The greatest delegation of boosters assembled in Oregon since 1911 will go forth tomorrow to advertise the Portland Rose Festival throughout the length of California and urge tourists to route themselves by way of Oregon in 1915.

The cities of California already are prepared to give the visiting delegation the most enthusiastic entertainment that can be accorded and to make their trip successful in every respect.

Oregon was the first state to receive special honor at the Panama-Pacific Exposition in San Diego and the Portland delegation will be there as the guest of honor at the exposition January 2.

The first great event of the trip, however, will be the dedication of the Oregon building at the Panama-Pacific Exposition in San Francisco.

The programme for the day includes the reception of the Rosarians and exhibition officials at the Oregon building, a concert by the Royal Rosarian band, and the formal transfer of the building by the architects to the Oregon Commission.

O. M. Clark and John F. Logan, of the Oregon Commission, will give brief addresses, which will be followed by response from C. C. Moore, president of the exposition.

The exercises will be closed by grand special initiations of the Rosarians under the direction of Prince Robert W. J. Hoffmann, J. E. Werlein, M. Hyland and other knights and officials of the organization.

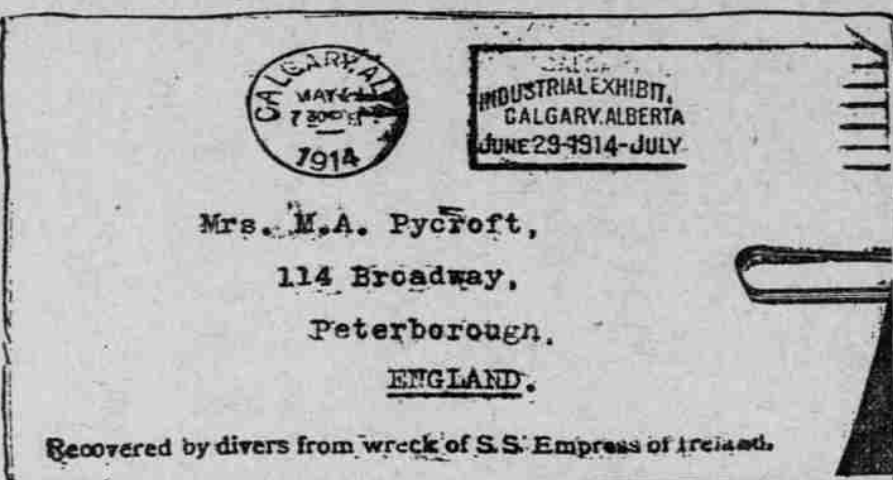

To assure the widest publicity for the excursion, the Rose Festival and other events, which it represents, arrangements have been made for the Northwest Weekly motion picture representative to accompany the party.

LETTER IS RETURNED FROM BOTTOM OF SEA

Epistle, Sent From Canada to Wife in England, Regained by Diver From Wreck of Empress of Ireland for Man in Portland.

A LETTER written May 22, last, by C. B. Pycroft from a point in Canada to his wife in England, has just been returned to Mr. Pycroft, who is now living in Portland, with the interesting advice that it was rescued by a diver from the wreck of the steamer Empress of Ireland, which was sunk after a collision in the St. Lawrence River on May 28.

The letter never reached its destination. The stamp had become detached from the envelope by the soaking that it received at the bottom of the St. Lawrence. However, the letter, which was typewritten, remained intact and all the writing is perfectly legible.

The typewritten address on the envelope also remained plainly discernible. A metal clasp which held the several typewritten sheets together was badly rusted and left its rusty impression upon the paper.

An interesting coincidence, so far as Mr. Pycroft is concerned, is the fact that for several months previous to the Empress of Ireland disaster he had been conducting a series of experiments to determine by which route, Montreal or New York, he was able to send letters to England from Canada the quickest.

A paragraph in this particular letter referred to the fact that his observations led him to the conclusion that there was no material difference in the time of the two routes.

Mr. Pycroft is a native of England and came to the United States about two years ago. A further coincidence is that he traveled on the Empress of Ireland on his trip across the Atlantic. He lived for a time in Canada, but now is located temporarily at 105 East Eleventh street. He is an experienced metal worker and may locate here permanently.

FUND FOR RELIEF IS NEARLY $5000

Record of 1913 Exceeded by Almost $1300 and Thanks of Association Voiced.

SUPPLIES ALSO RECEIVED

Entire Amount Applicable for Assisting Those in Need, as Fixed Charges of Associated Charities Provided Otherwise.

The total receipts of the Associated Charities for its Christmas relief fund up to last night were $4991.68, or nearly $1300 more than was raised in the record campaign of last year.

The Associated Charities of Portland has received support from the citizens of Portland in this campaign that surpasses in generosity that of almost any other city in the United States of anywhere near the same population.

The cash donation represents only a part of the gifts that have been made for the relief work. Clothing, grocery supplies and fuel have been given in large quantities and throughout the past two months, even while the campaign was still on, the relief work among the poor was conducted actively.

Families in desperate straits are given immediate temporary relief and efforts are made as soon as the immediate stress is relieved to ascertain what steps can be taken to set the families on their feet again and make it self-supporting.

Final announcement will be made next week of the last returns on the Christmas relief fund. There is no doubt that a total of more than $5000 in the fund can be announced.
