HERZOG IS FOE OF NEW YORK GIANTS

Ex-Member Circulates Weaknesses of McGraw's Team to Their Opponents.

DONLIN'S HOOTS ARE CAUSE

Manager of Reds Feels Stings and Is Doing His Best to Beat ex-Playing Mates - Bresnahan Cub Manager, Forecast.

BY CHRISTY MATHEWSON, The Giants' Star Pitcher,

YORK, Sept. 5 .- (Special.)-There is one man who would be glad to see the Glants beaten out of the championship this year, and he is Charley Herzog, the manager of the Cincinnati Reds, and at two separate times in his career a member of the New York club. He feels bitterly toward his old team, and every time the Reds have faced the Giants this season he has driven the Reds to death to beat us, and with fair success.

Men on other clubs have told me that Herzog is so anxious to see the Giants lose that he has informed contenders what he thought the weaknesses of the club and of the men on it are, as he believes he knows them. Herzog was never bitter toward the Giants until there was some kidding back and forth during the first series between the two teams this season.

"Mike" Donlin, on the coaching lines, "Mike" Donlin, on the coaching lines, kept after Herzog pretty hard, and it got under the skin of the Cincinnati manager. Then he also was a little touchy over the fact that he had sat on the bench part of last season when he was replaced by Shafer, and he was tickled to death when Shafer threw the club down this year.

Herzog Trade Due to Mistake.

Herzog Trade Due to Mistake.

If McGraw had not been in the middle of the Pacific Ocean last Winter when the opportunity for Herzog to manage the Reds, if a trade could be swung, bobbed up, Charley would even now be a member of the Giants, and the team would be well in front in the present race, too, I believe. McGraw left instructions that Herzog was not to be traded to Cincinnati unless those in charge were sure that Shafer would report. There was a misunderstanding, and the impression existed in New York that McGraw had said Shafer would report. The Giants' manager had New York that McGraw and said Sander would report. The Giants' manager had a talk with the temperamental third baseman when the world's tourists were in Los Angeles, but could get no defi-nite answer out of Shafer at that time. nite answer out of Shafer at that time.
During the league meeting, when Herrmann offered Herzog the Cincinnati job, "Charley" was anxious to get it and pushed the deal hard. He was finally traded and then Shafer came along with his announcement that he was through with baseball for good.
McGraw was not at all satisfied with the deal.
"It looks," said he when he returned

"It looks," said he when he returned from his trip around the world, "as if I had been traded right out of a third baseman. It would be a fine thing if we lost a championship because of it."

we lost a championship because of it."

McGraw Usually Alda Men.

It has always been McGraw's policy not to stand in the way of veterans of his club when they have a chance to get a better job by taking charge of a team. He helped Roger Bresnahan to land in St. Louis, and he did not try to hold Wilbert Robinson when he was offered the job in Brooklyn, although he would have liked "Robbie' to handle his pitchers again. But Herzog was comparatively young in the game. He got his first start with the Giants in 1908, and McGraw thought that there was time enough ahead for him to go to managing, especially as the deal to managing, especially as the deal left him shy of a third baseman.

The fact, the court of the state of the stat I don't for a minute believe that anything Herzog may have told the members and managers of other clubs of the supposed weaknesses of the Giants has hurt the New York team. He does not know any more about the flaws of the club than does the average manager who has been in the league for a year or two, and, besides, it is hard to get knowledge of any great value.

the Cubs of yesteryear?"

Gone—all gone!

Of that famous Chicago club of 1996, probably the greatest baseball machine ever constructed, there is only one player remaining—Frank Schulte, the "home run king" of bygone days.

The title of Chicago Nationals more often is applied of late than the handle of Cubs. And today, as you watch that team, you wonder, Eight years ago you wondered also—but in a much different way. Then it was you wondered how it came such a galaxy of scintillating players ever were gathered on one team. Now you can ask yourself where they have gone.

"Ir's the league against New York. I feel like Kaiser Bill." So complains Muggsy McGraw. The Giant pilot had nothing else to do than to register a kick. The Cub-Giant combat was canceled, Muggsy's athletes had departed for a fling at the P. G., and the little general was left to himself and solitude in a hostile country.

McGraw was deep in thought and deep in a huge leather chair in the loby of a Michigan-avenue sleep foundry when accosted by a heartless interviewer. "Well, what do you think of it?" was hurfieldly nred at the scrappy general.
