CHEHALIS, Wash. July 11.—(Spe-cial.)—Word has been received in Che-halis of the death at Kemmerer, Wyo., of John Westlund, a well-known mer-chant of this city. A few weeks ago Mr. Westlund, who is in charge of the L. Chemper, the state of the state J. C. Penney Company store here, left for the East on a buying trip. While for the East on a buying trip. While visiting near Kemmerer he was hurt in an automobile accident, sustaining a broken leg. Later complications set in and Mr. Westlund's death occurred. A little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Westlund also is dangerously ill with preumonia, contracted after a hasty trip to the dying man's bedside by Mrs. Westlund. The dead man was about 35 years of age and leaves a widow and one child to mourn his death. He formerly lived at Bellingham, Wash.

VACANT ACREAGE GREATER Walla Walla County Entres Canceled

WALLA WALLA, Wash, July 11.-(Special.) - More homestead entries were made in Asotin County last year than in all the rest of the district. During June there were 46 entries filed, most of them in Asotin County, nearly all being additional entries by homesteadars who had filed on 169 acres or less prior to the setting apart of the land as 320 homestead land. The following fable shows the acreage of vacant land in the countless July 1, as compared with a year ago. Countles-WALLA WALLA, Wash., July 11.-(Special.)-The annual report of the PULLMAN, Wash., July 11 .- (Spe clal)-Throughout the Palouse coun-try and well over into the dry belts of the Big Bend and Central Washing-ton there is prospect of bumper crops of wheat, oats, barley and hay. There is undoubtedly the greatest acreage of corn, field peas, clover and alfala which has ever been grown in these regions.

One interesting item comes up con-cerning feterita, tried widely throughout Eastern Washington this year. R. G. Adams, agricultural agent of Adams County, reports that quite universally it is a failure. Notwithstanding the large acreage of

Notwithstanding the large acreage of wheat through the more humid sections of Eastern Washington and the large prospective total yield, the smut prob-lem this year promises to be serious. Farmers in the viornity of Pullman, who treated their wheat severely with vitriol or formaldehyde, estimate from 20 to 30 per cent smut on old ground
