PLAN FOR ISLES DECRIED

HAWAIIAN FOLK DO NOT WANT HOME RULE SAYS VISITOR. Mrs. W. H. Stead Blames Unrest to Animosity Stirred Up Among Natives by Spaniards.

SALEM, Or., March 29.—(Special.)—Home rule for the Philippines would be far from desirable at this time and actually is not wanted by the vast majority of the islands, was the declaration made here by Mrs. W. H. Stead, an American woman, who has just returned from two years residence near Manila.

"So far as I have been able to learn there is no real clamor for home rule in the Philippines," said Mrs. Stead. "Certainly the thinking people who have been able to observe conditions there at first hand feel that the islands are not ready for self government, and that to force it upon them would be folly and harmful to all concerned. Further, it is my observation that most of the demand for home rule is fostered by a comparatively small class of Spaniards."

"They rouse the animosity of the lower classes of native Filipinos with stories of the advantages that would accrue to them with independence, and the poor people then go out calling for home rule, with little or no real conception of what they want or what the results would be."

Mrs. Stead says there is no ground to deny the fact that American rule has worked wonders for the Philippines, and that even with the forward steps that have been taken in education it will be years before the island people will be ready to handle their own problems. She says the natives themselves realize that the better class regards the possibility of getting home rule almost as an impending catastrophe. The plan advanced by the Democratic Attorney Evans, recently unpopular among Americans who are actually in touch with island affairs, she says.

The beautiful new creations in bungalows which the Laurelhurst Co. has recently constructed in the new bungalow block known as "Fernhaven Court" corner East Burnside and East Forty-first streets, in Laurelhurst, are now nearing completion and present an innovation in bungalow architecture. "Fernhaven Court" is destined to be one of the most beautiful, inexpensive home creations in Portland, and it is no wonder that many people who have been cooped up in apartment houses are taking advantage of the low prices at which the Laurelhurst Co. is offering these beautiful little homes and on terms that will admit of the buyers paying for same by applying the usual rent that one pays for apartment accommodations.

These bungalows will be open for inspection today.—Adv.
