Without Bookies or the Parimutuel, Harness Game Drops Attractiveness.

J. C. B. TAKES BIG PURSE

Finest Event of Day Is Mile Running Race for Which Five Horses Face Starter—Paddy Button Carries Off Prize.

It would seem as though harness racing, without the bookies or the Parimutuel, is never to be a great success again in Portland from the viewpoint of attracting spectators.

The 2:18 "Made in Oregon" club purse of $500 drew eight starters out of a field of 12 entries on a different horse won each of the first three heats.

The finest race of the day, though, was the mile running race, for which five horses faced the starter, with Paddy Button a slight favorite over Leo H.

In the half-mile consolation running race Tampa was easily by over half a length from Sea Fowl and Gray Bob

LOSS OF TENNIS CUP STARS CRITICISM

McLoughlin Blamed for Selecting Weakening Tom Bundy as His Partner.

MURRAY-CHIP BOUT NEXT

Petaluma Middleweight Drops Contest and Starts Training Early.

Newcastle Pug Is Hard Worker—Ritchie Rests Yet.

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., Aug. 22.—(Special.)—Quite a heated discussion has arisen in San Francisco, the home of such tennis players of National reputation as champion Maurice McLoughlin, William Johnston, Clarence Griffin, E. Pottrill, Lyn Murray, Johnny Strachan and others, over the loss of the Davis cup. Local tennis enthusiasts have criticized McLoughlin and the United States Davis cup committee freely for the defeat in doubles, the match that gave Australia the 3rd match to annex the tennis team championship of the world.

McLoughlin is taken to task for insisting that the committee name Tom Bundy, of Los Angeles, in the important play when all experts and well-wishers of the American team pointed out that Bundy was playing away below his form. Reports of the match say McLoughlin was called upon to cover too much ground and weakened in the end. A stronger partner would have changed the result perhaps.

Committee is Upheld.

The committee is criticized for naming Karl Behr on the Davis team and leaving off superior players, such as Clothier, Johnston and Maurice McLoughlin. The committee was swayed by Behr's popularity in the East and the desire to have an Easterner in the international competition. The loss of the cup has certainly been keenly felt here.

Much credit is due and given McLoughlin, however, for his brilliant playing in defeating both Brookes and Johnston in the singles, and plans are afoot to welcome him home with a monster banquet. He will participate in two more important tournaments in the East, namely, the one at San Francisco the early part of next month.

Billy Murray has made an impression by the business-like manner in which he has commenced his training for his return 30-round bout with George Chip on Admission day. Early in the week he moved right to Colma at 3700th Street and started to hammer away at the conditioning grind. This is in direct opposition to the way he commenced for the first fight in Colma, where he was almost forced to make Murray go into his quarters a couple of weeks before the go. Then, during the training session, the Petaluma middleweight was different and went about his exercise half-heartedly.

"Swell-Head" Tactics Blamed.

It is recalled that on the day Murray was privileged to box before 300 or 400 members of the club and fashionable Olympic Club, he permitted his sparring mates to cuff him around the ring at will. Getting right down to tacks, Murray was almost an aggravated attack of "swell-headedness."

Evidently, however, Murray has learned his lesson. At least, he has commenced his training in a business-like manner and started to hammer away at the conditioning grind. This is in direct opposition to the way he commenced for the first fight in Colma, where he was almost forced to make Murray go into his quarters a couple of weeks before the go. Then, during the training session, the Petaluma middleweight was different and went about his exercise half-heartedly.
