MANY SPEAKERS TO ATTEND

The annual conference of social workers at Reed College will be held Friday, Saturday and Sunday. The conference this year will be particularly valuable for persons active in social work.

The conference will devote the three days' discussions to the consideration of concrete problems and as far as possible for persons active in social work. Speakers have been secured who have had first-hand experience with conditions as they exist in Portland and the Northwest at present.

Hart, of the University of Washington, who will give the experience of Seattle in dealing with unemployment and Dr. Hector MacPherson, of Oregon Agricultural College, will present a report of investigations regarding the practicability of using the unemployed to clear logged-off land in the state, making it available for farming.

Co-ordination of social agencies will be presented by Y. R. Manning, of the Associated Charities, who has studied the question thoroughly. Indorsement of charities will be discussed by J. C. English, of the municipal employment bureau, and Arthur E. Wood.

Talks on mental defectives will be given, showing the prevalence of defectives, heredity of defective traits and the relation of the problems of crime and especially to delinquency among minors.

PAVING ISSUE VOTE DENIED

Plan to Free Span Approaches of Restriction by Owners Falls.

Because of the opposition of Commissioner Daly, the voters at the June election will not be permitted to vote upon the question of taking away from property owners on streets leading to trans-river bridges the power to kill proceedings for the improvement of these streets. Commissioner Dick, who proposed the measure in the hope that it would enable the city to force property owners on Broadway on the East Side to pave their street, withdrew it when Commissioner Daly announced his opposition.

SANITARY INSPECTORS IN CITY HEALTH BUREAU OPEN ANNUAL CRUSADE AGAINST PEST.

CITY AWES OLD CHIEF

Walla-Ta-Lum Concludes That Nobody Ever Stays Home.

CROWDS' INTEREST AMAZES

Redman, Not Needed in Court for Day, Takes on New Dignity With Gift of Glasses—Skyscrapers Termed "Skookum Houses."

Chief Walla-Ta-Lum, aged leader of the Wasco Indians, over whose head has passed many years, spent a busy and rather bewildering day in Portland yesterday. His presence was not required at the Federal Court during the day, he having come to Portland in connection with a suit relating to Indian fishing rights on the Upper Columbia, and he had ample leisure to go about the city and see its strange sights.

This is his first visit to Portland and he expressed, through an interpreter, his amazement at the tall buildings and the crowds of people he met everywhere. He came to the conclusion that the nobility in Portland stays at home, but all their time is spent in rushing about the downtown streets.

"Skookum houses" was his description of the skyscrapers. "Skookum" means strong in the Chinook language, the only one that the old chief speaks, and the term he used is that applied by Indians to a fall.

The old Indian was supplied by a friend with a pair of glasses yesterday that he might better dodge the automobiles that make it interesting for pedestrians in crossing the downtown street intersections. Up to now, he has never felt the need of glasses, but when they were procured for him he seemed to take on a new air of dignity and was pleased at his new decoration.

Yesterday morning the chief visited John A. McQuinn, who surveyed the boundary line of the Warm Springs Reservation. He looked over the map, which seemed entirely clear to him. In the afternoon he visited Senator Lane, who showed the chief every consideration, and later in the day he went shopping with Mrs. W. C. Johnson. Purchases of beads of many colors were made.

Smiles Are Won by Women.

Everywhere about the city Chief Walla-Ta-Lum attracted much attention and wherever he passed crowds soon gathered about him. He could not understand the manners of the people who showed so much interest in him and expressed this wonder to his friends. It was noticed, however, that as the day lengthened he became more used to the stares of passers-by and on a number of occasions he was seen to smile back at women who looked at him curiously.

In his native dress the chief would attract attention anywhere. Wearing moccasins, an Indian robe and a particularly barbaric head-dress, all wanted to take a close look at him. The head-dress, which is worn at tribal dances and other ceremonial, is made of furs, decorated with eagle feathers, and is adorned with long strands of the chief's own raven-black hair.

We are receiving splendid ideas, some quite simple, but new, strong and effective. Some poetry, rhymes, essays, riddles, puzzles, proverbs. Let's have more of them; let's have yours. See Adv. Seltwan Piano Co., page 12, Sec. 2, Adv.

MANAGER OF "THE OTHER GENERAL FULLER," WHO WILL APPEAR IN THE TITLE ROLE, AND ASSISTANT MANAGER.

Next Wednesday evening at the St. Lawrence Hall, the dramatic club of that parish will present "The Other General Fuller," a farce that is expected to meet with much success. The youthful dramatists of the St. Lawrence Dramatic Club have been rehearsing faithfully on this production for two months and the offering is expected to rival, and probably exceed, the popularity of "The Toastmaster," given by the same club in January. The final dress rehearsal will be held tomorrow evening.

Ralston J. Clary, who is in charge of "The Toastmaster," is manager of the coming production and is assisted by Frederick McKeown. Mr. Clary will appear in the title role of the coming comedy, while the leading feminine roles will be portrayed by Miss Lillian Butler and Miss Bernada Barry. The other members of the cast include: Helen Hendricks, Ollie McCarthy, Guy Reynolds, Albert Weiler and Abdon Neilsa.

"The Other General Fuller" will be repeated for charitable purposes later at Vancouver, at Milwaukie, and at the Francis Church of this city.

PLAY JOY TO KIDDIES

Idols of Fairyland Live in Story at Heilig.

HOUSE FILLED FOR MATINEE

"Alice in Wonderland" Is Lasting Delight to Children to Whom Afternoon Passes All Too Soon.

Flowers Given Child Stars.

The bright eyes of ever so many hundred Portland children shone even brighter yesterday at the children's matinee of "Alice in Wonderland" at the Heilig as they watched the story-book come true in the acting of the amateur players, who produced the fairy tale under the auspices of the Association of Colleague Alumnae.

The house was packed from the first seat in the orchestra to the last bench in the gallery. The matinee was one long-drawn-out delight to these childish patrons of the story-book drama.

There was no doubt as to the children's approval of the portrayal of the amazing wanderings of Alice through the land of such delightful make-believe. The big theater rang with their eager laughter and their quick applause. Gifts of flowers sent up to the young players were followed by the hearty good wishes of every youngster in the house, for all seemed to find pleasure in these gifts.

Perhaps act 2 was the most pleasing situation in the whole play to the young spectators. Tweedledum and Tweedledee, the cheshire cat and the bluebird, together with the live flowers, were objects of delight. In the first part of the act the amusing diet scene occurs. Scene 2, in this act, the mad tea party, evoked much laughter and applause as well. When Richard Nunn, the dormouse, snatched at just the right moment, there were shrieks of laughter.

But it is hard to pick out any one spot in the performance that was more delightful for the children than another. The afternoon passed all too quickly for the kiddies, and too soon the performance came to a close. It will be hard to convince these youngsters that the travels of Alice were not really, truly happenings.

HONORS THRUST ON UNDINE

Steamer to Carry Clubwomen to See Multnomah Falls.

Once more honors have been thrust upon the Undine. This time she will recently bore a distinguished company of Northwestern citizens to Lewiston and return to celebrate the opening of the Celilo Canal.

This time the Undine will be used by the excursion committee of the Oregon Federation of Women's Clubs for a trip to Multnomah Falls and return during the Biennial Federation Council meeting to be held in Portland during the first week in June. The capacity of the Undine, however, is not sufficient to care for more than one-half of the 600 or more excursionists, so the party will be divided; half will be taken to the picnic grounds by train or automobile, and those who go by water will come back overland, giving all a chance to view the Columbia River scenery as well as the Columbia Highway. One hundred Portland clubwomen will serve as hostesses, each taking lunch for six, thus providing for themselves and five guests each. Automobile excursions to Council Crest and other nearby viewpoints also are planned.

Leak-Proof Inner Tubes Goodyear Laminated Tubes 14% Heavier—20% Lower Layer on Layer

Here is something every motorist should know. Goodyear Laminated Tubes are not built of one thick piece of rubber. They are made of many thin layers—each of pure rubber—vulcanized together in one solid, extra heavy tube. In a thick piece of rubber, flaws may be hidden. And the flaws may go clear through. In these thin sheets, any tiny flaw shows up and is at once eliminated. These thin, perfect sheets, wrapped layer on layer, make a tube that can't leak. And the valve patch can't leak. It is part of the Tube—not stuck on. Please remember that. Many a tire trouble is due to a leaky Tube. Whatever tire you use, get Goodyear Tubes. They will outlast your tires. And they will convert you to Goodyear Fortified Tires. No man can use a Tube like this without wanting his tires built by the same standards. Any dealer will supply you Goodyear Tires or Tubes.

Lecturer Declares It His Mission to Restate Gospel in Terms That Can Be Appreciated.

The first annual New Thought conference under the auspices of the Oregon New Thought committee opened in Portland yesterday at the Lincoln High School. The sessions started last night with an address by Dr. A. C. Grier, pastor of the Church of Truth of Spokane, Wash.

Dr. Grier's sermon was on "The Restatement of the Teachings of Christ." "It is almost impossible to restate the teachings of Christ," he said, "for the teacher and the teachings are identical in the ages past the churches have been the guiding light for a groping humanity, but now the vision is fading, and a greater, a broader and newer vision must supplant it. The fading vision is leaving mankind without a light on the stormy sea of life. The cry for help has become as great as it was in the dark ages before the
