EARLY INCIDENTS IN SALEM RECOUNTED

Ex-Residents, at Second Annual Gathering at Oaks, Tell of "Old Days."

OFFICERS ARE ELECTED

Ex-Governor Geer Is Chosen President and Mrs. Mattie G. Palmer Secretary-Colonel Miller Acts as Toastmaster.

Reminiscences of the "old days" back in Salem offaracterized the addresses given at the second annual gathering of former residents of that city, which was held at the Oaks Park yesterday afternoon and evening, with probably 500 persons in attendance. In addition to the picnic dinner and of the place with a programme in the auditorium in the afternoon and fireworks at night.

At the business meeting closing the gathering, which was presided over by the president of the organization, Judge Charles E. Wolverton, officers were chosen, ex-Governor T. T. Geer being elected president. Other officers chosen were: Judge R. S. Bean, vice-president; Mrs. Mattle Gilbert Palmer, secretary; Scott Boxorth, treasurer; B. H. Bowman, Mrs. J. J. Murphy and Mrs. Lulu G. Herren, members of the board of directors.

After a few words, in which he expressed his pleasure at being present at such a gathering, Judge Wolverton turned the meeting over to Colonel Robert A. Miller, who was the toastmaster of the afternoon.

J. K. Gill Is Heard. J. K. Gill, in a brief address, told their date and where they may be of the many pleasant memories which he still had of the days which he back files of The Oregonian, the cata-of the many pleasant memories which he still had of the days which he spent in Salem.

"One of the dearest of those memories," he said, "was of the dear lady whom I met there and who has been my companion for 48 years."

Mrs. Clara H. Waldo told of her arrival in Salem, when she was but a child 4 years old. Her father, she said, was then a member of the Legislature. Her address was full of pleasant reminiscences of the life of the State Capital at that time.

"I frequently regret that I did not live in Salem longer," said ex-Governor Geer. However, while I lived there I lived longer than most."

Mr. Geer related many humorous incidents which occurred during his school days at Willamette University.

Greatest City Foreseen.

Judge P. H. D'Arcy, of Salem, laid claim to being with one exception the oldest resident now living in Salem. In closing he paid a tribute to Portland.

JUDGE GRANTS EXTENSION

SALEM. Or., July 10.—(Special.)—
Circuit Judge Gailoway today, upon the request of Harvey Wells. State Insurance Commissioner and receiver of the Oregon Merchants' Mutual and the Horticultural Fire Relief, issued an order extending the time for bringing suits against the policy holders of the companies until August 1. Mr. Wells informed the court that since levying the second assessment more money had been paid than under the first assessment. The Commissioner said that suits would be filed against those who had not paid early in August. Mr. Wells holds that the policy holders must pay up to 100 per cent of the standard rate, although lawyers representing creditors say it should be unlimited.

Editor, as a souvenir of his long work for the spread of intelligence in the Pacific Northwest.

"The references cite chiefly The Oregonian and a file of Mr. Scott's writings, which has been compiled since his death and added to his reference library. The articles in this file are topically arranged and consecutively numbered. Files of The Oregonian are in the office of that newspaper, in the Public Library at Portiand and in the Oregon State Library at Salem."

When 17-year-old Hazeitine Schmeer, of 576 Fifteenth street, learned that Mrs. Mary Jones, wife of C. L. Jones, a livestock dealer of 361% Third street, was missing after she had gone into the woods near Fifteenth and Spring at rects. Portland Heights, looking for blackberries, he remembered yesterday morning that a little lerrier he had lost 10 days before had fallen into an uncovered but hidden well in this district, and led the officers to the woods.

In closing he paid a tribute to Portland.

"You are going to have the greatest city on the earth," he said, addressing the Portland people. "You are fortunate," he continued, "in being so situated so that you can handle the commerce of the world."

Among others who spoke were John Minto, of Salem, Mrs. W. D. Kantner, Mrs. A. N. Moores, of Salem, C. B. Moores, Judge H. J. Bigger, Gus Wheeler, Dr. W. D. Kantner, Mrs. A. N. Moores, of Salem, C. B. Moores, Judge H. J. Bigger, Gus Wheeler, Dr. W. D. Kantner and Frank E. Hodgkin.

C. B. Moores said that he was proud of the fact that he had been a trustee of Williamette University for Sulem, South for Williamette University for Sulem, seed the sunday addresses and addresses in which he advocated loyality to Salem and to Williamette University to Salem and to Williamette University for the part of the former residents of that city. He urged that all join in making the next annual gathering of the organization still more successful.
