Baker Fooled by Slow Ones Inside and Schang's Measure Is Taken by Handing Out Fast Balls When Not Expected.

BY CHRISTY MATHEWSON. (The Giant's Famous Pitcher.) NEW YORK, Oct. 31.—(Special.)—The baseball public loves the slugger. Gowdy came out of the world's series a great hero and he deserves all the praise that he can get. But a performer in that series who, in my opinion, has been a little slighted is "Dick" Rudolph. To my mind, perhaps because it is a pitcher's mind, his performance was quite as wonderful as Gowdy's.

HE WOULD MAKE GOOD OR QUIT.

"I want to go up to the big leagues," he told Kelly. "Suppose they don't want you?" answered Kelly.

Baseball Brevities.

George Chalmers, a pitching mainstay of the Phillies a few years ago, is to be on McGraw's payroll next year.

It is reported that the Athletics had said they would have played the Indianapolis Colts for the world's title if they had defeated Boston.

Paddy Livingston, former Athletic ace, has announced his intention of jumping to the Feds. He played this year with Indianapolis in the American Association.

An injured knee kept Charley Pullet from being of much assistance to the Oaks this year. He showed up well early in the season and a good year was predicted for him.

It is said on the best of authority that Connie Mack is going to quit managing the Athletics when they quit coming dollars.

THREE PITCHERS TO GO

MACK ASKS WAIVERS ON BENDER, PLANK AND COOMBS.

Manager of Athletics Takes Action Because He Hears One of Men Is Dickering With Federal League.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 31.—Connie Mack, manager of the Philadelphia Athletics announced today that he had asked waivers on Pitchers Bender, Plank and Coombs.

Mack's announcement was in confirmation of a statement made by Hughey Jennings, manager of the Detroit team, at Atlantic City.

Mack said he wanted it understood that he did not think Bender and Plank's usefulness as pitchers was over.

I would not have asked for waivers at this time, but for the fact that one of them told me he had been dickering with the Federal League.

The three pitchers did wonderful work in their careers. Each has figured as a hero in world's series games.

Plank, acknowledged as one of the greatest left-handers that ever pitched in the Athletics, led the team in 1907 and figured in the winning of six American League pennants.

His best performance in a world's series was in 1911, when he won from the New York Giants, allowing the National League two hits in the final game.

Bender joined the Athletics in 1907, and was known as the "sure money" pitcher in every world's series. He won games in all of them except in the series with the Boston Nationals this year.

Coombs has not pitched much for two years. He was injured in a world's series game in New York in 1911 and was unable to recover. He has a record of winning a 24-inning game against the Boston Americans. Coombs earned the title of "Iron Man" in pitching the Athletics to three victories against the Chicago Cubs in the world's series of 1910.

The waiver on him caused no surprise here, but that Mack would ask for Bender and Plank was not expected.

Occidental College Wins.

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 31.—Occidental College bucked its way to victory over the University of California at Bozard Field here today, winning 20 to 13.

Gus Fisher Raised Havoc With Angel Twirlers.

Portland Beaten First Since Days of 1906.

ON THE season's play, Portland won 21 and lost 18 games against Los Angeles, but if there had been one or two more Gus Fishers in the Beavers lineup, the final tally probably would have been far more in favor of the northerners.

Pol Perritt was the Los Angeles pitcher whom Gus Fisher liked the best.

Fisher made 10 hits during the season off Perritt's delivery, seven against Chech and Ehmske; five each against Hughes and Ryan; four against Mussler, and one against Love.

In only eight of his 32 games against Los Angeles was Fisher turned back without a hit; Chech turned this trick three times, Hughes twice and Perritt once.

Although Gus Fisher, of Portland, batted .406 for the season against Los Angeles, his teammates did not follow his lead in carrying their batting averages.

As a result, Fisher's unusual batting against the Angels served only to raise the club's aggregate season average.

The Beavers showed a club batting average of .281 for the six series against Los Angeles, a few points better than the aggregate club batting average of Portland for the season.

In fielding, on the other hand, the Beavers had an average of .957, slightly better than the aggregate season average of Los Angeles.

It was in double plays that the Beavers made their biggest cleanup against the Angels, making more of the double than any other club.

Portland's club batting and fielding records for the six series against Los Angeles show 1261 at bat, 165 runs, 355 hits, 56 two-baggers, 20 three-baggers, 104 home runs, 42 sacrifice hits, and 43 stolen bases, 1005 putouts, 524 assists and 67 errors.
