Disease Now Confined to Central and Eastern Sections of State but Spread Is Feared Unless Resistance Is Active.

SALEM, Or., April 10 .- (Special.) To prevent the spreading of rables, the State Livestock Sanitary Board, at a meeting held here today, issued an order placing 11 counties under quarantine. It was announced that the discase had been communicated by coyotas to horses, dogs, cats and other animals in eight counties in the eastern part of the state. The counties included in the quarantine are Lake, Harney, Crook, Baker, Umatilla, Malheur, Wheeler and Union, where rables prevails, and Mulinomah, Clackamas and Jackson, to which it is feared the disease may spread. prevails, and Multinomah, Clackamas and Jackson, to which it is feared the disease may spread.

The order requires that all dogs, unless used in herding livestock, be muzited. State Veterinarian Lytle, who attended the meeting, said that all violators of the quarantine would be punished to the fullest extent of the law, the penalties being fines from $50 to $100 for each offense. Mr. Lytle announced that all peace officers would be called upon for assistance in enforcing the order. The veterinarian declared that conditions were especially alarming in Lake County, rabid coyotes and dogs running the range in large numbers. He said that many cattle and a number of persons had been hitten there.

"We shall try to get the city authorities of Portinnd to enforce the order there," continued Dr. Lytle. "It will require that dogs be muzzied, and, when on the street, in leash. The board will see that it is enforced in Multnomah County outside the city.

"Stock owners have suffered severely in eastern counties. The situation is especially hard for the poor homesteaders, where some of them have lost their only cow through being bitten by a hydrophobic coyote or dog. Even cats special agent to investigate sheep scab reported in Douglas County. Mr. Lytle said that he has no fear that the disease is of serious proportions.

The board made arrangements for payment to the owners for horses and mules it may be found necessary to hill heaving of planders. Animals un-

RICKREALL, Or., April 10 .- (Special.)-Fruit growers and farmers in many districts of Polk County are setting out young prune trees. Growers ting out young prune trees. Growers who have had much experience in producing the fruit express much confidence in the crop as a permanent one for profit in this county.

Since last Fall orders to the leading nurseries of the state have been noted from Polk County. Farmers who are advocates of Fall planting added to the acreage last Fall, but the greater number of the new trees are being planted this Spring.

ber of the new trees are being planted this Spring.

The Italian variety has full sway throughout the county, and with the exception of a few of the smaller varieties for special purposes, the Italian constitutes the entire acreage.

Polk County's largest percentage of prunes each year come from the sections where the red soil is prevalent. This kind of soil has been found unprofitable for grain growing, but produces an excellent quality and quantity of fruit.

The country surrounding Rickreall has one of the largest acreages in young trees of any section of the county. Several orchards have been yielding prunes for years, but extensive acreages contain trees which will be ready to enter the bearing period within three or four years.

ready to enter the bearing period which in three or four years.

The regions in the hills back of Monmouth and Dallas, where the industry first started, still furnish the largest part of the county's yield. In these districts individual driers are few and the crop is hauled to Dallas, where a special packing company prepares the product.

For the past two years large ship-ments of Polk County prines have been made to France and Germany. Last year particularly shipments to foreign markets were heavy, and from the early part of the season growers were as-sured of good figures.

With the advance of dairying in the farming sections, prines are grown more extensively and farmers have a dual system from which to derive their income.
