In any settlement which may be reached the men's programme is bound to be a prominent factor, and it is a matter for congratulation that the delegates at Swanses were content to accept the proposals put forward on behalf of the executive and not to insist on the revolutionary proposals advanced by certain extremists.

The programme outlined by the ex-

Principal Nathan Helm, of the Evanston Academy, says that Hansen is the most traveled and world-wise student who has ever entered his school. Hansen was born 22 years ago in Bodo, Norway. When 11 years old his father, a naval officer, was drowned before the view of him and his mother. With $70 young Hansen started his career as a sailor.

He visited nearly all the ports of the world. In Rome and Venice he studied the paintings and sculpture in the art galleries. When 16, Hansen enlisted in the French army in Algiers, Africa. He went to a grand ball, and because he danced several times with the daughter of his captain he was forced to fight a duel with the Duke of Auvergne. He put the Duke in the hospital and he bears scars from the encounter.

In 1911 Hansen enlisted in the United States Army, where he was converted. He is anxiously awaiting his naturalization papers so that he may accept a position on the life-saving crew in Evanston as a means of getting through school.
