When, at 9 o'clock this morning, Sen-ator Smoot concluded his 11½-hour speech, he was relieved by Senator Sutherland, whose assertion that Gov-rnment operation of ships could not be ustified under the interstate commerce use of the Constitution, led Senator ields (Dem.) to ask how he justi-d the building of the Central Pa-le Railroad. Senator Sutherland consblelds nded it was constructed as a military neasure. Senator Borah referred to he Alaska Railroad. Senator Suther-and's reply was that the road was uthorized for a Federal territory, where the Government was not only overeign, but proprietor.

"I think that since Congress has been converted into a registry office we ought to have with us the personal representative of the President. Of course it is too much to expect that the President should be in attendance, therefore while the watchful waiter keeps his eyes fixed upon the red panorama in Mexico, it is well that his secretary be here to see that none of the lambs stray from the fold." While Senator Lodge was speaking a party of movers brought a bed to the Capitol and had it put up in the com-mittee room of Senator Oilie James, which is handy to one of the Senate doors. The Kentucky Senator said he was ready to camp there indefinitely. Grave Complications Predicted Senator Lodge reiterated that if in-terned ships were bought by the United States it would plunge the country into international complications of the gravest character. Great Britain had iready protested, he said, against the smator Gallinger, "why the Dacia door "Can the Senator tell us," queried "Can the Senator tell us," queried signing at pleasure. Senator Gallinger, "why the Dacia does not sail?"
 "The Senator asks me to rend the veil of mystery which hangs over our foreign relations, but I cannot do it," answered Senator Lodge. "What I know is that Great Britain has protested against this transfer: Russia and France have made similar protests, which are now on file at the State Department. That means that Great Britain, France and Russia, once such ships go to sea, will hold them subject to capture as prizes."
 Senator Lodge said he had heard the Administration believed Great Britain, France and Russia would not do what they said they would do when it came to the goint. That, he declared, is the same mistaken theory that had sent troops to Vera Crus in the belief that a landing there would not be resisted when it came to the point.
 "And if this course is pursued, of buying these interned ships," Senator Lodge concluded, "I say you have started this Nation on the highway of war, not with one nation, but with four."

A brief conversation with any of these men who have volunteered their services for this cruise convinces even the casual investigator that any benefit in their behalf would not be a work of charity, but, rather, a recognition of patriotic self-sacrifice. Each one took a personal pride in his opportunity to atow the world that, after 17 years of civil life, he could go back into the old fighting harness again. Smoot Talks All Night.

Late in the day Senator William Alden Smith, of Michigan, relieved his Republican colleagues who had been holding the floor since early morning. when Senator Smoot concluded his all night speech. Senator Smith turned his attention to the bitter arraignment of the Administration's policy and painted a gloomy word picture of the business condition of the country under the Democratic tariff. An era of record-breaking busines mortality" had followed the enactment of that tariff, he said, and he characterized the shipping bill as the "fifth Admin-Istration folly."
