

FATE OF DOCTOR'S WIFE IS WITH JURY

Mrs. Carman Weeps Softly When Counsel Refers to Family and Freedom.

COMPOSURE IS RESTORED

Prosecutor Says Woman's Curiosity Would Not Have Permitted Her to Go Without Finding Out Who Had Been Shot.

MINEOLA, N. Y., Oct. 24.—The jury in the case of Mrs. Florence Conklin Carman, after listening all the afternoon and evening to the summing up of the defense and the prosecution and the charge of Justice Charles H. Kelly, retired at 9:45 o'clock tonight to begin its deliberations.

During Mr. Granam's long summing up in her behalf the defendant sat at the counsel table holding her daughter's hand. When Mr. Granam spoke of Mrs. Carman's family and her freedom she placed a handkerchief to her eyes and wept softly.

"I tell you, gentlemen," he said, "I know this was an inside job; that it was done by some one who knew the lay of the land."

"I determined to get the truth. I went after the person who knew about every person in the house. I tell you this girl has been an unwelcome witness. The most pathetic thing in this trial was when she said she lied because she was sorry for her former mistress."

"It is true that we have treated this girl well. We are proud of that. She told the truth by being well treated and not being bullied."

The District Attorney vigorously defended Celia Coleman and then started in to analyze the other members of the Carman family. He said all was untrue, as the witness had motives to testify falsely.

"Do you think that it would be human for a woman to come downstairs after hearing a noise, finding out that a woman had been shot and then have the curiosity to go into the doctor's office and see who it was?"

The District Attorney then took up the testimony of the other members of the Carman family. He said all was untrue, as the witness had motives to testify falsely.

"I did not cross-examine Elizabeth, because I didn't have the heart," continued Mr. Smith. "God forbid that I should ever cross-examine a little girl who is trying to save her mother and her husband."

"I don't know whether or not it was a case of mistaken identity," continued Mr. Smith. "The thing that you now is to believe that she finally told the truth."

The District Attorney described the testimony about the bloodhounds as an insult to any juror's intelligence.

The attorney for the defense asserted that the slayer of Mrs. Bailey undoubtedly was a man and not his client. He pointed the testimony of Celia Coleman and Frank Farrell, two of the prosecutor's chief witnesses, and ended by appealing to the jurors to restore the defendant to her husband and her family.

During the first hour of the jury's deliberations, Mrs. Carman remained in the chambers at the rear of the court. An hour and five minutes after the jury had retired, it sent out a request for some testimony.

CONGRESS' LONGEST SESSION ADJOURNS

Cotton Men Abandon Filibuster on Promise of Early Action Next Session.

QUORUM IS NOT PRESENT

"God Bless Us Everyone," Says Speaker Clark, and Senate Closes Business With Least Demonstration in Its History.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 24.—After nearly 19 months of continuous session, the longest ever taken, the Sixty-third Congress adjourned its second session today, after the collapse of prolonged efforts to procure cotton growers' relief legislation.

Leaders in this movement agreed to adjourn, however, only on the condition that pending cotton relief measures would have the right of way when Congress reconvenes, December 7.

"This is the longest and most laborious session that Congress ever has known. I congratulate you most heartily on being able to adjourn at last. I wish to thank every member of the House—Democrats, Republicans, Progressives and Independents—for uniform courtesy shown to the Speaker. Now, in the language of Tiny Tim: 'God bless us—everyone.'"

The Senate adjournment was probably the most undemonstrative in its history. Democratic leaders and a few Republicans were sitting behind closed doors, conferring on nominations, when word came that the House had carried out the adjournment resolution.

Representative Henry expressed his conviction that Congress would be convened in extraordinary session by the middle of November, when the fight could be resumed.
