Women Lighten Burden in the Lives of Inmates at Poor Farm for Day.

AGED TELL THEIR STORIES

Appreciation of Officials and Fruit and Flower Members for Care and Attention Given, Key-note of Expressions.

It was a gala day at the Multnomah Farm on Friday. Early in the afternoon the old people gathered in groups on the broad, sunny veranda...

Women Visit Wards. The women of the society went through the wards and rooms in groups of fours. Each woman carried a tray stacked high with candy, fruit and fruit, respectively.

No one was forgotten. Poor blind Danny, who has been blind since he was born, was in a lodging camp more than eight years ago...

Captain Johnson is still there. He is a veteran of many wars, including, among others, the Sepoy rebellion in India and the many early-day Indian wars in Oregon.

Negro Woman is Happy. "My name's Martly—Martly Bryant but there ain't no one ever calls me that. I'm just Martly."

The pretty white-capped nurses hovered around the patient, their hands charged with attention needed. Of her nurse, a woman who has certainly seen better days said, tremblingly: "She's not like just a nurse, she's like my own folks. She's so good."

In praise of the superintendent, Miss Edith Muhs, one crippled old woman said: "You kin just put in your paper and get a big puff for Miss. Here, tell the printer man to make the letters large. She is such a kind woman and we get such good care. Best of all, we eat in the dining-room like civilized folks and have cake and butter."

A man of stout frame but with a slight twinkle in his eyes was very proud of the fact that he could work "I jes' ben out a-hoelin' the cabbages an' a-catchin' wire worms. I got 17 worms on a cabbage stalk 'em in a tin an' fed 'em to the little chickens. How's that for an idee?"

A Chinaman who answered to the name of "Doo" possessed a strong voice, and kept repeating "Too muchee, too muchee. Catchem cake, Catchem flowers," and he got a bottle of water and placed it on the table next to his own bed. The flowers were the donation of Martin & Forbes, and were appreciated far more than had they been sent in any other way.

She Says She Can Tango. One old lady was indignant when asked if she could walk. Walk, is it? Sure I can. Miss. You don't believe it, but I'm a good dancer, and I even tango." But she didn't give an exhibition of her skill in the modern steps.

A full-blooded Indian with one wooden leg, a Russian who is bedridden, an ex-school teacher, men and women who are well educated and others who have little learning are assembled beneath the sheltering roof of the institution. Each has a heartrending story. Some sit stolidly and wait; others keep hoping, but to all the visit of the Fruit and Flower Mission was a God-send.

Mrs. Herman Politz, Miss Mabel Riggs and Mrs. Frank Riggs entertained the inmates of the farm with the musical programme, given in the assembly hall. Never have singers received more appreciative applause. Love songs were the favorites and the canes and crutches thumped encore.

In the party who visited the farm were Mrs. William J. Morrison, president of the mission, Mrs. Winthrop Hammond, Mrs. Edwin D. Whitney, Mrs. James Elliott, Miss Mabel Beck, Mrs. Harriet Jellison, Mrs. J. C. Morrison, Mrs. Frank Spencer, Mrs. C. R. Rittenberg, Mrs. Frank Riggs, Miss Mabel Riggs, Miss Gussie Marshall, Mrs. E. Meave, Miss Louise, Mrs. M. Sternberg, Mrs. Ferdinand Reed, Mrs. R. S. Stearns, Mrs. J. H. Penney, Frank Kuehn, Miss Greta Butterfield, Miss Maria Jamieson, Mrs. F. McGarrig, Mrs. Herman Politz, Miss Lillie Fox, Mrs. J. E. Davidson, Miss Helen Stocka, Mrs. Clara E. Koehler, Mr. and Mrs. F. Burchaell, Mrs. M. Sternberg, Miss Carrie Wolf and a few others.

T. Carwell, with an office in the Selling building. He was awarded the cash prize of $3. The Theodore Bergmann Shoe Manu-

Correct Interior Decoration of the Home Involves Three Things:

- FIRST—A thorough knowledge of the principles of Interior Decoration and the ability to originate distinctive and harmonious schemes. SECOND—The materials themselves and their proper assembling. THIRD—The Workmanship. Experience and skill in the execution of the scheme as planned. The abuse of one or the other of these three essentials can have but one result—the disorganization of the entire scheme.

The Decorative Department of this store enjoys the indorsement of hundreds of owners of correctly decorated homes, not in Portland alone, but throughout the Northwest. The enviable prestige of this department has come through years of experience in the handling of the most difficult problems in the interior decoration of homes. And be it understood by home-owners that the decorative service of this store is a service for all classes and types of homes, from the simplest to the most elaborate. You can safely entrust the interior decoration of your home to us, with the assurance that it will be correctly handled, and at a fair price.

See This Week's Window Exhibit of Masterpieces in Furniture

Also our interior display. The story concerning these beautiful examples if told piece by piece would cover many pages. They are reproductions of the art and tastes in furniture to be found in a study of the spirit and times of the various periods covered in the generations past—for many centuries back. A great many of these pieces are from the shops of America's acknowledged leading makers of Art Furniture, while a number have come from over the sea—all of them are authentic in reproduction of the originals by such masters of design as Sheraton, Chippendale, the Brothers Adam, and in the periods that find first place in the world of "Art in Furniture."

Give yourself the pleasure of seeing this representative collection. See the window exhibit, and, if convenient for you, come in and look over the hundreds of other masterpieces displayed to advantage on every floor.

TRADE TRUTH IS AIM

Ad Club to Preach, Practice and Police True Advertising.

REVIEW OF WORK TOLD

Offenders Have Been Made to Reform, Says R. D. Carpenter in an Address Before Civic Conference at Reed College.

R. D. Carpenter, merchandise manager Meier & Frank Company, delivered an address on the work of the Portland Ad Club before the Civic Conference at Reed College, yesterday.

Mr. Carpenter declared it to be the intention of the Portland Ad Club to preach, practice and "police" truth in advertising.

His address follows: "Marcus Aurelius, the great Roman philosopher, gives us the following statement in question form: 'Some things are hurrying into existence, and others are hurrying out of it, and of that which is coming into existence, part is already extinguished. Motions and changes are continually renewing the world, just as the uninterrupted process of time is always renewing the infinite duration of ages. In this flowing stream then, on which there is no adding, what is there of the things which hurry by, on which a man would set a high price?'"

"Truth in Advertising" is Motto. "We men of the Portland Ad Club, perhaps too much like the average Americans, are hurried onward by the rush of our business, but we have paused long enough to grasp the fact that truth is a thing on which a man would set a high price. Truth in advertising is our motto and our creed."

"I shall pass hurriedly over what the Portland Ad Club has done for Portland by telling you that it has raised the standard of truth in advertising. Some 100 cases have been taken up, and those who had departed from the truth in advertising were shown the error of their way, and either their advertising statements were pulled down to meet the facts about their proposition or their proposition was pulled up to meet their advertised statements, the latter being ever considered the preferable conclusion."

"This work has been accomplished through the law and ethics committee, and it has been the policy of the club to make the work of this committee continue in every way. It has been and ever will be, the purpose of the Ad Club to convince every business man who comes in conflict with the principles for which we stand, that he is making a mistake. There have been nine extreme cases which could not be reached by persuasion. These nine have been brought to the bar of justice, all convicted and fined by the courts, except one, which was dismissed on a technicality."

"Good Roads Day" Initiated. "The Ad Club also initiated Good Roads Day, which we hope will become an annual event."

"The Ad Club further is committed to the formation of a Council of Clubs, which, it is hoped, will result in bringing about greater efficiency in any matter which is for the good of the community."

"Now as to what the Ad Club hopes to accomplish for Portland by December 31, 1915. The Ad Club hopes to continue to enlarge its sphere of action in the community in connection

Individuality in Beer

Yes, there are individualities in beers, just as there are in persons.

In fact, the reason there are so many popular brands of beer is that there are so many differing tastes in any community.

Each beer, like each church, newspaper or fraternal society, has its own following—none can hope to please all.

It is our special pleasure in life that since we began to make Olympia Beer, almost eighteen years ago, it has met a wide response from men and women with discernment for real quality, men and women from whom we caught the phrase, "that malty flavor," which we occasionally use in our sales talk.
