LOCAL PEDAGOGUES VISIT OLD NORMAL

School Heads and Students Welcome Special Train-load to Monmouth.

TEACHERS ARE DELIGHTED

Thorough Work of Institution Inspected and Praised, Domestic Science Girls Serve Lunch and Roses Are Strown.

The members of the Portland Educational Association, composed of the grade and high school teachers of the city, made a special trip to Monmouth Saturday, May 16, for the purpose of visiting and inspecting the Oregon State Normal School.

The train left Portland at 5 o'clock, routed by way of Newberg, McMinnville and Independence. Many stops were made to view the points of interest in the Willamette Valley.

Domestic Science Girls Serve. After an inspection of the town, the guests were dined sumptuously in the large and commodious dining hall of the girls' dormitory, and also the domestic science rooms.

School was in session for the special benefit of the Portland association, making possible a thorough inspection of the work done at that school.

President Ackerman gave an opening address of welcome and urged that the Portland teachers make their visit an annual affair.

For, he said, "it is of interest to education that all the citizens of the state, especially the teachers, know what work is being done at the Normal School, and as the association at Portland has been a help to the State Normal School we hope they will gain an insight into the workings of this institution."

Principal Jamison Lands School. Principal Jamison, of the Thompson School, responded to the address and stated that the Portland association had thoroughly investigated the work of President Ackerman and his corps of able assistants and found the work to be of a superior quality.

after 5 o'clock. This has been the first time that the Normal School has been visited by so large a number of teachers, and the first time as well by the Portland association.

While the institution was being inspected the girl students beautifully decorated the entire special train of four coaches with roses. The train left amid cheers and college yells of the entire student body and faculty, who had marched to the depot to say farewell to the Portlanders.

Institution Rapidly Growing. The Oregon State Normal School, at Monmouth, is the only institution of its kind in the state. It is rapidly growing until now it has nearly 300 students on its roll.

President Ackerman's plan is that all work done at the Normal must be such that the students can use in their future work as teachers. The professional work is given just as the student will present it to his classes in his own school or at the training school.

The return trip was made by way of Forest Grove, George L. Koehn, of the Lincoln High School, had charge of the arrangements of the trip. Principal Fletcher, of the Couch School, retiring president of the association, accompanied the teaching force.

There is scarcely a department at the Normal but that supplements its work with the lantern and motion picture machines, making the work modern in the extreme.

The rural school problems are receiving special attention and one instructor devotes his entire time to such work.

Alumnae Speaks for Itself. That the Normal School is doing efficient work is evidenced in the efficient work of the alumnae of that institution. The following Portland teachers are alumnae of the Normal School, and were members of the party which made the trip:

Lula George, Myrtle Airtin, Mrs. Kate Lighter, Sara Bates, Harry Blough, W. A. Petteyes, Naomi Stangle, Miss Foster, Lucy Humphries, Mrs. Emma Blanford, Martha Bartlett, Mrs. Thurston, Nettie Rankin, Lily Schmidt, Fannie Porter, Kate Porter, Grace Whitehouse, Roena Stafford, Mrs. A. E. Watson, Sally Gray, Ruby Shearer.

The return trip was made by way of Forest Grove, George L. Koehn, of the Lincoln High School, had charge of the arrangements of the trip. Principal Fletcher, of the Couch School, retiring president of the association, accompanied the teaching force.

Do you put your faith in the wisdom of the plain people? "It do," replied Senator Sorghum, "until they get to thinking they know more

NOVEL SELLS; $5000

Sale Expected to Place Grub Street Club to Front.

MARYLAND ALLEN WRITER

Success of Member of Portland Organization, Recently Formed, Expected to Get Attention of Publishers for It.

"The Growing Up of Celeste-Marie," a 100,000-word novel, which, like the telegraph system, begins in New York and ends in San Francisco, with action just about as rapid, is destined to be the $5000 conveyance in which "The Grub Street Club" of Portland is to ride into the notice of publishers throughout the country.

PARTICIPANTS IN JOLLY "MEXICAN WAR" DANCE BY INTERSCHOLASTIC STUDENTS AT COTTILLION HALL.

As a fitting climax to the interscholastic dances the "Mexican War" dance given at the Cottillion hall Friday evening, May 15, surpassed all similar affairs. The whole scheme was made up of war characters, and 10 recruits from the cruiser Boston were placed in a position of honor.

publication early in July, by Maryland Allen, of Portland. The $5000 is for serial rights only. "Celeste-Marie's" future as a magazine serial and later as a book is assured.

Mrs. Allen Charter Member. Maryland Allen, whose calling card is engraved "Mrs. E. T. Allen, White House road," is one of the charter members of Grub Street Club.

Notwithstanding, the Grub Street Journal, which ceased active life in 1927, was one of the most enterprising of old newspapers and journals of England.

The only title the local organization will carry will be the Grub Street Club. It will not entertain the "of Portland" appendage in the hope that in time Grub Street Club and Portland will become synonymous.

The new club later enlarged its scope to include others besides "short story" writers and adopted Grub Street as its appellation.

Club No "Mutual Admiration Body." The club has no connection with any "mutual admiration" society and members who live in literary glass houses are expected to withdraw.

Mrs. Allen is one of the ardent members of the club. She was a member of the original Portland Short Story Club as was M. B. Wells, an old "kicker" of John Fleming Wilson.

The club meets every two weeks from October to June; reads and tears to pieces if necessary manuscripts of the various members, and showing personalities into the background analyzes some of the reasons why the story would be better off in the wastebasket than in the editor's mail.

From Jeffrey, N. H., comes the story of a cold morning on which the lid of the teakettle was found frozen on, even while there was a fire in the stove.
