Dr. Fisher, who was going to the American Red Cross unit in Belgium, cabled to his wife here from Queenstown today that he was safe and well.

MEDFORD, Or., May 8.—(Special.)—
A cablegram was received here today by Mrs. Charles Connor from Queenstown, England, from her daughter, Miss Dorothy Connor, who left on the Lusitania, saying she was safe.

This message came as a great relief to Miss Connor's mother and brother, Boudinot Connor, and her many friends in this city and valley.

Miss Connor left this city two weeks ago for Europe, and it was only by a narrow margin that she made the Lusitania, arriving only two hours before she sailed. She endeavored to get this boat, it was believed, because it was thought to be one of the safe steamers between New York and Liverpool. While her family has not received any word yet, they think the programme will remain the same and Miss Connor will go on. This Red Cross unit is to befinanced by a brother-in-law of Miss Connor now in England. Miss Connor, while she has spent a great deal of time traveling in Europe, has made her home in this city.

GRILL SINGERS SCURRY

SOME HAVE JOBS TO GO TO JUNE 1. BUT MANY HAVE NOT.

Hotel Managers of Opinion That Cabaret Is Antiquated and Expect No. Drop in Business.

"Well, what next?"

This is the question the cabaret sing-ers in Portland grills are asking each other cheerfully, albeit a little wist-

On the first day of June cabarets will be abolished in Portland. As a result at least 15 girls will be thrown out of temporary employment. Some of them have other engagements in view, most of them have not. There are six girls at the Rainbow Grill. Under the direction of Miss Eva Ancion they have been appearing in a regular nightly performance. Miss Ancion herself has been at the Rainbow for more than a year, but is now planning to go to year, but is now planning to go to Seattle or Victoria, where she may reenter vaudeville. The other girls may go into vaudeville or into cabaret work in some other Pacific Coast city. William Burt, baritone, will go to Seattle to fill a vaudeville engagement. The hotel manager are all effects.

The hotel managers are all of the opinion that the cabaret is an ancient institution and not at all necessary from a commercial aspect. All have declared that they believe Portland ahead in securing various properties, people will enjoy fully as much, if not more, the orchestra music, without the cabaret.

amendment election, the city is going ahead in securing various properties, either in or adjacent to the park system to perfect plans formulated by the cabaret.

more, the orchestra music, without the cabaret.

Al Lundborg, of the Benson, said, however: "If dancing in grills were tolerated people would enjoy it much more than the cabaret. They like to dance and, from all apearances, they are tired of the cabaret. It has become antiquated, anyway. Almost all of the large Eastern cities have done away with it, and I think the hotel men of Portland are going to be benefited. If they are not, and they find that the people demand the cabaret, it can be re-established. My opinion is, however, that the cabaret has gone to stay."

Left to perturbate these secured and condemnation proceedings will be invoked to obtain others if such a step proves necessary.

In instances all that remains to be done is to remove unsightly buildings from territory which will be included in the new park environment. These measures are preliminary to the appearance here of landscape. Architect McLaren, of San Francisco, who supervised notable improvements in Golden Gate park and the Exposition grounds in that city and whose services have been secured to outline a plan of park beautification here.
