

YOUTH, BEAUTY, GENIUS AND WONDERFUL VOICE COMBINED IN GERALDINE FARRAR, OPERATIC STAR

Youngest of Great Prima Donnas, at Whose Feet, Figuratively, All Europe Has Bowed, Comes to Portland in Concert October 1—Alwin Schroeder, Renowned Cellist, to Take Part in Opening of City's Music Season This Year.

GERALDINE FARRAR.

ALWIN SCHROEDER.

GERALDINE FARRAR, the grand opera star of Berlin and New York, who is now on her way to Portland under the management of Lois Steers-Wynn Coman, has not only the gift of a wonderful voice, beauty and wit, but she has also youth. She is the youngest of all the great prima donnas, and brilliant as her career has been already, to bring the nations of Europe to her feet, she has still more brilliant promise in the future.

At 19, in all the freshness of girlhood, she made her debut in Berlin as Marguerite in Gounod's "Faust," and was immediately hailed as the new genius of song. This was the more remarkable as it was her first appearance on any stage, and before what is probably the most critical audience in the world. Her originality came strikingly to the fore on this occasion, for she adventurously departed from the traditional portrayal of Marguerite, both in costume and in action, giving expression to her own individual conception of the character; and the most cultured and fastidious audience in the world accepted her characterization and daring departure from tradition. Everybody, in fact, went wild over the captivating young American, who in addition to her wonderful voice had the calm and sure poise which only genius can give, combined with an enchanting grace of personality and innocence that won all hearts.

The entire German nation idolized her, while the imperial family welcomed her as a dear personal friend. Later, in other roles, she disclosed an irresistible spontaneity of humor, bright, delicate and aerial, as evanescent and witching as the humor of Puck or Shakespeare's fairies.

HARVARD IS DEFENDED

REPUTATION FOR SNOBBISHNESS DENIED BY GRADUATE.

Man Who Worked Way Through Eastern College via Y. M. C. A. "Prep" School Returns to City.

Harvard's reputation for snobbishness among its students is altogether undeserved, according to Carl Landerholm, a member of the last graduating class, who has just returned to Portland. If snobbishness existed at the big Eastern university, Mr. Landerholm would be in a good position to know it, as he took a complete course there, paying his way as he went by any kind of employment that came to hand.

Mr. Landerholm supplied a good example of how any American boy who has health and determination may secure an education. His preparatory work began with the first year in high school at Brush Prairie, Wash. Then he came to Portland and entered the college preparatory department of the Young Men's Christian Association. By carrying newspapers he paid all his expenses and in the remarkably short time of one year finished the preparatory course. That he did this without sacrificing his work was shown by the fact that he passed the entrance examinations to Harvard without trouble.

At Harvard Mr. Landerholm was successful in winning a scholarship of $150 a year and $250 for the final year of his course. Aside from this he paid all his expenses by waiting on tables, delivering ice, doing housecleaning and similar work. He declares that the men who take up employment of this kind are received on a social equality with students who spend thousands of dollars a year. He completed his course last Spring with high honors.

Mr. Landerholm is an enthusiastic alumnus of the Y. M. C. A. preparatory school and expects to be present at the opening of the educational department tomorrow night.

PASTORS TO VISIT CLASSES

Presbyterians to Start Efficiency Campaign in Sunday Schools.

Presbyterian schools of Portland will begin an efficiency Sunday school campaign today in a day of visitation of all the Presbyterian schools. The campaign will be conducted by Rev. A. M. Williamson, district educational superintendent; Rev. J. C. Milligan, synodical superintendent; Rev. C. W. Hays, missionary; O. J. Bowman, pastor's assistant at the First Presbyterian Church, and Rev. J. H. Matthews, Congregational Sunday school superintendent for Washington. Mr. Matthews will deliver a lantern lecture on "Graded Sunday School" at 3 P. M.

On Monday evening from 6 to 9 o'clock Presbyterian pastors and superintendents will hold a conference and luncheon at Calvary Church, Eleventh and Clay streets. From Tuesday to Friday there will be a conference with workers of all Presbyterian churches, led by representatives of the Presbyterian board, Rev. C. A. Phillips, of the Oregon Sunday School Association, and others.

Sunday afternoon, September 22, there will be an educational rally at the First Presbyterian Church.

Make "The Portland" Your Winter Home

This great hotel will make you a delightful and convenient home during the rainy season. In the heart of town, yet with a homelike remoteness by reason of its elevation above the street and its recessed entrances which lead up from the courtyard, lending an air of protection and seclusion.

Our guests have the added pleasure of listening every evening to the fine orchestra which plays in the dining-room during dinner and in the grill during the later evening.

The afternoon teas served in the grill are marvels of perfect service, and our fair clientele renders them absorbingly interesting from the viewpoint of fashion. The orchestra plays during tea hours.
