NO JANE AUSTEN ARISES

Feminist Asked to Explain Dearth of Brilliant Women Writers.

LONDON, Nov. 1.—(Special.)—Some interesting statistics have just been compiled by the well-known editor, Miss G. E. Mitton, as to the various subjects upon which English women like to write. The publications of the past nine months have been taken as the basis of this novel calculation, and, of course, it has been found that fiction was the first favorite—but not in the overwhelming proportion that some cynics might have anticipated. Thus, after novels, it was discovered that biography and travel formed the most numerous classes. Thirty-four books which come under the former heading, and 42 under the latter, have been published during the period. Next come poetry and drama, to the number of 24. It is pointed out that the two first subjects are curiously diverse, for the one involves action of a vigorous physical kind, while the other is a mere matter of study. The skeptic who does not believe in the capacity of women to do original work at all would point out that they are both alike in requiring the power of relating what has happened. He would, however, find his theory upset by the fact that poetry and drama, both of which require imagination and thought, form the next class on the list. On each of a whole group of subjects—domestic science, natural history, history, religion—there have been about a dozen books published in the nine months, but only four or five on education, politics, science or philosophy. It is easy to explain the paucity of works on the last topics, for most of them are not likely to be written about by either sex. But this age of education and enlightenment has produced no woman who can rank with Jane Austen, the Brontës, or George Eliot. Perhaps some feminist can explain the reasons for this deficiency in these stirring days of "Votes for Women."

TEN-HOUR DAY FOR WOMEN

International Labor Delegates Close Their Convention.

BERNE, Nov. 1.—(Special.)—Delegates to the International Labor Protective Conference signed the draft agreements and the conference formally closed. One agreement concerns a 10 hours' working day for women and persons under 16, not 18 as originally proposed. The governments signing this agreement will be authorized to have a 10½ hours' working day on condition of having a half-holiday on Saturday, thus not exceeding 60 hours per week. The second agreement, embodying the prohibition of night work for women and persons under 16, caused more difficulties. It was originally desired that the age limit should be 18, but Germany, supported by Austria, insisted that it must be 16. France, England and Switzerland were willing to accept 18 years as the age limit.

NIJINSKY MARRIES PUPIL

Winosomeness of Bride Makes Dancing Master Break Vow.

PARIS, Nov. 1.—(Special.)—News has just reached Paris that Nijinsky, the famous Russian dancer, has married Mlle. Komola Puljky, the daughter of a celebrated Hungarian actress, whom he met at Budapest three years ago. The marriage took place at Buenos Ayres in the presence of the Austrian Consul. The bride, who is an accomplished dancer, taught by Nijinsky himself, is only 20 years of age and Nijinsky is not yet 25. Nijinsky always declared that he would never marry, but he has quickly changed his mind.

NEW YORK, Nov. 1.—(Special.)—Miss Doris Stevens is a brilliant young suffrage speaker who has attracted more than usual attention. She is doing tremendous work for the cause of suffrage in Ohio. She is a college graduate, an attorney and fully conversant with the questions of woman's right to vote and her ability to do so intelligently.

A young New York society girl, whose wedding occurred this week, was Miss Eloise Talcott, daughter, by a former marriage, of Mrs. Edward Wyckoff Harris. She was married to Horace D. Newson on October 25.

Now that their eldest daughter, Olga, has been mated, the Czar and Czarina are looking for a fitting match for their second daughter, Tatiana. She is little more than 16 years old, so she probably will not marry for two years.

Princess Louise of Belgium is again in the limelight, of which she seems rather fond. Her creditors, to whom she owes the enormous sum of $3,400,000, have applied to the court of Baden, where the Princess is living, for an order to place her affairs under a legal "curator," in order to stop her flitting right and left the money she inherited under the will of her father, the late King of the Belgians, until her debts have been paid. Princess Louise, of course, formerly was the wife of Prince Phillip of Saxe-Coburg-Gotha, whom she married at 17, but the rigid etiquette of that court was too much for the lively girl, and some years after she eloped with Count Mattiach, an Hungarian nobleman. When her husband is chosen it will be with a view to political advantage to the Russian government.

Mrs. Edgar Brassey is one of the most picturesque, as well as one of the handsomest of the younger leaders of London society at the moment. She is the wife of Captain Brassey, of the First Life Guards, and a niece of the Duke of Buccleuch. Her sister is Viscountess Coke.

Joyousness of Reunion. (Washington Star.) "Were you glad to get back to school and see your dear teacher?" "Well," replied the very observant boy, "I guess I was just about as glad as dear teacher was to get back and see me."

NEW YORK, Nov. 1.—(Special.)—Dr. Arthur Yager, President Emeritus of Georgetown College, Georgetown, N. Y., has been appointed Governor of Porto Rico. Dr. Yager is 54 years old and has been connected with Georgetown College almost since his graduation in 1879.

Another attempt is being made to defeat Thomas J. Lynch for re-election as president of the National League of Baseball Clubs by August Herrmann and other National League club owners.

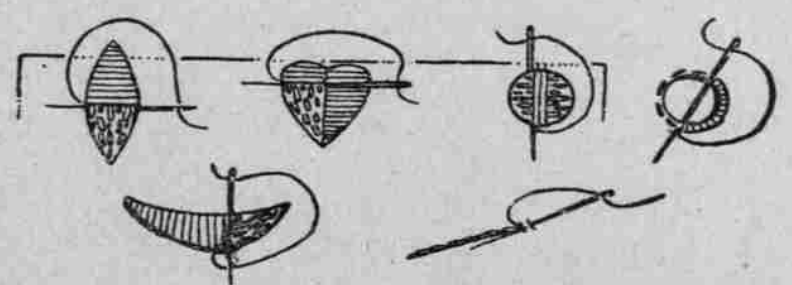

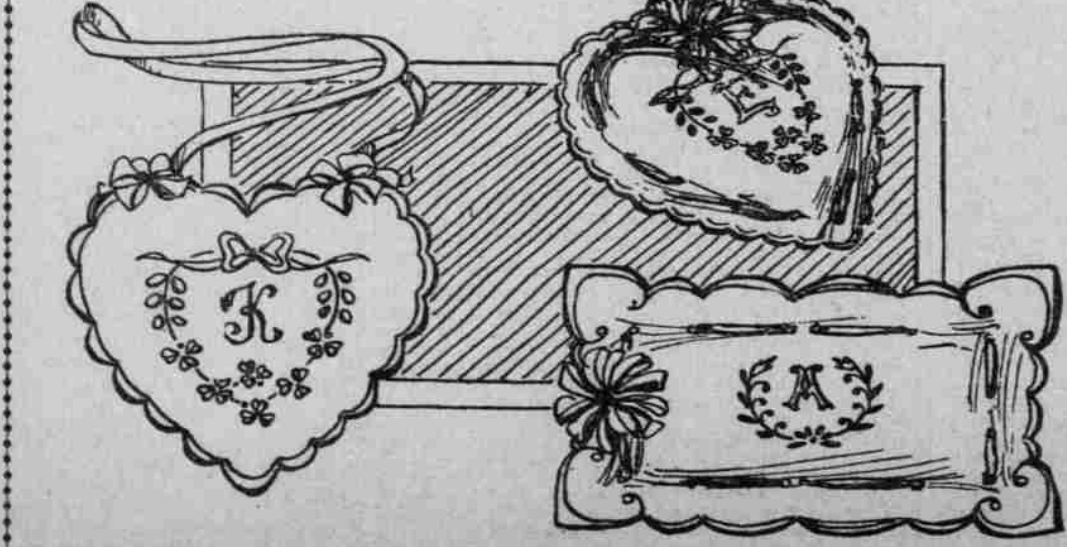

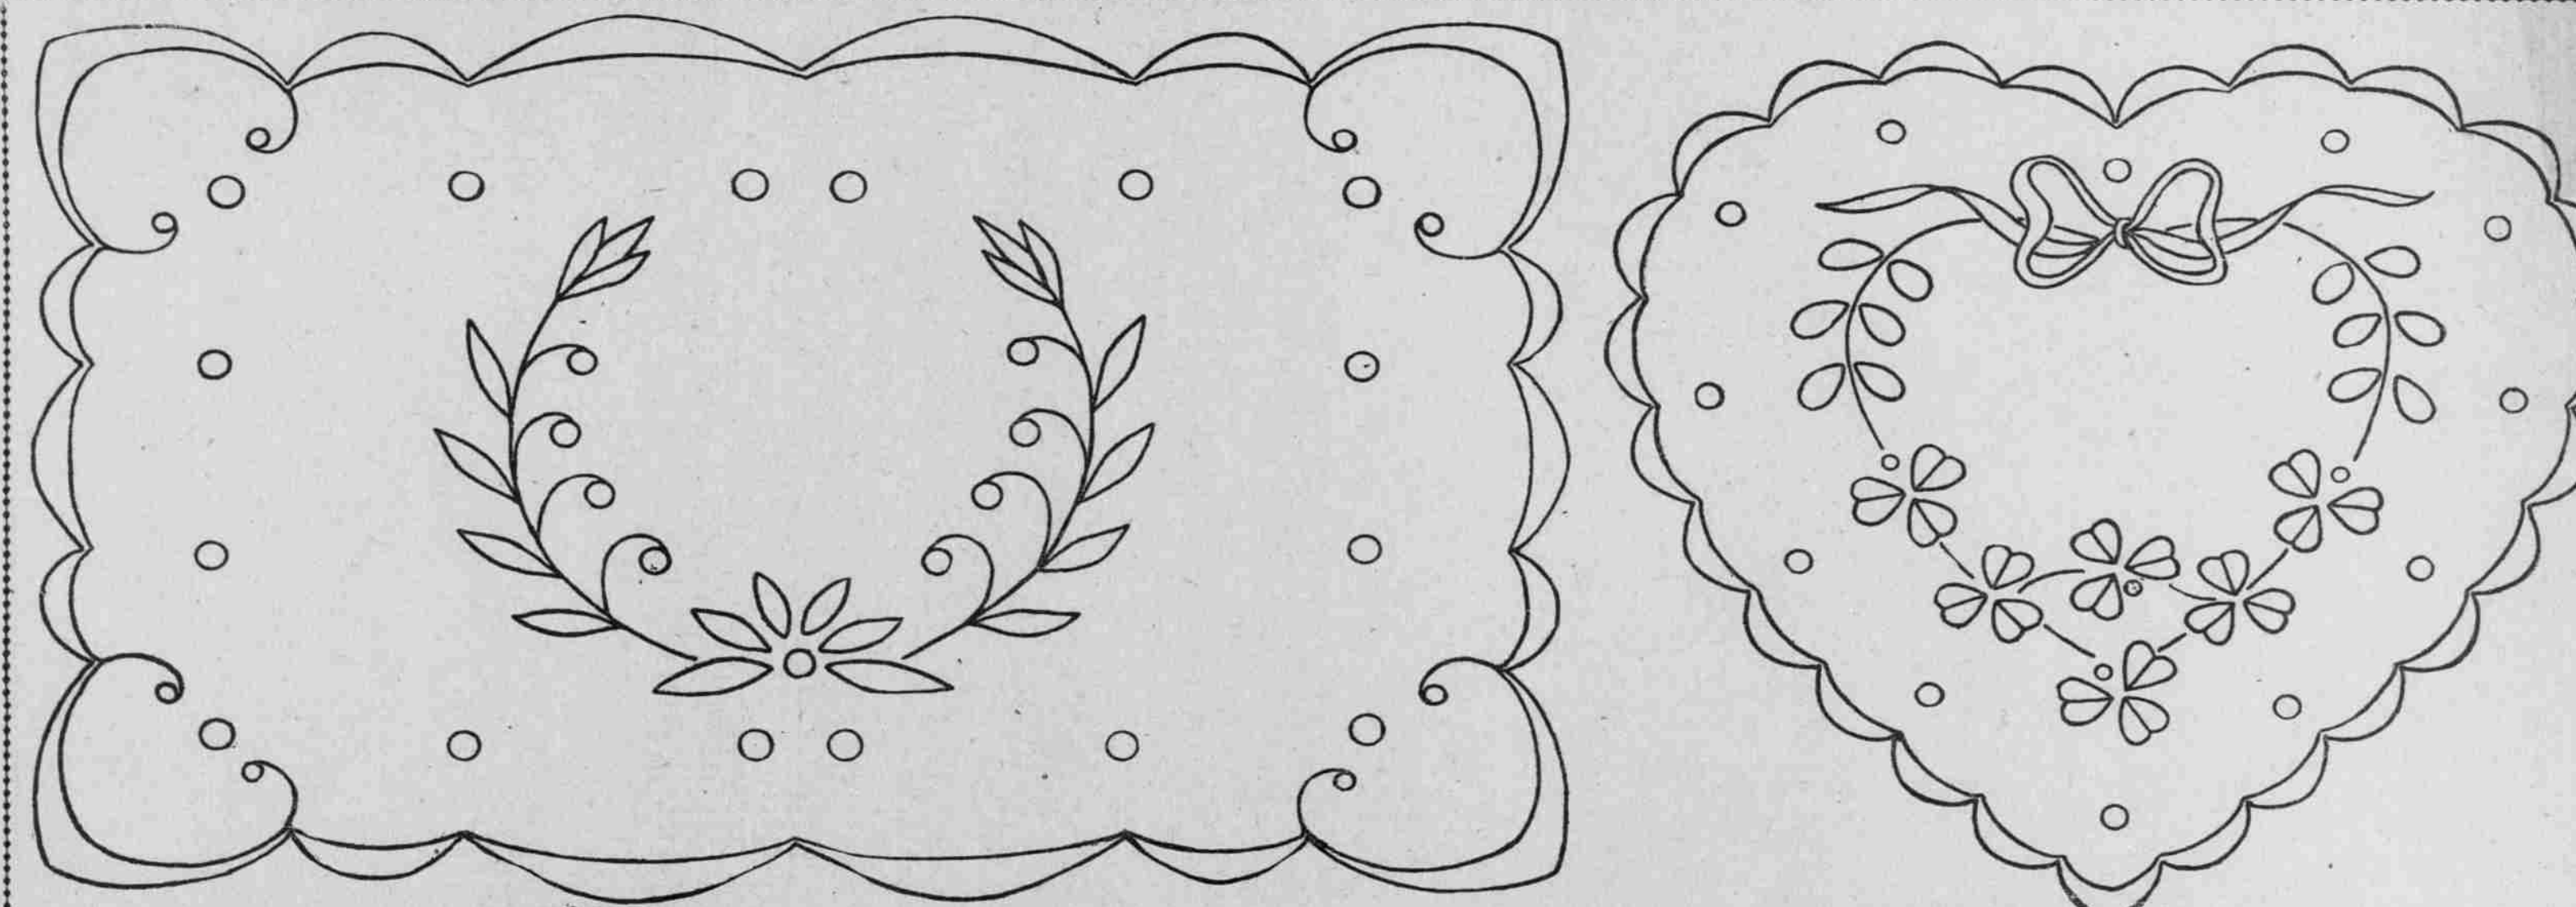

Herrmann is backing Robert W. Brown, of Louisville, for the position. Brown has been a candidate before, but this year seems to have a better chance to win because of dissatisfaction by league owners with Lynch's administration.

This photograph of Andrew Carnegie was made on the arrival of the Mauretania on which he was a passenger. Mr. Carnegie was in good health and spirits. He was enthusiastic over the victory of Young Oumet and said it would be great if the young golfer would go over to Scotland and beat the canny Scots at their own game.

Third Officer Dusselman and Second Officer Lloyd, of the ill-fated Volturno, are two of the heroes of this disaster. It was Lloyd who, when the forecast was wabbling and the wireless antennae were out of commission, climbed the tottering beam and succeeded in establishing wireless communication with the ships speeding to the rescue. Coming down, his hold was broken and he fell 20 feet to the deck, landing on a life-

DAINTY EMBROIDERY DESIGNS FOR PINCUSHION AND SACHET

SOLID, EYELET, BUTTON-HOLE, AND OUTLINE STITCHES

The pin cushion and the sachet make most acceptable Christmas gifts. New designs in these novelties are always sought for and the ones given here are most attractive. They may be worked in solid or eyelet and outline stitch, with scallops button-holed. Detailed drawings show method of working. There are two ways to apply the design to the material upon which you wish to work it. If your material is sheer—such as handkerchief linen, lawn, batiste, and the like—the simplest method is to lay the material over the design and with a pointed pencil draw over each line. If your material is heavy, secure a piece of transfer or impression paper. Lay it face down upon this, then draw over each line of the paper design with a hard pencil or the point of a steel knitting needle. Upon lifting the pattern and transfer paper you will find a neat and accurate impression of the design upon your material. There are two points to observe in this simple process if you would execute it satisfactorily. One is to see that your material is level—cut and folded by a thread—and that your design is placed upon it evenly at every point. The second is, when placed accurately, secure the design to the material with thumb tacks or pins, so it cannot slip during the operation. Do not rest your hands or fingers upon any part of the design you are transferring, else the imprint of your fingers will be as distinct upon the material as the drawn lines of the design.
