EXPLORER WRITES DIARY OF VOYAGE

Shackleton Tells of Finding Stowaway on Board and of Putting Him to Work.

Start From Argentina to South Pole Tempered by Thoughts of Home. Crew Make Merry and Their Chief Philosophizes.

(Special cable to the New York World, Copyright, 1815, by the Press Fublishing Company, Published by arrangement with the New York World.) LONDON, Feb. 7 .- Following are extracts from Shackleton's diary up to November 8, just received in London: October 26 -We were timed to leave loud cheers from a crowd of English and Argentine spectators. The cheering was led by Sir Reginald Tower, the British Minister, to whom we owe much during our stay at Buenos Aires. He has done everything possible to assist us to get facilities from the Argentine authorities, who have cour-teously done all they could to help us. As we drew away from the wharf massed bands of the Argentine navy struck up "God Save the King," a pe-culiarly welcome sound in these times and of greater significance as a fare-well to the expedition.

preciation. Evening drew in caim, clear and beautiful, and we looked our last on Buenos Aires, miraged up for a long time. Now we have severed all contime. Now we have severed all con-nection with civilization save for the little we shall see in South Georgia; but if the wireless receiver works all right we may hear briefly, even down in our Winter quarters, what takes place in the outer world thousands of place in the outer world thousands of miles away.

It is wonderful how, after all, we have got everything on board and our 63 dogs safety housed in kennels on the upper deck. All the work of preparation is now over, all the preliminary strain is finished and there now comes the actual work itself.

As I stood tonight at B o'clock and looked over the caim sea and upward to the great stars blazing in a velvet sky my mind flew forward to the unknown ways of the lonely tracts yet awaiting the feet of man and I wondered how our little party, now playing mouth ergans, banjes and mandelins, would fare in the long, dark days to come. The fight will be good. October 37.—The dogs are, of course, an important part of the ship's company. Lifte all Eakimo dogs their favorite pastime is snarriing and fighting, of which the latter, at least, has to be stopped whenever possible. They soon got to know the crew and members of the expedition, but had no fancy for strangers. The pilot who took the boat from Buenos Ayres, for instance, I heard a scuffle and a vehement protest from him on one occasion:

"Oh, you —"

Longing Felt for Home.

Oct. 30.—The dogs are getting on well, thanks to the great care that the whole staff is bestowing upon them, but they are, of course, feeling the long period on board and will be all the better for a run on the island.

So far everything has been ldyille. If one only had not the longing for the far-off lands from which we will be away for so long.

Oct. 31.—All hands were engaged until noon on various duties. After that, it being Saturday, no work was done and this was pleasant for the amen, as it was raining and drizzling all day. The wind from the sea made it chilly, and the watch below amongst the scientific staff would occasionally come along the warm alleyway and look up at their fellow scientists clad in olfskins, not too warm. At the wheel Marston appeared in a fur rug to cause jealousy. All hands seemed very happy jealousy. All hands seemed very happy and contented, good food and plenty of

However, apart from the unpleasant smell and the crude and unsatisfactory method of cutting up a whale for its blubber, everything here has been most blubber, everything here has been most gratifying and we have been partakers of that insistent Norweglan hospitality that so distinguishes the Scandinavian. It is strange to think and realize that a sub-antarctic island should have a population in the Summer of over 2000 souls and that at every station the manager's home is, as the advertisments of the modern hotel say, "Replete with every comfort."

lighted with electricity. Pigs are the principal domestic animals on the Island, though there are sheep, goats, reindeer, two ponies, cattle, a bull, ducks, hens and a monkey. The island also boasts of a ingistrate, who may be seen sculling his official boat, a red-painted praam, toward incoming steamers.

red-painted praam, toward incoming steamers.

There are only about 26 Britishers on the island, though it belongs to Great Britain. All the rest are Norwegians except for a stray individual from some other nation.

The weather is very changeable and inhabitants who have been 10 years here cannot forecast it an hour ahead. This is largely due to the mountainous formation of the island, with many glacters distributed over it, causing sudden changes of temperature as the sudden changes of temperature as the November 8—The dogs, which will be our mainstay on the transcontinental journey, are now in good condition. There are about five invalids, due mainly to fighting, but that is nothing. They feed daily on fresh whale meat, which does them a world of good.

Nov. 2.—The ship is pitching and rolling heavily, but shipping no water. The movement of the ship throws the forward dogs out of their kennels and keeps them awake at night, but they generally are quiet. The hands forward seem very pleased with their quarters—and they ought to be. Here we are in a ship of 230 tons with at least 29 people to work her.

ing grain and corn which they destroy, but in the injury to irrigation ditches, alfalfa fields and fruit trees. Poisonous vaccines are of but little avail. There is just one safe, sure and certain destructive agent, and that is "Wood-Lark" Squirrel & Gopher Poison, a strychnine coated wheat, which we originated 25 years ago and have sold in steadily increasing quantities every year. We have not scores, but hundreds of fine testimonials from those who have actually bought and applied this Poison, attesting its uniform merit.

"Wood-Lark" Poison is coated by a process of our own and contains a uniform and sufficient amount of poisonous alkaloid. Its formula has never been changed nor cheapened with the increased cost of ingredients. Now is the time to apply it. Warm Spring days are here, the pests are awakening from their Winter's sleep and are ravenous for food. A few kernels sprinkled in their burrows will prevent thousands of dollars of loss in your prospective crops, whether grain, alfalfa, fruit or roots. If your local dealer does not carry "Wood-Lark," take no inefficient substitute, but write us direct.

The man's work in connection with the moral squad had won him a number of enemies, and it is said that threats had been uttered against him. The police are investigating these to determine if he met with foul play.

Another theory is that he strayed off while suffering from temporary mental derangement. He took the Sergeant's examination on February 3 and returned to the police station elated because he had believed himself successful.

Lieutenant Harms, his immediate su-Leutenant Harms, his immediate su-perior on the moral squad, passed yes-terday investigating a rumor that Wise had been seen alone in Vancouver, Wash.
