Unwilling Witness Forced to Admit Destruction of Grain Ignited Old Dock.

Manager of Door Company Says Complaints to Police and Firemen Referred to Mayor, Who Gave Allen & Lewis Permit.

Witnesses who wished to evade questions asked by Coroner Slocum and Deputy District Attorney Robison at the second day's hearing of the Sterling-Balogh inquest yesterday found themselves confronted by a set of pictures taken by Robison and showing the condition of the grain piles which are said to have been the cause of the

F. T. David, of 281 Twenty-second street North, watchman on the Mont-gomery dock, where Allen & Lewis were burning up the remainder of the grain damaged in the fire of March, after answering unsatisfactorily a number of questions regarding the quantity of grain, its danger to adjoining property, and its state of com-bustion, was shown the pictures and forced to admit that there was a quan-tity of burning grain close to the bulkheads.

"On May 7 I went to work to burn the grain," said David. "We burned four days, then quit and started again on May 20, and burned until May 31."

Asked if there were pieces of wood, the remnants of the dock, among the wheat, and if that wood was being used to feed the fire, he replied that he did not know. Then Robison produced the photographs and showed that there were quantities of wood and remnants of sacks among the wheat.

Contradictory Testimony Given. David contradicted himself on another point when he said that a week before the fire Wednesday there was no blaze nearer to the south end of the dock than 30 feet. He said that wheat in the condition of that on the dock would not burn 20 feet in a week, and would be more likely to burn two feet. In the pictures it was shown that wheat at the bulkheads was burned.

"Did you ever see that man before" queried Robison, as he pointed to Walker. David looked at Walker, without saying a word, for fully two minutes. The crowd, which became tense at the question, remained so for a minute of the control of the contr

tures which Robison had taken of the Mason, showing her boats and her life-preserver. David was not sure of the life-preserver, but remembered seeing the boats. He said Robison's picture of the burning grain piles looked "like a storm at sea."

David further said that he was sent to the inquest by L. O. Ross, of the firm of Allen & Lewis, who testified Friday. They talked over the case, he said, but he was not told what evidence to give dence to give.

Assistant Chief Laudenklos, of the Fire Department, was another witness. On May 14, he said, he sent the fireboat to the dock and wet down the burning grain. He told of several con-ferences on the matter, in one of which, he said, he told Mayor Albee it would take six months to burn the refuse. He said he did not tell the Mayor that the fire was dangerous or not dangerous. On several calls to the Fire Department, he said, he found the bulkhead burning. He said he made 12 calls to the place between the time of the big dock fire and the outbreak of the blaze at the Northwest Door Company. He was not at the fire Wednesday, he said, because it was his day off duty, and he was out of town.

Mill Manager Testifies. W. F. Greer, city sales manager of Allen & Lewis, said that he was a personal friend of the Mayor, and had burned.

A dramatic scene came when Robison asked David if he were the man who told John Walker, a tent-maker, to mind his own business when Walker informed him that a spark from the burning grain had lit on the door company's platform. David said that he was not.

Robison had David identify two pictures which Robison had taken of the Mason, showing her boats and her life-preserver. David was not sure of the life-preserver, but remembered seeing the boats. He said Robison's picture of the bdrning grain piles looked "like promised. They did not get it out in the promised."

Ross came over, and they seemed distaction appointed because some of the boys had turned in a fire alarm. I finally said that if they could get it cleaned up in three or four days, as they promised. and thought the thing was worse than usual, I called up Harvey O'Bryan, the insurance man, and asked if something could not be done. He said if the underwriters had any influence he would see that the fire was put out. That was Saturday, and on Monday he called me up and said he thought he could arrange it. That day the fireboat came down the river, but it was not to put out the fire in the grain. Tuesday they came again, but it was for a fire nearby. The next day was Wednesday, the by. The next day was Wednesday, the day of the fire.

"At 4:30 o'clock that afternoon when I came out of my office to go downtown to an appointment the heat from the grain was such that the levers of the grain was such that the levers of my machine were hot. I started back to the office to turn in a fire alarm, but looked at my watch, realized I was late for my appointment, and decided to leave. I had hardly reached downtown when the fire alarm came in."

He corroborated the evidence of Leonard O. Ross, when Ross said Friday that Connell had assured him he might go ahead with the fire if he would clean it up in three or four days.

man Drew Funds of Bankrupt by Making Frandulent Checks.

George W. Bohn, charged with embezzlement by trustee of the funds of a bankrupt, will be arraigned in Portland June 20, according to telegraphic yesterday by Assistant United States District Attorney Rankin, following the receipt of a telegram from the United States District Attorney at Covington, Ky., saying that Bohn had surrendered to the United States Marshal there.

The offense with which Bohn is charged and for which he was indicted by the last Federal grand jury, according to Mr. Rankin, involved alleged alterations of checks.

Bohn was named as trustee of the bankrupt business of W. E. Jones, who had a book store on Oak street, in October, 1912. The affairs of the business were closed up and the money resulting from the transaction deposited in the First National Bank. Bohn went from Portland to Lexington, Ky., and checks were received, signed by him, on the account in the local bank.

The law requires that checks drawn by a trustee on a bankrupt account be countersigned by the referee in bank-ruptcy. To obtain these counter-signatures, Mr. Rankin says, those por-tions of old checks bearing the tions of old checks bearing the stamp of Chester G. Murphy, referee in bank-ruptcy, were cut off and spliced to the new checks.

About $400 was paid on the checks that the Government contends were fraudulent. Payment was stopped on a later check coming from a bank in

As to Guarantees

The Department of Agriculture has ordered that after May 1, 1915, the "guaranteed-under - the - food - and - drugs - act-June-30-1906" clause shall no longer appear on labels.

The statement made nearly everybody think the food product so labeled was guaranteed by the Government, whereas the manufacturer merely protected the dealer from liability.

Yet we had to use the clause because consumers had been used to expect it.

The Government will continue to inspect food products sold in the open market and to hold manufacturers respon-
