

TWO PROGRESSIVES RETIRED BY VOTERS

Washington Representatives Lay Their Defeat to Absence From State.

SENATORIAL RACE IS CLOSE

Vote for Supreme Bench Members Big Surprise, as All Were Expected to Stand or Fall Together—Other Signs Upset.

OLYMPIA, Wash., Sept. 12.—(Special.)—The retirement to private life of Washington's Progressive party representatives, J. A. Falconer, of Everett, and J. W. Bryan, of Seattle, is the feature of returns from last Tuesday's primaries that is attracting chief interest throughout the state. Falconer and Bryan both graduated from the State Senate into Congress in the fall of 1912, being rushed into office by the Roosevelt vote that swept the State of Washington. In the State Legislature the two men generally had differed on political issues and rarely voted the same way. In Congress their harmony was little more noticeable. Both announced their candidacies several months ago, for the Senatorial nomination of their party. Bryan resigned later and became a candidate for the lower house in the First or Seattle district, but was repudiated by his own party, Chief of Police Griffiths, of Seattle, winning the Progressive nomination.

Close political friends of Falconer sought to dissuade him also from seeking the Senatorial toga, but his judgment that he could have been re-nominated and probably re-elected from the Second or Northwestern district, the Bull Moose stronghold of the State, the urging of other advisers, however, induced the Everett man to continue the Senatorial race, in which Ole Hanson won the Progressive nomination as the result of a particularly thorough campaign of the state.

Defeat Blamed to Absence.
Falconer has had a long political career, having been Speaker of the lower house of the Washington Legislature before being elected to the Senate. He declined to stand for the Presidency of the Senate in 1911.

Supporters of both Falconer and Bryan attribute their defeat to their enforced absence from the state, caused by the continuation of the session of Congress. Neither left the National capital to prosecute his campaign.

It is regarded as significant, however, that, while the three Republican Representatives, William E. Humphrey, in the First district; Albert Johnson, in the Third, and William L. La Follette, in the Fourth, also remained at Washington, each was re-nominated by a sweeping majority. Humphrey received practically twice the number of first-choice votes given his three opponents combined.

The surprise of the primaries to most political prognosticators was the Supreme Court race. J. William Crow and Judge Chadwick and Gose all running for re-election and concerted campaigns in their behalf being made by attorneys, it was believed generally that the three candidates would be re-elected or would fall together. Instead, Judge Chadwick ran far ahead of the others and apparently has won the election at the primaries by receiving more than 50 per cent of the total vote cast. Chief Justice Crow will be one of four candidates whose names will appear on the November ballot for the two remaining places. Judge Gose has lost out altogether. The work of the court kept all three Judges close at their tasks here, while most of their opponents had been free to campaign the state. Judge Gose has been accounted one of the ablest of the nine members of the court.

Humphries Vote Is Surprise.
The surprisingly large vote received throughout the state by Judge Humphries, of Seattle, also was a feature of the campaign. While Judge Humphries' name will not appear on the November ballot, should it prove true, as is now supposed, that Judge Chadwick has received a majority of all votes cast, returns show that the Seattle jurist, who attained Nation-wide prominence as the result of his troubles with Socialists and I. W. W.'s, has beaten Judge Gose in the state vote.

The three men who will contest with Chief Justice Crow for the two remaining seats on the Supreme bench are Superior Judge Holcomb, of Adams County; Superior Judge Pemberton, of Whatcom County; and Edgar G. Miles, of Seattle, an attorney, recently from Wisconsin. These were the three men endorsed by the "joint legislative committee," representing the State Federation of Labor, State Grange and Farmers Union. The Judgeship fight is only one of the lines of political endeavor undertaken by this triple alliance. The "joint legislative committee" also stood sponsor for the "seventeen sisters" initiative measures, five of which now are before the Supreme Court for final decision. The committee also is engaged in pleading candidates for the Legislature to vote for a proposed constitutional amendment which will allow future constitutional amendments to be proposed directly by the initiative without first passing through the Legislature.

Turner Looks Like Winner.
Incomplete returns from all counties in the state give George Turner a majority of 261 votes over William W. Black for the Democratic nomination for United States Senator. The vote as received so far gives Turner 11,704 and Black 11,440.

Friends of Judge Black say that the official count will change the situation. It is pointed out that in four of the largest counties of the state—King, Pierce, Chelan and Lewis—it has been impossible to get satisfactory figures. The official canvass at Olympia cannot be made until the various counties have sent certified tables of their votes to the Secretary of State.

Post-Mortems Held.
Political post-mortems have been held by most of the defeated candidates. On the part of supporters of George F. Cotterill, ex-Mayor of Seattle, there is a general disposition to attribute his defeat to the presence in the race of Hugh C. Todd, Democratic state chairman, also of Seattle. Todd's first-choice votes were almost entirely taken away from Cotterill, the latter's supporters assert, addition showing that the Todd vote easily would have nominated Cotterill. Another reason given for the poor showing made by Cotterill, however, is his absence from the state and country, attending an international temperance convention in Norway, in the middle of the campaign. Cotterill's supporters were inclined to resent the fact that he had left them to carry on the burden of the fight and to the European trip undoubtedly can be laid the loss of hundreds of votes. The comparatively light vote cast by all parties was a disappointment to party managers, especially in view of the fact that the registration was heavier than ever before. The heavy registration is attributed, however, to the activities of prohibition advocates, several months ago, in procuring signatures for the state prohibition initiative measure, the initiative law in this state providing that only the signatures of registered voters are to be counted.

Two Races Close.
With the Democratic Senatorial fight still unsettled between George Turner, of Spokane, and W. W. Black, of Everett, and two other races so close that the official count will be necessary for final determination, the primary nominees appear as follows: United States Senator—Republican, Wesley L. Jones, North Yakima (re-nominated); Democratic, George Turner, Spokane, or W. W. Black, Everett; Progressive, Ole Hanson, Seattle; Socialist, Adam H. Barth, Tacoma.

Representative, First District (City of Seattle—King County)—Republican, William E. Humphrey, Seattle (re-nominated); Democratic, William Hickman Moore, Seattle; Progressive, Austin E. Griffiths, Seattle; Socialist, Glenn E. Hoover, Seattle.

Representative, Second District (Northwestern Washington)—Republican, Lindley H. Hadley, Bellingham; Democratic, Earl W. Husted, Everett; Progressive, William J. Bigelow, Bellingham; Socialist, George E. Boomer, Port Angeles.

Representative, Third District (Southwestern Washington)—Republican, Albert Johnson, Hoquiam (re-nominated); Democratic, Charles Drury, Tacoma; Progressive, Stanton Warburton, Tacoma; Socialist, Leslie E. Aller, Tacoma.

Representative, Fourth District (Southeastern Washington)—Republican, William L. La Follette, Pullman (re-nominated); Democratic, Roscoe M. Drumheller, Walla Walla; Progressive, M. A. Peacock, North Yakima; Socialist, John Storland, Kennewick.

Representative, Fifth District (Northwestern Washington)—Republican, probably Harry Rosenhaupt, Spokane; Democratic, C. C. Dill, Spokane; Progressive, Thomas Corkery, Spokane; Socialist, William J. Bigelow, Bellingham.

Supreme Court, non-partisan—Stephen J. Chadwick, incumbent, probably re-elected at primary; nominee to succeed him, remaining to be placed on the ballot, with no one opposing him, making it necessary for the voter to write in a candidate's name if he wishes to vote against Chadwick.

Supreme Court, partisan—Justice Stephen Chadwick has a majority of all the votes cast, and some authorities say his name should be printed on the ballot, with no one opposing him, making it necessary for the voter to write in a candidate's name if he wishes to vote against Chadwick.

State Representative, Ninth District—Elmer E. Halsey, of Clarkston, Republican.

Sheriff—M. C. Martin, of Astoria, Republican; F. M. Halsey, of Anacortes, Democrat.

County Clerk—L. A. Cloutier, of Astoria, Republican; J. Warren Stephens, of Charleston, Democrat.

County Auditor—Delta Krandell, of Astoria, Democrat.

County Treasurer—E. R. Downen, of Astoria, Republican.

County Prosecuting Attorney—Homer L. Foot, of Clarkston, Republican.

County Assessor—W. G. Woodruff, of Astoria, Democrat.

County Superintendent of Schools—W. J. Jerome, of Clarkston, Republican.

County Engineer—V. G. Shellman, of Anacortes, Democrat.

Commissioner of First District—Ben Ayers, Astoria, Republican.

Commissioner of Third District—O. E. Bailey, of Clarkston, Republican; Martin Merrill, of Clarkston, Democrat.

Justice of Peace—George L. Ackley, of Clarkston, Democrat.

GAIN OF CENSUS NOTED

INCREASE OF WASHINGTON POPULATION SINCE 1910 IS 120,000.
Comparisons indicate that numbers in Counties in Southwestern Part Are Growing Fastest.

OLYMPIA, Wash., Sept. 12.—(Special.)—That the population of the State of Washington has increased approximately 120,000 since the Federal census of 1910, which showed a total of 1,141,990 people, is estimated on the basis of the 1914 state school census. An interesting table of the estimated population of the 33 counties of the state has been worked out on the basis of the county school census reports. It is estimated in each case that the total population of the county has changed at the same rate indicated by the state school census, which includes all children between 5 and 21 years of age.

On this basis all counties except Adams, Jefferson, San Juan and Stevens are shown to have increased in population, the area of Stevens County having been reduced in population by the creation of Pend d'Oreille County. The combined populations of Stevens and Pend d'Oreille now exceed the old Stevens County's number.

RUSSIANS AS "LOCUSTS"

Czar's Troops Slowly Mobilizing Will Move in Imponderable Mass.
Brooklyn Daily Eagle.
As John Paul Jones replied to the courteous suggestion of the Serapis' commander, Russia "hasn't begun to fight." A month may elapse before the myriads of hosts of the Czar begin to move southward and westward toward a common enemy; but when they start they will come as did the locusts of the past.

Snake Around His Wrist

Colored Stevedore Is Embraced by Big Reptile on Wharf.
Baltimore Sun.
Escaping from a crate of pineapples, a long black snake crawled along the handle of a truck and wound itself around the wrist of Arnold Thomas, a colored stevedore, of Hughes alley, at work on pier No. 2, Light street.

As soon as he felt the clammy reptile against his skin the colored man dropped his truck and ran into the street, shouting lustily. Instead of aiding the terror-stricken man, his dark-skinned companions laughed and assured him they could see nothing on his wrist, and declared that the liquid refreshments he took with his noonday meal had made him "see things."
