Dean Collins Describes Wonderful Pairylike Appearance Given by Vari - Colored Searchlights Radiating Everywhere.

BY DEAN COLLINS.

BY DEAN COLLINS.

I passed several evenings on the grounds of the Panama-Pacific Exposition, hoping by good fortune to see the full force of its much-talked-of new lighting system turned on all at once. Usually my expectations were rewarded with nothing more thrilling than a light of the globes on the posts that stand between the palm trees all along the esplanades on both the bay and the city side of the main exhibit palaces. Huge opalescent globes they appear in the daytime, but at night they glow with a dull yellowish light that almost makes one believe, as he looks down the avenues of palm trees, that the palms suddenly have come to bear monstrous yellow oranges among their foliage.

Several times I caught a brief palms suddenly have come to been more strous yellow oranges among their foliage.

Several times I caught a brief glimpse of a single one of the main exhibit palaces, lighted up to test out the system, and one night they tried out the searchlighting system in the interior of the Horticultural Palace—and then one faintly realized what the full glory of the Exposition grounds at night may be. With the fragmentary memories of the bits of that glory that the electricians allowed on various evenings, haunting one's memory, that alone is enough in itself to give one an overpowering impulse to come back to San Francisco after the Exposition is opened, and get at least one full glimpse of the glory so forecasted.

Tower of Jewels Omnipresent.

Tower of Jewels Omnipresent.

Dominating the main exhibit palaces and intended to be the dominant note in the general scheme of illumination is the Tower of Jewels, which lies directly in front of one coming into the Baker-street entrance. The Tower of Jewels is visible from every portion of the Exposition grounds. One gets glimpses of it through arches, between avenues of buildings, over the roofs of navilions, from any point where one may stop to look, and always in the sunlight, its hundreds of thousands of tremulous jewels are twinkling in the sunlight, sending out darts of ruby and emerald and violet and yellow light.

There are, I am told, something like 100 great searchlights planted about the grounds and on the roofs of buildings, most noticeable among which is the battery of 48 lights on the pier running out from the California building to Moro Castle, in the yacht harbor, and the Tower of Jewels is situated so that its imposing pillars and statues and its shimmering prismatic jewels may be the larget of scores of these scarchlights. Having seen the glory of this tower by day, one can still imagine but faintly what an Aladdin palace it will become under the blaze of the generalights. Tower of Jewels Omnipresent. Fearchlights.

Another feature—one that I was permitted to catch a glimpse of in its full giory—is the Horticultural Palace, which is built almost wholly of glass, the main dome of which, second to the Tower of Jewels, is probably the most striking feature visible from practically every portion of the ground. Underneath this dome, within the main portion of the building, the engineers have set a battery of eight searchlights, equipped to play shafts of various colored light, from within, upward and entward on the great bubble of glass.

Our wildest fancies of iridescent soapbubbles magnified to infinity would be required to describe the dome of the Horticultural Palace at night, un-be required to describe the dome of the Horticultural Palace at night, un-der the play of its interior searchilghts. Not only is the tridescent change of colors made possible by the search-lights, but the engineers have worked out many striking and fanciful designs, and one may suddenly see the great bubble turn into the dome of the heavens, with the signs of the zodiac awimming upon it, or may see fantastic groups of dragon figures gliding about on its glowing surface.

Indirect System Used.

Each exhibit palace will be picked out from within with reflectors that will send a soft glow of light through all its windows, and upon each building from without will fall the reflected wash of light from the long rows of hoosed electroliers that flank each building. No direct ray of light will fall upon the eye, but a powerful diffused glow from the fixed standards and from the searchlights upon the reofs of the huilding will spread over and from the searchlights upon the all.

I saw the Italian Towers on the south entrance of the Court of the Four Seasons picked out in the wash of light from the electrollers that flanked them, one evenius, and from this view was able to reconstruct the appearance of the whole group of Exposition palaces under light when the Exposition shall be opened.

The buildings will seem to start out of the darkness like illuminated transparsness, and one looking upon the Exposition from the hills will see it lying along the bay like a beautiful, softly-colored atereoption slide.

refily-colored stereopticon slide.

Fairyland to Be Depicted.

Overland the searchlights will play vari-colored rays into the sky, like an aurora. Some bombs will be fired into the air, and clouds of steam discharged from engines run at high pressure over beyond the yacht harbor, and on these floating billows of snoke and ateam, the searchlights will direct their rays in all the colors of the rainbow. There will be no fireworks of the old fire and powder kind at the Panama-Pacific Exposition, but there will be such a fairyland of color and beauty all about as no pyrotechnic expert, however clever, could hope to achieve.

In this lighting scheme that has been devised it seems to me that there exists one of the main glories of the great Exposition and one of the particular features that will make it utterly different from every other world's exposition that has ever been held.

A valuable opera cloak and evening gown, stolen January 11 from the New York Outfitting Company, were found in the room of Miss Barnes at the Euclid Hotel. She says that Shields gave them to her.

Miss Barnes was formerly employed as a domestic in the home of Mr. Townsend. She said she was engaged to Peter Melintosh, president of the Atlas Mining Company, with offices in the Morgan building. Mr. Melintosh denied that he has any such relationship with her. Some time ago Miss Barnes had goods to the amount of $150 purchased at Meier & Frank's charged to Mr. Melintosh's account.

Miss Barnes was arrested at the Olde, Wortman & King store when she aroused suspicion by refusing to sign a slip for an expensive tailored suit

In the capture of the pair by Detectives Hyde and Vaughn, the police believe they have two persons who have a sealing capacity of about 200 and cost approximately $8500 completed. The building is constructed entirely of native stone, wood being used only where absolutely necessary. Although Jordan Valley is 60 miles from a railroad the plumbing, plastering and decorations in the new church will be of the most modern designs. The building covers 31 by 79 feet of ground area. At the rear, sanctuary provisions have been made for a day chapel, society and reception rooms, living quarters and a study. The plans were designed by Houghtaling & Dougan, Portland architects,

A 20-cent advance in flour prices was announced by Fortland millers yesterday as a consequence of the upward course of the wheat market during the week. The wholesale quotation is now $6.80 a barrel, or 45 cents a barrel above the highest price in former years. The wheat market was quiet at the close. Owing to the break at Chicago, bids on the local exchange were 1 to 2 cents lower than on Friday, but holders of wheat would not give way, and selling ceased temporarily. During the week total sales on the Merchants Exchange were; 195,000 bushels of wheat, 900 tons of oats, 500 tons of barley and 100 tons of feed, of a total A 20-cent advance in flour prices was barley and 100 tons of feed, of a total value of $324,92b.

TURN HAIR DARK

If Mixed With Sulphur It Darkens So Naturally Nobody Can Tell.

The old-time mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur for darkening gray, streaked and faded hair is grand-mother's treatment, and folks are again using it to keep their hair a good, even color, which is quite sensible, as we are living in an age when a youthful appearance is of the greatest advantage.

Nowadays, though, we don't have the troublesome task of gathering the sage and the mussy mixing at home. All drugstores sell the ready-to-use product called "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound" for about 50 cents a bottle. It is very popular because no-The old-time mixture of Sage Tea
