COLONEL PLANS TO

Third Party Campaign Now to Be Concentrated Chiefly on New York State.

DRIFT IS PLAINLY SEEN

Decision to Indorse Republican Candidates Shows Roosevelt Is Not Being Deceived Into Over-Confidence.

OREGONIAN NEWS BUREAU, Washington, June 6 .- When Colonel Roosevelt first returned from South America it was announced that he would make a nation-wide campaign in behalf of a nation-wide campaign in benaif of candidates nominated by the third par-ty for seats in the Senate and House of Representatives, and for the Gover-norship in several states. As he sailed for Spain the Colonel gave out an au-thorized statement to the effect that he would concentrate his political ef-forts largely to he sate of New York this Fall.

Some months ago the third party leaders in Congress made the announce, ment that a third party candidate would be put in the field in each congressional district, and in each state where a United States Senator is to be elected this year. Just before Colonel Roosevelt set sail for Europe it was announced officially that the Progressives would indorse Republican nominees wherever suitable men were nominated by the Republicans, and where the Republican platform met with the approval of the Progressives.

Advisors Not Fooling Colonel. These developments are regarded by politicians as significant in themselves, but considered in connection with re-turns from special elections, such as that in New Jersey, and in further con-nection with primary returns, such as those in Oregon, they assume even greater significance. They demonstrate that Colonel Roosevelt has not been deceived by the colored reports made to him by such men as George W. Perkins, Gifford Pinchot, Bill Flinn and others who were his chief supporters

There seems to be no doubt that Colonel Roosevelt, sooner or later, will turn up in the Republican ranks. He is not expected to make the flop suddenly, for he must placate the men who stood with him in 1912 and who are insisting he must keep open the breach in the Republican party. It is not to be pre-sumed that a man of Colonel Roose-velt's political acumen would think for a minute that a party that has lan-guished, as has the Progressive party in the past year, can hope to swallow the Republican party of today. Republican Remedies Indorsed.

So far as criticising and condemning the Democratic Administration on the tariff, on its foreign policy and on its legislative policy is concerned, there is no difference between Colonel Roose-velt and the Republican leaders in Con-gress. The things he condemns are Republican Leader Mann said Mr. Folk was appointed "chiefly because he was a Democratic candidate for the presidency who falled to be elected."

In the course of the discussion Chairman Fitzgerald, of the appropriation committee, read a letter from President Wilson relating to the Panama commission. Republican Leader Mann immediately called attention to the House rule requiring the President and derule requiring the President and de-partment heads to address all official communications to the Speaker.

"These secret and personal communi-cations from the President and mem-bors of the Cabinet to chairmen of committees of this House are one of the grossest abuses of the present con-duct of the Government," said Mr.
