

BIG DAY AT HAND AT ADVENTIST MEETING

Converts Are to Be Baptized in Willamette—Temperance Subject Today.

MILTON ST. JOHN TO SPEAK

Worse War Is Predicted After Short Period of Peace—Vast Sums Spent Yearly in Carrying on Church Work.

Today will be the big day at the Seventh Day Adventist campmeeting and conference at Creston station, on the Mount Scott carline. There will be a talk by F. W. Wain in the morning, in the afternoon the whole period will be given over to a specially prepared temperance programme. The various temperance organizations will be represented. There also will be special singing, recitations, solo, a chorus of 100 voices, accompanied by a large and fine orchestra.

The Adventists as a people are especially strong prohibitionists and worked hard during the last campaign to help the amendment to carry. They are determined to work until the whole Nation is dry. To aid in this purpose they arrange an elaborate programme on the subject of temperance each year in all the 100 campmeetings that are held in the United States.

After the temperance meeting will come the great event of the campmeeting—the baptism of the new converts, which usually number from 80 to 100. They will be immersed in the Willamette River at some shallow point.

Milton St. John Is to Speak.

In the evening Milton H. St. John will speak. On Monday the well-known evangelist from Los Angeles, Luther Warren, will speak. Tuesday will be the last day of the campmeeting.

Resolutions were passed at the last business meeting thanking the public press, especially the Oregonian, for courtesy and good reports.

The officers for the ensuing year are: H. W. Cottrell, president; H. G. Thurston, vice-president and secretary; C. E. Olcott, treasurer; members of conference committee, Milton H. St. John, H. Hanson, W. E. Emerson, J. P. Beatty and William Reith. Trustees of the Western Oregon Conference Association of Seventh Day Adventists, the legal corporation of the Adventists, are: H. W. Cottrell, H. G. Thurston, T. H. Starbuck, Dr. Volmer, D. J. Chittwood.

"This has been the most successful campmeeting in the history of our organization in Oregon since 1876," said H. W. Cottrell, president of the conference. "The interest in the war and our understanding of its relation to the Bible prophesies has much to do with this interest. Our prediction many years ago of this war was not acceptable to the public, who thought we were alarmists."

Worse War Is Predicted.

"Our further understanding of the Bible prophecies, leading us to say that a much worse war will follow a short period of peace, is now less acceptable to most. For it would seem that the world could learn the terrible lesson of war from an experience of this nature that would forever safeguard it from the repetition of such a world horror. But the fact remains that we only understand the war as a necessary and that only with the literal presence of the Prince of Peace, Christ, will there ever be peace on earth final and eternal."

Vast Sum Spent for Wages.

To disseminate their beliefs they have 40 publishing houses scattered over the earth, turning out less than 100,000 copies of their literature each year. They sold more than $2,000,000 worth last year and this year the total bids fair to pass that amount considerable, for much of their literature concerns the Bible and its connection with the war.

They spend more than $3,000,000 yearly in wages for their large force of workers. One in every 12 of their membership devotes all his time to the spreading of the gospel in this or foreign lands, mostly in foreign lands, where the gospel is preached in 107 languages. Besides this most of the lay members help in many ways.

The reason so large a percentage of the membership devotes itself to the Adventist work is to be found in their system of education. They have 1400 schools, from primary to advanced colleges, in which 25,000 students are taught by the 1600 instructors the regular state course, in addition to manual training, domestic science, sewing, gardening and the Bible. Here they are taught that the highest ideal they can have is to serve humanity in the capacity of a minister or physician or nurse. Hence upon graduation many hundreds take up these professions each year.

The financial system of the Adventists has attracted much attention. But it is only the system given in the beginning, they assert, that man shall give one-tenth of his income, besides offerings to the gospel work.

20 TRUE BILLS IN

Grand Jury for May Reports and Is Discharged.

INSTITUTIONS ARE VISITED

Proposed Plan to Locate Home for Incurable Women in Vicinity of County Poor Farm Declared to Be Against Public Good.

A brief report on county institutions was turned in by the Multnomah County grand jury for May when that body was disbanded yesterday. The report contains a plan to locate a home for incurable women in the vicinity of the County Poor Farm. Beyond this, the recommendations are practically the same as those of the last grand jury.

During the month the jury examined 20 witnesses and drew 20 true bills and 12 not-true bills. In making their final report the grand jurors commend the work of Charles C. Hindman, Deputy District Attorney, who had charge of the jury.

The jurors were: Willis Fisher, H. L. Vorse, T. G. Tompkins, J. G. Fleischman, Lyman T. Baden, M. V. Harrison and H. B. Beckwith. The report, in part, follows:

"Baby Home"—We urge the installation of a two-inch standpipe in center of building, on all floors and basement, with hose racks carrying sufficient lengths of two-inch canvas hose on each floor and basement, all in substitution of the three-four-inch iron pipe and hose now in use for fire-fighting purposes.

"Kelly Butte"—We recommend the reopening of quarry and working of prisoners therein.

"Multnomah Farm"—Condition excellent, and we commend in highest terms methods employed and results obtained by the superintendent in charge. We condemn the proposed location for the Home for Incurable Women on the ground of its nearness to the Multnomah Farm, which fact cannot but work harm to the discipline in both institutions. Any apparent economy in such location will prove a false economy in the end. We earnestly recommend a reconsideration of this matter by those responsible for the proposed location.

"County Hospital"—The county is sadly in need of a complete new hospital, modernly equipped, and we recommend its construction. We endorse the efforts of and results obtained by present management.

"Frazier Detention Home"—We suggest no moneys be expended on building except to cut doorways in lieu of windows now leading to fire escapes; and, further, that at the earliest date possible a system of segregation of inmates be instituted and a series of cottages be built to replace the one large building for housing such inmates. We believe the gymnasium should be immediately equipped and maintained as such; in present condition it is useless. We suggest that as far as practicable the grounds be extensively used for garden purposes.

"City Jail"—No criticism.

"We emphatically endorse the policy and urge its extension of employment of the competent trained nurse for superintendence of institutions maintained for the sick, infirm, delinquent and dependent."

MARY PICKFORD AS STAR IS SAME LOVABLE GIRL

To Write Something New About "America's Sweetheart" Is Found Hardest of All Tasks—Love for Family Shown in Home Life.

TO WRITE anything new about Mary Pickford for photoplay fans is about the hardest task any biographer ever attempted, because of the fact that they already know all about her. From the kind of soup she prefers to the variety of tooth paste, there is nothing the general public doesn't know about little Mary. Many signing avians have been convinced of the fact that she is married and has a live husband in the person of Owen Moore, who often appears opposite her. There is not a picture player who is better known or better loved than Mary Pickford. She is a simple, sweet little maid, entirely unaffected, always charming and fascinating.

She has a comfy little home in California, where she lives with her mother, her brother Jack, a picture actor, and her sister Lottie, who already has begun to climb the ladder of fame as a star.

Mary loves her family devotedly; the devotion between the mother and daughter is particularly delightful and absolutely unfeigned and unfeigned.

Mary Pickford is unspoiled, natural and sweet disposition. She has not always been the high salaried star she is today, and sympathizes keenly with the ambitious girl who is attempting to make a name for herself over the same road which she herself traveled.

She began as a "legitimate" actress when young at a salary of $25 a week. It was not for long before she was "discovered" and was earning $500 a week. Now she is one of the highest-salaried actresses in motion pictures, her contract calling for $2000 and a percentage of the profits.

Little Mary is genuinely, wholesomely proud of her position in the hearts of the public. Only a short while ago she received from Australia a silver loving cup and an album containing the autographs of 12,861 persons, admirers in a far-off land who could in no other way express to her their love and adoration. Although Americans have not demonstrated their appreciation of her pictures are shown and express their keen admiration of her and her work.

All this has not spoiled her. Today she is just as genuinely delighted with any unusual letter or gift as she was a few years ago, when she first became known as a picture player; then with the Biograph Players. She was then 16 years old, a little, chubby slip of a girl. So popular has she become within the last few years that reprints of these old subjects have been made, and in many cases they are eagerly sought after.

If there is an illusion possessed by anyone that Mary Pickford can hold her position by virtue of her beautiful face, it is time to dispel it. It is not true. There are thousands of girls who have been trying to acquire fame as long as Mary Pickford has, who are still extras.

She holds her place by sheer force of personality and by histrionic ability. Every picture player has felt the magnetism of this charming little woman who took to the theaters where she has been trying to acquire fame as long as Mary Pickford has, who are still extras.

HELP ON VOTE IS CALL FROM EAST

Mrs. Gibson Gardner Speaks of Need of Active Aid in Franchise Work.

EFFORTS NOT TO CEASE

Serious Campaign to Be Pressed Till Congressmen Fall in Line for Cause, She Says—Wilson Favors, She Believes.

"If the Western women would only realize the struggle the Eastern women are having for suffrage, they would, I know, devote a little more time and thought to the fight. The Congressional Union has been trying to put up," said Mrs. Gibson Gardner yesterday. Mrs. Gardner, who lives in Washington, D. C., is a member of the National executive committee of the Congressional Union.

She knows that it is a difficult thing for you women who have the franchise to make any efforts toward a constitutional amendment for National suffrage, but you have no idea how much it would help. We have interviewed every Congressman who has been in Washington in the last few years and it has done worlds of good. Many of those who have told us they would not vote for the measure have changed their minds and have come to our side before the session was over, simply because the women have so earnestly and so seriously worked for the cause.

As one of these workers, Mrs. Gardner has done her share in the movement. She is bound up heart and soul in the work, and wherever she goes there is a branch of the Congressional Union, she has made an appeal for women to vote, only I hate to see them get mixed up in something they can't understand, and don't know anything about."

Southern Senators Astounded.

Mrs. Gardner is an earnest little worker, with a great sense of humor, and a little sympathy for the man who says: "I would be perfectly willing for women to vote, only I hate to see them get mixed up in something they can't understand, and don't know anything about."

She tells how the Senators—Democrats from the South—have been appalled that women should request such a thing. They never hear of such a thing at home, they tell her, and see no reason why women in the North should request it.

"They are perfectly nice and sweet and courteous to us always," she said, "but that is all. Eastern men have a different attitude toward women than Western men. At the Civic League luncheon today I noticed that the men confer freely with the women on civic matters. In the East this is not so. When a woman speaks on any question of importance outside of her own home, the men listen most courteously and respectfully, but they never, never discuss things with her in public."

President Believed to Favor.

In regard to the differences of opinion on the suffrage question between the President and the Congressional Union, Mrs. Gardner said that she felt sure that Wilson was in sympathy with the cause, but that he was standing by his party, which does not favor an amendment.

"When the working girls from New York told him of the things which they had to endure as the result of male suffrage only," she said, "he was visibly shaken and he expressed his keenest sympathy with their plight."

"The reason why women in the East particularly want suffrage now," she exclaimed, "is because there are questions which affect them intimately. The Children's Bureau, child labor, educational subjects, dozens of questions which only mildly interest men. They think these questions of inferior importance."

Fight Not to Be Dropped.

"They have rivers and harbors bills to pass, but slight the other things which are going to affect posterity quite as much and deserve the most serious consideration. We are interested in river and harbors, too, strange as that may seem to the Southern Democrat. That is the reason the Congressional Union is making this fight, and is going to continue to make it, until every Senator and every Representative changes his mind and gives us what we want—what we need, what we must have—to have a bigger and broader form of democracy."

Mrs. Gardner is the wife of Gilson Gardner, a well-known Washington newspaper correspondent, and is herself a magazine writer of note.
