The Greatest Stories Ever Written of a Real Boy and His Escapades X---The Empty House

PFNR()D

NE July afternoon, when the world son and the detectives got close on the gent young worm in the heart of a nut. come some thunder. Favoring this comparison, the saw- "CHAPTER EVELENTH, Favoring this comparison, the saw-Penrod was writing.

I guess the time has come now when then it started raining too. water and a little rice.

that prove he murdered your children because Mr Wilson and the detectives and little baby daughter also

"I didn't either and you better look the old man every time eut how you talk said Mr. Wilson and "Everything better out how you take said white his Maker. No soon Harold saw a terrible looking cav-soon Harold saw a terrible looking cavmurdered the old man's children and little haby daughter also on they attempted to put some hankuffs on Mr. Wilson but he pulled out his ottomstick and reached over Harolds shoulder where they were struggling and began shooting away at the old man but Harold reched up and caught hold of his hand with his hand him until the old man could get the Oh now it is bitting me where my leg hankuffs on him

There sneered the old man when he Eot broken used to be for 16 long years. Ha Ha one of the worst people I ever knew in my whole life and I am going to tell right at himthat you were the real foger that put everything off on me and then he got

"Soon Mr. Wilson started crying at porch in the suns this and our hero and the old man the silent stable. this and our hero and the wile then "Musther Penrod! Y'rout there sim-tanted him some more for a wile then "Musther Penrod! Y'rout there sim-went on out with a smile. Mr. Wilson wheres, why can't y'answer me? Yer more where the old man had kept step- an' so's Miss Marg'rut an' I'm not ing on him and soon managed to shake off his bonds with his teeth. You Hartwo men it was Harold Ramorez and real ult matum, and when it proved inwill have to hurry up or we will probly Certainly her voice had read

have gone

O outdoors was empty of everything trail of the fugitives in the storm be outdoors was empty of everything trail of the fugitives in the storm be except hot sunshine, Penrod Scho- cause they could see them by the light field, in the sawdust box of his father's of the flashes of lighting first would stable, was as silently busy as a dill- come a flash of lighting and then would dust box was naturally almost as dark "This kept up for a long wile for it as the inside of a nut is believed to be; was a terrible night and the lighting but Penrod worked by the light of a would scared anybody it kept lighting lantern, which raised the temperature and thundering all the time and the of the box to a degree that would have old man could not run fast and Mr. frightened a stoker, but substracted Wilson and the detectives would shoot nothing from the fever of composition. at them by the light of the lighting Penrod was writing. and the lighting would strike rocks

He was writing CHAPTER TENTH that would fall off the clifts and almost of his secret novel, HARold RAMOREZ hit them and the wind blowing trees THE Road-Agent oR WILD LIFE down too and it got frezing cold and AMONG THE ROCKY MTS. the old man got hit with one of the "Soon it was Mr Wilsons turn to be rocks and broke his leg so our hero acared and he started beging to be let had to carry him on his back and more off and said it was not his fault and rocks began falling because an earthhow he had never done anything. Oh gake had started now besides the lightno sneered Harold you did not do any- ing and thunder and our hero could thing to this poor old man Oh no but not find his way among the clifts and you will have to be exposed so just look here a minute I have the papers to prove you committed the forgy your ewn seif 16 long years ago that this I am wonded again and probly I will peer old man get put in the peniten-atriy for and been 16 long years in a get under Bing Bing Bing Bing Bing dirty cell with nothing but bread and bing Mr Wilson and the detectives kept on bing bing bing bing bing "Yes said our hero and I have papers bing bing bing Oh cried the old man > got close up and the ottomatick hit "Everything kept getting worse but old man down from carring him The cavren was all black and it smelled terrible Well said the old man this is the worst looking place I ever been and I bet there is something terrible in here and then some animal jumped out from back in there and bit him where the ottomatick bullets had wonded him and he said Oh some aniand took the ottomatick away and held mal is bitting me right in my wonds was all tied up tight I guess you are in a nice fix now just like the way I meet his Maker Well said Harold I back in the cavren and there was some that looked like some eyes looking him that his hand had begun to trem-"Musther Penrod!"

This was a hail from the house. porch in the sunset light She addressed quit crying because it did not hurt any father an' mother's away fer dinner goin' to wait ahl night, so if ye want annything t'eat ye better c'min an' old Ramorez sneered he now I will hunt von down like a dog and he hunted However, she came to the door five

HE CAME TO A PAUSE IN A SITTING POSTURE AT THE FOOT OF THE NEWEL.

ble as it sped, faster and faster, across

He shook with horror of the awful sinister hollows; he heard the shricking of the caynon wind across the cavern's mouth, saw it lifting and tossing the white hair and beard of a dreadful figure which lay there, maked, torn and drenched. He fled toward the green vapor in the depths, only to turn back, shuddering with ghastly suspicions, while out of the darkness hundreds of eyes-eyes without bodies, eyes without that the words he set upon the paper of all ghosts, this one had undergone a There was no moon; there were no Ho do you like it and went on tanting back in the cavren and there was some that the words he set upon the paper of all ghots, this one haracter since stars; there was no light in heaven; kind of something green back in there meant all the things he heard and felt complete charge of character since stars; there was no light in heaven; passing. Forgetting every former tie there was no light in a neighbor's and all gratitude, it seemed wholly house. The air was thick and black; inimical to its former benefactor, and shrubberies in the yard took curious, assuming the position of terrir-in-chief changing shapes, and Penrod kept a of a place upon which, in life, it had wary eye upon them as he threaded pronounced an unfavorable opinion and his way to the kitchen door.

for which it had shown no attachment It opened to his hand, revealing noth-whatever, it now appeared to have no ing save by reminiscent odor; but there purpose in existence save to unsettle Thither he proceeded, his unnerved ant conviction that he was surrounded Penrod managed to squirm inside the the reason of one who had shown it condition being at once improved by by vital dangers which became the nothing but kindness. For, in truth, the sight of viands and vegetables, for Harold Ramorez feared he might go there was a plate upon the table at his made more dreadful because they ward mad-and Penrod's mouth opened and accustomed place, and food plenteous, his eyes bulged fearsomely as he wrote. though grown cold. depleted lantern died absolutely. Harold ring as he ate, recalled something like to feel the wall near the kitchen door, halls upstairs and downstairs; the air Ramorez himself was not left in more an echo of Delha's voice; gradually he he encountered one of them. His of the whole house became murmurous At that very instant the flame of his A conjunction of suggestions occurcomplete eclipse. Instinct brought Pen- became susceptible to an impression fingers very, very briefly closed upon with their whispers and rustlings, rod to his feet at a bound; and, as he that his father and mother and sister something that feit like a head of Penrod, still not moving his h looked out over the side of the saw- had not dined at home. Then abruptly dust box toward the open door, his it struck him that he might be alone in grievously startled.

Therefore, it is not surprising that "An empty house nothing could have been more ominous, ment, slid his hand along the wall Finally, carving-knife in hand, he went until it came to a forbidden object that back to the kitchen, where he had left hung there. the ax, and returned to the dining- It was an Enfield rifle, a mussieroom doubly armed.

board, so he 'boul-faced suspiciously "Now let's see whu-what again. Then, laying the ax upon the goin' to do so mum-much!" table, but keeping the knife in his right He maintained this attitude until the hand, he stepped upon a chair and ex- weight of the extended rille became in-tended his left hand to the gas fixture, supportable; then he grounded arms meaning to turn the jet on full. But and leaned back against a bureau, meaning to turn the jet on the wrong direc- breathing even more vehemently than tion, and for the second time within before. His elbow touched a bottle; he tion, and for the second time within before. His eleow touched a bottle, he that half hour Penrod's light went out, selzed upon it and smelled the con-To a person in his condition it was a tents-spirits of cambphor. Suggestion disaster, and, uttering an exclamation was immediately roused by the memory of horror, he stumbled and fell from of an unpleasant experience in the past. the chair with a light crash.

He chair with a light crash. He recorked the bottle, placed it under He was up again in an instant, cut- his arm and muttered: ting the air in all directions with the "You betcha! Guess they won't like carving-knife: then he groped for the this so much! Sprinkle it in their old ax, found it, and stood still once more, eyes!" on the defensive, listening intently, exrearlous, He moved at last: tremblously felt his way round the table and debouched to the mantelpiece, where matches were sometimes to be found in a small porcelain slipper, madly believed to be deco. rative.

A chill struck to his spine at a veritable sound behind him. This one was a faint creak, the result of some capillary action in the wooden floor, but so far as Penrod's nerves were concerned it might have been a shot.

Wheeling, he struck a frantic blow with the ax, which, completing a fine porcelain slipper.

Thereupon Penrod decided to go out-The decision itself was a simdoors. ple matter; action upon it was deferred because of extreme hesitation to move where the villainous creak had sounded. Thus retrogressing, he presently found nimself in the side hall, which separated all the front part of the roomy, old-fashioned house from the dlningwith horror; in his mind's eye he saw tained by closing the eyes. the thought of opening them filled him them, gaunt, huge, full of black shapes of furniture, lurking places that might nceal Anything! An empty house in the night-time maxing in the pit of his stomach-which point, in the case of Penrod, was be-the more dreadful because they were undefined; the inscrutable darkness held Secrets-and, putting out his hand upon the floor. "Oof!" moaned Peurod, the question bed as he could. Burglars might be Bright, warm, July afternoon sunshine the words formed in Penrod's mind, it of going out through the kitchen thus more merciful if they believed him but was on the second floor at the top of He guiped immeniably, and a polg-nant bitterness began to form no inthe back stairs.

It was an Enfield rifle, a muzzle-loading relic, last put to use by Penroom doubly armed. Again he stood to listen. Suddenly Penrod whirled straight 1863, and it was truly unloaded. Pen-about, with ax and carving-knife both rod got it down, pointed the muzzle lifted to strike at something behind waveringly in the general direction him. Again he stood to listen. Suddenly Penrod whirled straight 1863, and it was truly unloaded. Pen-the door by which he had entered and the door by which he had entered him. Nothing was there except the side- and whispered feeble and tremulously: "Now let's see whu-what you were on the defensive, listening intently, ex-pecting the worst and panting with an effect, upon that stillness, almost up-way, descend to the front stall, and thence, by the front door, reach the outer air. So, with slow and noiseless motions, he put himself once more in possession of his ax and carving-knife. thrust the latter in the breast of his jacket, and, though encumbered to the point of difficulty by the ax, the gun and the camphor bottle, returned to the upper hall and began an advance in force.

He went forward a dozen steps with some confidence, then haited abruptly.

What stopped him was something al-together inside himself. In the darkwith the ax, which, completing a fine ness a green vapor appeared (though curve, miraculously failed to amputate not at the other end of the hall, where as an incident, permanently relieved all he thought it did) and there emerged members of the household from troub-ling to put any more matches in the a wind-awept cavern. The vision of the sawdust box-spiteful, like all other visions-chose this particular moment to recur to the author of "Harold Ramoren" at all. But after a gruesome period of He was statuting Gasping, he hopped inertia he began to tiptoe backward in his own bedroom. Gasping, he hopped inertia he began to tiptoe backward in across the threshold, kicked the door He was standing by the portal of the direction of the door, keeping eyes, ax and carving-kaife warily toward shut, and mainting possession of his armory, though, perhaps, not of his faculties, huddled himself upon the bed and buried his face in the pillow. It is not altogether discreditable to a boy in the durk that he sometimes imitates an ostrich. But it is unfortuto the forward rooms were closed, and nate, because, when one is already in the dark, very little relief can be ob-

> Penrod, burrowing into his pillow, could see the Old Man rather more plainly than if he had allowed his eyes to remain open. He saw him through has few attractions for a boy. Enclosed the pillow and through the wall; it darkness sickens his soul and likewise seemed that the Oid Man was lying on has a discouraging physical effect, cli- the hall rug just outside the closed door, and that before long he would is the seat of courage. This fabled set up and come into the bedroom and bend over the bed and-. But here im-

Without lifting or turning his fave pletely, as far as the top of his head, for the Old Man was but one of the monsters that threatened.

Burglars!

Burglars were creeping through the Penrod, still not moving his head. something that feil like a head of wet, cold hair. It sank from his touch, pulled the ax and the camphor bottle and there was a thick-sounding thud beneath the sheet; slid the gun off the coverlet, and pushed it as far under the considerable part of his condition. Mops have driven greater than Pen-What kind of parents were they the

it seldom proceeds toward convalescence; but rather the symptoms become Certainly her voice had reached the more and more malignant indefinitely, was what Penrod fully expected to see, was as if a husky voice had uttered and when he became a little lonely sleeping child intending on meaning; his mind had not heard author bas had a night's sien Sa it not catch them I wonder where they physical car of Penrod, but it conveyed relief being obtained only after the ave gone no meaning; his mind had not heard author has had a night's sieep. So it night. "I bet I know said the detectives he it, Penrod's self was in a horrible cav- was but natural that Harold Ramores." gone ta his lair on the steepest ern in the Rocky Mountains with Har-t in the Rocky Mts and takin the old Ramorez.

the pages

the floor some where allo begins measured ings; but the stable remained stolidly When such a situation is thus con-the leaving me here alone, with those unresponsive. Finally she delivered a ceived and developed in such an author, state of mind was one that needed the the house.

so mad he began stepping on Mr. Wil-so mad he began stepping on Mr. Wil-non where he was lying on the floor, kitchen door and stood upon the back-he saw a green vapor shimmering in its around until he found his whistle on times during the gradual dusk to shout faces-looked at him and began to the floor some where and began reviln "Musther Penrod" and various warn- come closer, and closer, and closer, has gone ta his lair on the steeper ern in the locky about and with hir-clift in the Rocky Mts and takin the old man with him we can easily catch up with them because it is dark out-side and probly it is goin to rain too into manuscript, this author was not terrencherous are abow frail and trancherous are cavern and on the journey thereto, and or the ion real do the target from the stable. At the upper ond of the target from the stable. The avery few seconds later, breathing part of a cold ham, beside which lay a stable for an term of the target from the stable. The stable is the upper ond of the target from the stable. The upper ond of the target for an term of the target for the upper ond of so after talking some more they soon aware how frail and treacherous are cavern, and on the journey thereto, and were how frail and treacherous are cavern, and on the journey thereto, and were how frail and treacherous are cavern, and on the journey thereto, and were how frail and treacherous are cavern, and on the journey thereto, and were how frail and treacherous are cavern, and on the journey thereto, and were how frail and treacherous are cavern, and on the journey thereto, and the old man. The fact also, owing to the machinations of Mr. Wilson, for 16 long, previous years. "Soon a storm came up and Mr. Wil- concerned Penrod little: he thought "Geneluded on Page 7.)

A Gopher Peacemaker

DID you ever see a gopher? It is a tiny little animal, formed another."

very much like a squirrel, only it is much snialler.

It lives in the ground, burrowing little holes for its home.

Out on the prairies, where most gophers live, you can often see a tiny head or two peeping up from the flat ground. If you stand very quietly they will watch you carefully and then, if you seem harmless, they will come out of their holes a little more and a little more, till suddenly they will slip clear out and go scurrying across the prairies.

One morning a little gopher named Keen waked up early and peeped out of his hole to see what kind of a day The sun shone brightly, the WES. sky was blue and he had just decided to start out to hunt some breakfast when some conversation attracted his

"I found it first, let me have it." "I don't care who found it, I've got ft."

"Don't you eat it up, it's mine." He looked around and there behind a couple of big weeds were two robins fighting and quarreling over one poor, wiggly worm. "Let go and give it to me," said the first robin.

"Indeed I'll not," said the second, as he started to eat the worm.

Keen decided he didn't care for that kind of quarreling so near his homehe was a good-natured little follow mself and thought everybody else should be the same. So he darted out like a flash-gophers go very fast, that's the way they get their namedarted right under the greedy robin. Mr. Robin was so frightened he dropped the worm and started to fly away. when Keen said, "You don't need to go away, stay here and be a gentleman At that the first robin said, "If he's hungry, he can have half, but I want some of it."

"Dear me, dear me," said the gopher, what a fuss over one worm, don't you nurse, saying: "Isn't this lovely? D know the ground is full of them?" "I never thought of that," said the ing by the side of a little brook in a you know its name? . I found it growgreedy robin, looking very sheepish, very shady place. I'd love to know "here, you eat this one and I'll find what it is called."

"Indeed I can tell you more than So they both set to work very hapwanted, and the little gonher, seeing name is Narcissus and it is an ancient od friends again, scurriod off flower about which the poets of all to get his breakfast. times have sung. It bloomed even as

Legends of the Narcissus

E DITH left her governess sitting un- the flower which the malden Proser- of these wise men-of the month of der a tree and ran off into the pine was gathering when Pluto took April the following adage is both old woods to gather flowers for her her away to his dark home under the and familiar: mother. An hour later she returned- grou "How very interesting, do you know weighted down with beautiful blossoms of all colors. She placed them on the any other story about my pretty mossy ground-all but one spray of flower?" asked Edith, kissing the white blossom, white flowers. This she gave to her "Yes, there is another legend," an-und.

was a river god named Cephissus ther and his mother a nymph called Siriops. The wonderful beauty of the youth caused many to fall in love with him, but he was cold and indifferent to all.

"A poor little nymph, called Echo, into April was always regarded by the loved him so dearly that she pined away and died, because he would not e for her; and now there is nothing left of Echo but her voice, which you can sometimes hear answering your awarded the following coupletscall in a still woods.

long ago as when the gods and god-

"At last Nemesls, the god of retribution, decided to punish Narcissus for his hard heart. He was made to fall in love with his own image as he looked a stream, and as ne could never reach this beautiful reflection, he gradually perished with hopeless love. His body was changed into this flower, which has ever since borne his name. And that is why the Narcissus always grows beside a stream-so he can see his own image in the water." 'Tm mighty glad I happened to find this spray of Narcissus," said Edith, arranging the flowers in a bouquet to take home to her mother, "because I might never have heard the legends, if He Decided to Start Out to Hunt Some I hadn't" plly and soon had all the worms they that." answered the governess, "its weather, but in olden times there was weather bureau, so the people had to depend on the old country farmers. They were looked upon as wizards and any expression they gave was about desses were supposed to live on earth. right.

The following are some of the sayings The old Grecian legends say it was

"April showers Bring May flowers," And again-"A cold April

The barn will fill." "If March comes in like a lion it swered the governess, "about a beau- goes out like a lamb; if it comes i tiful youth named Narcissus. His fa- like a lamb it goes out like a flon." goes out like a lamb; if it comes in

"If the grass grows in Janiveer It grows the same for all the year." "Of all the months in a year Comes bad a fair Februeer." A prolongation of the March winds ancients as a good omen-"When April blows his horn, "Tis good for hay and corn." The months of May and June were "Mist in May and heat in June Make the harvest come right soon."

"Who doffs his coat on a Winter's

"A dripping June

"Esening red and morning gray

Are sure signs of a fair day." "Mackerel sky, mackerel sky, Never long wet nor never long drv." "A rainbow in the morning the shepherd's warning. 'A rainbow at night Is the shepherd's delight." "Rain before seven. Fine before eleven."

Little Stories of Great War

Royal Nurses

Some of you girls have often wanted to be nurses-and, above all. Red Cross nurses. This war has put many a sweet, eager young woman to a severe test. She has been under fire; she has rescued the injured from burning houses; she has defended the wounded from those who wanted to kill the helpless because there seemed no time to look after them. have been many namelees heroines, but one is glad to know that the courage and devotion of a young French girl. Mademoiselle Eugenie Antoine, Was brought to the notice of King George. While the village of Vally-sur-Alene was under fierce shell fire this faithful nurse cared for and tended the British wounded with never a thought of self, together.

And now she wears in her breast something very preclous-a King's gift -"The Decoration of the Royal Red Cross.

But, speaking of nurses, there are three distinguished women who wear no orders, working in a Russian hos- esting lecture. pital; they are known only as Sister Alexandra, Sister Olga, and Sister Ta- Ill, I noisily entered the house. tiana, the last two being young girls. After weeks of hard work they have sible grief. only just been allowed to assist in operations. "Their high station as wife If the following are written, one be- Are; 3, Wet; 4, Ten; 5, Ink.

and daughters of the Czar gives them daughter of the Imperial household, no privileges, but doubtless some of "She was the pretilest, but what took The general proverbs that are most the soldiers must be glad if it fails to me most was her fun. They are all

W E look to the "weather-man" to vogue are the following: foretell the coming state of the weather, but is olden thread in the sold of the "Evening gray and morning red, "Evening gray and morning red," "Evening gray and morning red, "Evening gray and morning red," "Evening gray and morning red, "Evening gray and morning red," "Even A lovely young Grand Duchess. That is the eign of real nobility, to A sailor who' was one summer on feel oneself kin with the whole world of the churm of Tatiana, the third clean."

This old gentleman has lost his hat in a sudden gust of wind. See if you can find it by cutting out the black spots and fitting them.

HIDDEN STATES.

Each of the following sentences con- spell the name of a color: tains a hidden state of the Union: 1. An article of food. Then Eva, Dan and I ran.

2. I told her not to miss our inter-3. Pretending not to know he was 4. The news caused Alma inexpres-

COLOR PUZZLE.

low the other, their central letters will

- A verb. 2. A word meaning moist.
- A number.
- 5. A writing fluid.

Answers.

HIDDEN STATES-1, Nevada; 3, MiscoLOR PUZZLE-Green, 1, Egg; 2, 3.

Will gladly put it on in May."

