SHAFT TO HONOR BELGIANS

Monument Will Be Erected on Battlefield of Waterloo.

BRUSSELS, March 12.—(Special).—The Belgian committee has selected the site for the Belgian monument to be raised by national subscription on the field of Waterloo. It is at the northeast corner of the point where the Route d'Obain—the famous hollow way—crosses the Chaussée de Charleroi, and immediately opposite the Hanoverian monument. This position is as near as practicable to the ground occupied by the Bylandt brigade on the day of the battle.

The memorial is to consist of a granite pillar, about 20 feet high, erected on a mound, and surrounded by a handsome railing. The principal front, facing the Charleroi road, will be ornamented with a military trophy, a flag, and a heraldic lion, all worked in bronze, and underneath there will be the following inscription: "A la mémoire des Belges morts le 18 juin, 1815, pour la défense du drapeau et l'honneur des armes."

In addition to this memorial, a Dutch committee, presided over by the Dutch Minister of War, is collaborating with the Belgium committee for the erection of a joint monument at Quatre Bras to the Dutch-Belgians who fell there on June 16, 1815. Both these monuments will be unveiled as part of the centenary celebration next year, for which the co-operation of the British military authorities is desired by the representatives of the Belgian and Dutch armies.

Easy Way to Remove Freckles and Eruptions

Some women have skin of such texture they occasionally are annoyed by the sudden appearance of freckles, slight eruptions or fine lines. March winds usually play havoc with skins of that kind. In such cases if one will procure an ounce of common mercurochrome, and underneath there will be the following inscription: "A la mémoire des Belges morts le 18 juin, 1815, pour la défense du drapeau et l'honneur des armes."

NEW YORK, March 14.—(Special).—Constance Bennett, who is only 19 years old, has won the title of the "feminine Steve Brodie." Brodie was the first man to jump from the Brooklyn Bridge, and Miss Bennett is the first woman, or rather girl, to do the same thing from the Williamsburg Bridge, one of the three connecting links between New York and Brooklyn.

Regardless of the fact that the Mayor and the Commissioner of Bridges had refused permission to do the daring stunt, Miss Bennett, beautiful, charming and versatile, not to mention "nervy," just climbed up to the five-inch rail of the bridge and calmly stepped off.

Her parachute opened almost immediately. Almost before "Dare Devil" Rodman Law, the "Human Fly," had taken his header off the same bridge after the fair young bridge-jumper, Miss Bennett had reached the icy waters of the East River.

Just to prove how really feminine she is, her very first question after being pulled out of the water was to ask Mrs. Law, the wife of the "Dare Devil," if she had brought her powder puff with her.

Prince Paul Troubetszkoy, who does not like to be reminded of the fact that he is a member of the nobility and prefers to be on equal terms with those about him, is here to exhibit some of the marvelous creations which have won for him one of the highest places in the world of art.

The prince is a powerfully built man and is a close student of Tolstoi. He was born in Russia, but loves America and Americans, not only because his mother is an American, but because of the kind treatment accorded him on his previous American trips.

On his last visit here he completed a bust of the late J. P. Morgan. He is now completing a bust of Thomas F. Ryan.

He has completed several portrait statues of prominent Americans, among whom are Miss Barbara Ruthertford, the daughter of Mrs. W. K. Vanderbilt; Franklin W. Roosevelt, Jr., Assistant Secretary of the Navy, and several others.

The prince is a strict vegetarian, and a number of his works plead for the vegetarian cause. After his exhibition here in New York, he will probably take it West.

The world's greatest discoveries of radium-bearing ore have been made in Paradox Valley and the La Sal Mountains, near Placerville, Colo. Carnalite ore, hundreds of tons of which must be treated to extract a single gram of radium, is shipped from Placerville in sacks to France and England, where there are facilities for its treatment.

The great Scotch ice game of curling has an enthusiastic follower in the Earl of Stradbroke, who is a devotee of all the sports of Winter, and spends part of every Winter in Switzerland. He is a man of great activity, being president of the National Sea Fisheries Protection Association, president of two hospitals, Honorary Colonel of a regiment, and member of the council of the National Artillery Association. He has been an aide camp to the King. He was born in 1842, and succeeded to the title in 1888.

Next to bathing and boating, tangoing is the most popular of amusements at Palm Beach, Fla., and old and young engage in the steps of the maxixe, tango and hesitation with fervor and zest. Throughout this popular Winter resort, wherever music plays, and polished ballroom or veranda floors permit, dancing is the most popular of indoor amusements.

There are 22 children in the largest family in France. Madame Malet, the mother of the brood whose home is in Southern France, is still a comparatively young woman. She has asked President Poincaré for a Legion of Honor medal.

Madame Malet has been able to raise all of the 22. The youngest child is 11 months old. The oldest is 24 years.

The breadwinner of the family is letting his wife do all the talking for the medal. He simply contents himself by pointing to the collection as evidence that she is entitled to one.

Greater interest was displayed in the ski jumping contest which was held at Ottawa last month than in any previous one. Following the announcement that the Duke of Connaught, the Governor-General, and his party were to be spectators, society of every degree flocked to the scene.

Alex Olsen was deprived of the jumping championship by Jack Lockerby.

Mr. and Mrs. Myron T. Herrick, Jr., the son and daughter-in-law of the American Ambassador to France, Myron T. Herrick, were striking figures at the Persian ball held in Paris, where the young people are among the leaders of the fancy social affair.

The French have devised a war aeroplane, the first of its kind in the world. It carries only two men—a pilot and a gunner—but it is armed with a rapid-fire gun which was made especially for this use and which can be aimed at objects on the ground or in the air without endangering the propeller. It is intended especially for use against dirigibles, and as Germany, France's ancient enemy, is the country strongest in dirigibles, it may be regarded as aimed especially against that power.

The Curytiba, an old ship, recently was bought by a man calling himself "Chief Sam of Akim," to take negroes to Africa. Sam has been through the West representing to negroes that he will take them to a land of milk and honey, where he is a tribal chief.

The British authorities say the land of Akim is under a British protectorate, that there is no government land to be distributed, and that the immigration of negroes to the country should be discouraged. Moreover, they say the place is unhealthy. The Federal authorities appealed to by the British consul at New York cannot find that Sam has committed a breach of the laws of the United States. He has solicited money personally in every case, and has not used the mail, and his purchase of this ship is made a defense against the charge of bad faith.

Many negroes from Oklahoma have been living on the ship at its dock in Brooklyn for some weeks, awaiting the start to the promised land.

ART ON POSTCARDS WINS

Supreme Court of Germany Rules Against Lower Tribunal.

BERLIN, March 12.—(Special).—An end has just been put by the Supreme Court of Justice at Leipzig to a controversy which has been waged for a long time past between a number of dealers in picture postcards and the Crown Prosecutors. By order of the latter a large number of so-called artistic picture postcards—that is to say, postcards with reproductions of classical pictures—have been confiscated on the ground that they were indecent, and the action has been upheld by the District Courts of Berlin.

Vigorous protests have been made against the attitude of the Crown Prosecutors in the matter by the Royal Academy of Arts, the Association of German Artists and other representative bodies, but the Crown Prosecutors have been supported by the Minister of Justice, and all protests were unavailing. In September last the Divisional Court of Berlin ordered the confiscation and destruction of 43 picture postcards, most of which were reproductions of pictures or sculptures recognized as works of art, and all exposed to public view.

An appeal against this decision was heard recently by the Supreme Court of Justice of the Empire at Leipzig, when the Imperial Attorney admitted that the Berlin Court had placed a wrong construction on the matter. Ac-
