SERVICES HELD ON BEACH

Bonfires Furnish Light for Religious Meeting at Manzanita.

MANZANITA, Or., Aug 9.—(Special.)—William Hilgers, of Portland, passed a few days here last week.

Several people from Manzanita and vicinity attended the services held on the beach Sunday night by Rev. Mr. Ackley, of Portland. The service was in the open, with two bonfires for light and a big rock for a rostrum. Services will be held again next Sunday.

Professor Herbert B. Auger and wife, of Portland, came in on horseback over the trail from Seaside. They reported a nice trip. They have for years made the trip over the Neah-Kah-Nie mountain to Manzanita. They intend camping here for about two weeks.

L. R. Stinson, of Salem, with his mother and his sister, Mrs. Ross E. Morece, came in Thursday for a few weeks' outing at the beach. They are making their headquarters at the Inn.

Mrs. M. D. Kern and Mrs. James Elkington, of Gresham, arrived at Manzanita last Thursday, and have taken rooms at Lane's. James Elkington, William Hessel and Oza Wall will join them later.

CAMP WONDERLAND FAMOUS

Unique Place at Rockaway Beach Named for Portland Woman.

ROCKAWAY BEACH, Or., Aug. 9.—(Special.)—One of the most unique, as well as the most-talked-about camps here is Camp Wonderland. It is named for Mrs. F. G. Wonder, of Portland, who passed an enjoyable week-end here and will return for more pleasant days later in the season. This camp is located in a beautiful grove adjacent to Elmore Lake, in Elmore Park. It is elevated and commands one of the best views to be obtained of Twin Rocks and the surf. It is bounded on the north by Lillian Drive on the east by the county road, on the south by Opal avenue and on the west by the board walk.

These campers surely believe in "signs," as there are 21 to be counted now and new ones are being added daily. They furnish much amusement to the passersby.

The entrance to the camp is made picturesque by a rustic archway and gate, containing the name "Wonderland." On one side of the gate hangs a Chinese gong and a sign above it which reads "Night bell." A large wooden mallet is suspended on the other side as a warning "sign" to "knockers." A rough board with Chinese writing on it reads, "Dr. Yet I Sing."

A large wooden stake surrounded by many smaller ones and a hatchet hanging conveniently nearby bears the sign, "Steaks and chops at all hours." One sign reads "Mary Jane is here"; another, "Don't hit the pipe." (This because one of the campers hit the water faucet and broke off a large piece of pipe which dangles from the sign.) A large sand bank is labeled, "Bank of Elmore."

When all are in, which is seldom, a sign is hung out which reads, "We're all here."

This unusual camp is run under the form of a commission government. It has its mayor, council, chief of police, its bank and its brewery, all of which are properly labeled. Curfew rings promptly at 3 A. M., as there is nothing to do between that time and morning.

Mr. A. L. Tibbitts is the mayor, and is "out of the city" at present, and the sign reads further "do you blame him?"

Mr. T. Learman is serving in his absence, presiding over all meetings which are held for the purpose of obtaining permits for refreshments, declaring meals in order other than the regular ones, when interest should or should not, mostly should not, be paid by the Bank of Elmore, etc. The sign on the "Bank of Elmore" has a baby sign, which reads, "You should worry and get interest."

Mr. John Jennings, of Jennings Lodge, runs the "bar" and is also chief jailer of the "calaboose." He is kept busy punishing offenders who "speed" on the "sand boulevard" or board walk. Also those who do not present properly filled-out permits for refreshments come under his jurisdiction, as all permits must be signed by the mayor, commissioners, chief of police and the president of the bank. The "sand" bank of Elmore was organized by T. Learman and W. W. Knack, of the Merchants National Bank, who seem to have a knack of doing "things and people." Their purpose is to make change, especially of silver dollars and clothes. They also cash checks (beer) and telephone slugs, but have been known to refuse clam shells. Perhaps it is because they have had to live on fish, fried fish, boiled fish, stewed fish, dried fish and fish.

Mr. Knack and Mr. Learman are also the village comedians, and have outbursts at any time. Their shows have been threatened and somewhat handicapped, however, by Chief of Police Jennings, as the crowds that congregated around the grounds expecting something fell asleep and blocked the Southern Pacific traffic, delaying the morning "motor" an hour or two.

Mrs. J. F. Jennings, Mrs. A. L. Tibbitts, Mrs. T. M. Learman and Mrs. W. W. Knack conduct the laundry on the premises, take in scrubbing and run the "Hotel Wanderful." Their sign mentions the fact that "Boarders are taken by the week, also by the neck," and that "Good board can be obtained at $4.00 a thousand." These campers say that even with all this "red tape" and hard work they manage to take in all the large breakers, four meals a day and the dances at Saltair.

Therefore, this form of government must be a success.

The fire department consists of a pipe line running from the main to the hydrant, operated by Masters "Buster" Heath and Elvin F. A. Learman. This department was kept busy Monday night furnishing the water for the mayor and the president of the bank, who had just returned from an "unextended" trip to Lake Laughing Water at Tillamook. They had a hard time making the bar even with three sheets to the wind, and were tired and thirsty on their return.

The entire camp and a few friends took a trip Tuesday, walking 10 miles to Garibaldi and Bar View and return, where they indulged in bowling. All realized the joys of the trip to the fullest extent the next day.

Mr. Homer Davis and Mrs. J. H. Stevens were the winners at the last bowling tournament held at the Rockaway bowling alley. These tournaments are played weekly.

The Summer season at Saltair seems to be at its height just now. All of the cottages are occupied and many new ones are being built. The hotels are crowded to capacity and tents are being used by a great many.

The unusually fine weather conditions have made it possible for visitors to put in every minute of the day out of doors. Prizes are given to the best waltzers Saturday evenings.
