Long-Felt Want as Social Diversion Appears, but Tango Is Passe.

IS REAL RAGE

Now Just as the "Common Pecpul' Learn the Argentina Art, Smart Set Flutters to Thrills of "Dejeuner Dansant."

BY ZOE BUCKLEY. NEW YORK, Feb. 24.-In the bright lexicon of the dance-o-maniac, that which contains no dancing is a vacuum Now, the dance-o-maniac, like nature, abhors a vacuum. To be sure, there was the after-luncheon dance, the teatime dance, the dinner dance, then the regular ballroom affair, and after that the late supper and a bit of tango fol-lowing. But, mercy on us, that was finished and done with by 2 or 3 in the morning! A horrid gap was left from that hour until lunch time. A com-plete vacuum, in other words. Some-thing had to be done, and something has been done. The "dejeuner dansant" longer does the vacuum of dance less hours exist. But, mark you, the dance breakfast is not a tango fest. The tango has been banned. It is not done any more in the best circles. The tango's dead; long live the maxixe!

Tessie Has Tough Luck. Has it not been even thus? Just as soon as we common peepul learn how to do it, it isn't done! Society wore to do it, it isn't done! Society wore velvet shoes. By the time Tessie-of-Sixth-avenue got her velveteen ones at two-forty-nine a pair, Fifth avenue no longer tolerated them. And now, just as Tessie has got the 27 steps of the Argentina tango as pat as a cake of butter, the smart set is not favoring it any more. Just Tessie's luck.

But Tessie's right after 'em. When she has mastered the mazes of the maxixe, what will gladden the dance breakfast, the lame-duck lunch, the hesitation tea, the horse-trot dinner, the Boston supper and the one-step ball? Society will have to invent something else. And from past per-formances, it is equal to any emer-

The first recorded dancing breakfast was arranged a morning or so ago by Mrs. John Parkin Gilford for her debutante daughter, Miss Lentilhon Gliford. If the idea is followed up by other hostesses, society will soon be able to dance away the hours 24 to the day, for the affairs given at night often last till breakfast time.

Series to Be Given. There is really nothing to say about replied Mrs. Gilford when asked about the innovation. Thope to give a series of dance breakfasts for my daughter and her friends. There is nothing young people like so well as dancing, and there is nothing better

'I have not seen the tango done for norths. Nobody dances it any more.
"Everything is the maxixe, which is a beautiful adaptation of Latin folk-dances. It is quite different from the tango, contains many beautiful and intricate figures and is altogether charming."

Tango Enters Again.

Another society leader, Mrs. J. Porter Shannon, of 145 West Fifty-eighth street, whose daughter Marjorle knows every sort of dance from the toe pirouettes of the ballet to the temperamental swirls of the maxixe, thinks so dead after all "The Parisian tango is still popular," says Mrs. Shannon, "but it is done in modified form. When Mrs. Stuyvesant Fish barred the tango from her dances this season, the knell was sounded for all undignified forms of dancing in good society.

"The dance breakfast idea is new to me," laughed Mrs. Shannon, "but if this craze for dancing continues I think we shall all give up our usual activities and concentrate on the light
