The procession to the Union Depot first last night afforded thousands of Porting. land people their first glimpse of the queen. They halled her with delight. Radiant and smiling, she tried to acknowledge the mighty volume of police plaudits that greeted her on the milelong course over which the parade moved.

The festival spirit filled the air. The crowd was of unexpected proportions. In spite of the element of royalty that the title of "queen" seemingly would confer upon dainty Miss Hollingsworth, she refuses to be acknowledged as such and maintains an attitude of commendable democracy which the people last night could not which the people last night could not fail to notice.

One of the sensations of the evening was the Royal Rosarian Band. It was the first time this newly-formed organization had appeared for a general parade and it made a distinct "hit." Composed of master musicians and at tired in the white suits—uniform with the Rosarians' regalia—made a stunning appearance, a distinct triumph. The regular Rosarian marching aquad followed the band. They executed some fancy maneuvers, to the pleasufe of the crowds.

The march order, from start to finish, was held perfectly without mishap, other than the burning of a "red fire"

Prior to the assembly at the Portland Hotel, Miss McCarl appeared at police headquarters, where she was presented with a glittering silver replica of the regulation police star. Around the star was engraved, "Portland Police," and in the center the lettering, "Princess Estella, Lady in Waiting," Credentials as representative of the police department were handed her, signed by Captains John T. Moore, C. A. Inskeep, C. E. Baty and H. A. Circle. It bore the counter signature of John Clark, Chief of Police. The police department also presented Miss McCarl with a substantial purse, which Captain Moore designated as "pin money," in money, "Economic Commission, to local causes." Engleholm realizes that if Ali should get out, the grewsome tale of Edgar Alian Poe of what happened in the Rue Morgue would be uppermost in the minds of most folk, and there would be a great deal of unpleasantness.

There is no danger of Ali's setting out before his new cage is ready. The bulk that goes with his 215 pounds cannot be squeezed through the openings he has made. But there is enough peril to make the keepers wary of going too close within the fence enclosing the cage.

If he maintains that attitude up to No-vember he will be hampered in his ap-peal to Pennsylvania Republicans, and especially when he asks them to repuespecially when he asks them to repu-diate the regular Republican nominee for Senator and to support a man who not only is not a Republican, but one who never in his life turned a hand to help the Republican party in Penn-

Aside from the fact that Pinchot is a radical Bull Mooser and is bitter in his antagonism of the Republican party, his candidacy is said not to rest well with Pennsylvania voters because he is regarded as merely a nominal resident of the state; a man who owns property there, but who lives at Washington City, and has lived there for the past 20 years. And this latter fact, apparently, will operate against the Colonel's candidate in the Fall campaign.
