crevasses meant death if they reached them, unless by some chance they got into the rocks nearby or froze to death."

"The alpine staff was found about a half mile down the south trail. The bandanna handkerchief was found in the ice near the top of the mountain."

Of the 17 men who went from the Lewis River Valley points on the first searching trip, six have returned. Mr. Steel said that the storm raged Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday. Thursday was comparatively clear, but the storm began again Friday and was furious for a time.

MOSIER WILL VOTE AGAIN

With Larger Proposed Boundaries, Incorporation Will Carry, Belief.

HOOD RIVER, Or., July 12.—(Special.)—The Mosier people are again seeking incorporation. The recent election went against the proposition, it is declared by J. K. MacGregor, who has been here because of the limited boundary lines proposed.

These have been changed, and the Board of Commissioners of Wasco County have again presented with a petition for an election, when it is thought the incorporation will carry.

LA GRANDE, Or., July 12.—(Special.)—D. R. Fong, a Chinese "doctor" who is maintaining an office at 1214 Adams Avenue here has been charged with practicing medicine without a license. He was indicted by the grand jury, being among the list of twenty true bills. He was released on a $500 cash bond. Mr. Fong has been in La Grande for a year or more and married a white girl here. His initials "D. R." led many people to believe he was a doctor.

KNIGHTS OF THE KING ENJOY OUTING IN THE MOUNTAINS.

REV. J. E. SNYDER AND MEMBERS OF BOYS' CLUB OF PIEDMONT PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH.

The Knights of the King, a boys' club of the Piedmont Presbyterian Church, accompanied by Rev. J. E. Snyder, left on Monday for their third annual encampment, which they are enjoying at Mr. Snyder's farm, about five miles from Cape Horn, in the mountains. The boys will be passing in fishing, daily "chicks" and all sorts of out-door sports. Short interesting talks on woodcraft and subjects suitable for boys will be given in the evenings.

These outings are Mr. Snyder's especial hobby, and the boys eagerly grasp the opportunity afforded for an ideal holiday.

PORTLAND ORATORS CLOSE CONVENTION

Charities Conference Quits Seattle to Meet Next Year in Memphis.

REED COLLEGE MAN TALKS

To Check Increase in Permanently Unemployed Professor Wood Urges Insurance Through System of Labor Exchanges.

SEATTLE, Wash., July 12.—The National Conference of Charities and Correction adjourned tonight, to meet in Memphis next July. The subject of the closing public session was "Standards of Living and Labor." Ray John A. Ryan, of St. Paul, chairman, presented the report of the committee.

The problem of those working people who are unable to earn the legal minimum wage was discussed by Professor Wood, of Reed College, of Portland, Or. He said:

"One result of the minimum wage would be to make employers more selective. Hence some workers, the less efficient, will remain unemployed, unless other social expedients are found to meet their needs."

Insurance Is Urged. To check the increase in the permanently unemployed, Professor Wood urged insurance through a system of labor exchanges, public employment bureaus, closer cooperation between such bureaus and employers, and colonies or other means for the legal employment of the permanently unemployed, and finally the adoption of a National minimum wage law for alien workers, which probably would check effectually the stream of cheap immigrant labor.

Dr. James H. Gilbert, of the department of economics of the University of Oregon, spoke on "Working Men's Compensation Versus Insurance for Accidents." He said in part:

"Existing employers' liability laws are recognized by all serious students as altogether inadequate remedy for industrial accidents. Most European countries have substituted the principle of compensation in some form. Foreign systems afford a definite scale of compensation for all injuries except those due to wilful misconduct."

In foreign countries two more or less distinct systems of accident relief are found. In England individual employers are held responsible for paying a specified scale of compensation, and are left free to choose the method by which such obligations are met. In Norway employers are compelled to insure their workmen against accident through a state insurance bureau. American reformers long have recognized the necessity of following the European example, but two obstacles have stood in the way of adopting some improved system of accident relief.

Compensation acts may place manufacturers at a disadvantage with producers in other states, which still cling to employers' liability. Again compensation acts that are compulsory in form are of doubtful constitutionality. There is reason to believe that both obstacles are only temporary and that compensation will in course of time be generally adopted.

Merits of System Balanced. "The important question at the outset is the choice between simple compensation acts and some system of state insurance like that of Norway. So far as efficiency in preventing accident is concerned the merits of the two systems are about evenly balanced with a slight advantage in favor of state insurance."

A state insurance system affords greater security to injured workmen than their claims will be promptly and fully paid, while under compensation there is no guarantee save that supplied by the solvency of individual employers.

"State insurance against accident, when made exclusive is far more economical, since it saves the wastes involved in the competitive quest for business by private companies. In Norway and Germany expenses of management have been reduced to 15 or 16 per cent, whereas in England the average expense of private companies reach 100 per cent of the compensations granted. Economic considerations favor state insurance where the system can be safeguarded from political abuses."

News From Linnton. LINNTON, Or., July 12.—(Special.)—Mayor Schaffer said today that he thought they would be ready to turn Bull Run water into the new system being constructed within two weeks. The County Commissioners have ordered.

ROSEBURG, Or., July 12.—(Special.)—"My God, is that you, mother?" was the exclamation uttered by Ray Diamond, the youthful Glendale bank robber, as his mother, Mrs. J. Diamond, of Eureka, Cal., entered the county jail here today. Mrs. Diamond came to Roseburg unknown to her son, and the surprise was complete.

Following exchange of greetings, Mrs. Diamond embraced her son as tears coursed down her cheeks. The meeting of mother and son was pathetic and for the first time since his incarceration in jail, Diamond evidenced unmistakable signs of grief. Following an interview with her son, Mrs. Diamond visited District Attorney Brown and pleaded for her son's release.

"Ray is not a bad boy," said Mrs. Diamond, "I know he did not mean to rob the bank. He must have been crazy. Ray realized the seriousness of the offense and surrendered, and turned the money over to its owners. Surely you will not send him to the penitentiary."

Mrs. Diamond touched by the pathetic pleadings of the grief-stricken woman, the District Attorney informed her that the punishment was a matter of law, and was not in the discretion of the prosecuting attorney.

Mrs. Diamond then visited Judge Hamilton, where she continued her pleadings. Like the District Attorney, Judge Hamilton was unable to lend the mother any encouragement.

Mrs. Diamond refuses to believe her son has committed a crime and maintains that he is innocent of intentional wrongdoing. In speaking of Mrs. Diamond's visit to his office, District Attorney Brown said it was one of the most pitiful incidents he had observed during his official career.

Mrs. Diamond is past middle age, and is heartbroken over her son's trouble. Mrs. Diamond's husband, from whom she is estranged, resides at Glendale.

MENTAL ANGUISH PAID FOR

Judge Awards Damages for Failure to Deliver Telegraph Message.

SEATTLE, Wash., July 12.—(Special.)—Ruling that mental suffering caused by the failure of a telegram to reach its destination through negligence is fit grounds for redress in a court of law, Judge Dykeman, in the Superior Court today, awarded $500 damages to Charles E. Corcoran, and his wife in a case against the Postal Telegraph-Cable Company.

Summoning her husband to the bedside of their dying child, Mrs. Corcoran filed a telegram at the telegraph office here September 3, 1910, but Mr. Corcoran, in St. Paul, never received it. It was not delivered to his address until four days after its receipt and a day following Mr. Corcoran's departure for Seattle. When he arrived here his child was dead.

dered crushed rock put on what is known as the Salzman road. This is a four-mile stretch of roadway running from St. Helens road to Sky Line boulevard and crossing the proposed boulevard from Portland to Linnton, about two miles up the hillside. The Salzman road will traverse the route of the new boulevard for a distance of about 1800 feet. The maximum grade will not exceed four per cent at any point and it will be the easiest traversed road of any crossing the hill. Work will begin at once putting on the rock and it is promised to have the first mile done within 30 days.

A number of teams are at work hauling crushed rock from the crusher at Sing Whitwood Court to various points along where street and road improvements are being made. A consignment is being sent across the river to St. Johns, where it is being used in closing the last link of a hard road from East St. Johns to St. Johns proper.
