

SONS OF AMERICA REVOLUTION TO MEET HERE THIS WEEK

National Convention of Direct Descendants of Heroes of Colonial Days Opens Tomorrow—Patriotic Address Tonight on Programme—Lineal Histories of Delegates Interesting.

THE National convention of the Sons of the American Revolution opens in Portland today. Many men of the most distinguished ancestry will be in the city to attend the convention, which closes July 21. Membership in the society is restricted to men who are direct lineal descendants of those who placed their lives in jeopardy by active resistance to the authority of Great Britain during the eight years of the Revolutionary War, either through service in the Continental army or as civil officers in the Revolutionary government of one of the 13 colonies.

The convention in Portland is the 26th annual gathering. Official headquarters were organized in 1839 in San Francisco after the Centennial parade of July 4, 1876, and was first called Sons of Revolutionary Wars, from whence was organized in 1839 the California Society Sons of the American Revolution, which became part of the National society in that year. State societies exist in 43 states, the District of Columbia, Hawaii and France. The total membership of the organization is 12,000. The officers of the society are: Rogers Clark B. Thurston, of Kentucky, president-general; John H. Moore, United States Navy, secretary-general; Alvin W. Woodson, Ohio; Herman W. Fernberger, Pennsylvania; Lieutenant Colonel M. W. Wood, United States Army, adjutant-general; and Rev. William Forth Whitaker, New Jersey, chaplain-general.

150 Delegates Expected.
The convention in Portland will bring at least 150 descendants of Revolutionary patriots. There will be a large attendance of women, including wives and relatives of the Sons, and members of the Daughters of the American Revolution. Local committees of the Oregon society have arranged a fitting programme of entertainment. General Thomas M. Anderson, of Portland, was founder of the Oregon and Washington branches of the society.

At the First Presbyterian Church tonight Dr. John H. Boyd, chaplain, will deliver a patriotic address. Local members of the organization will form in line at York street and march to the services, escorted by Grand Army Veterans, Spanish-American War Veterans and members of the Loyal Legion.

Women to be Entertained.
The visiting women will be entertained by Portland women. The committee is composed of Mrs. H. C. Cabell, Mrs. William D. Wheelwright, Mrs. A. E. Rockey, Mrs. William C. Alvord and Mrs. Wallace McCamant.

Monday night there will be a garden party and reception to National officers at the home of Dr. A. E. Rockey, Riverdale. Taxicabs will carry the delegates to the scene of the reception.

Annual Banquet Tuesday.
On Tuesday night the annual banquet will be spread at the Portland Hotel. The dinner will be given jointly to delegates and the visiting women. Speakers will be Newell B. Woodworth, Syracuse, N. Y.; Will H. Thompson, Seattle; Chancellor L. Jenks, Chicago; and William D. Wheelwright, Portland.

Wednesday morning at 9:15 o'clock members of the organization and visitors will start on an auto trip over the Columbia River Highway to Bonneville. At that place they will be met by the steamer Undine and the return to the city will be made by river. This will mark the end of the convention.

The National Society of the Daughters of the American Revolution will be represented officially at the convention by Mrs. A. Howard Clark, of Washington, D. C., secretary-general of the Sons of the American Revolution, because of the inability of the president, Daniel Gregory, a private to attend. R. C. Ballard Thurston, president-general, Sons of the American Revolution, will preside at the various sessions.

The Arlington University, Multnomah Amateur Athletic and the Waverly Country clubs have extended all courtesies to the delegates.

Perkins, of San Francisco, secretary of the California state society; a great-grandson of Jacob Allen, a private in New Hampshire troops; Newell B. Woodworth, president of the Empire State Campaign Committee, and Miss Alice Paul, chairman of the Congressional Union for Woman Suffrage. Copies of this correspondence have been sent broadcast by the Congressional Union, for the purpose of setting its members right on the controversy and to put a different light on the alleged "heckling" of President Wilson by members of the union. Copies of the letters have been received by Mrs. L. W. Therkelsen, of Portland, a member of the Congressional Union.

Opinion Difference Explained.
The letters which display a certain amount of correspondence are lively with retorts courteous, reveal the interesting inside details of the rift. The difficulties promise to be brought to some kind of a head at the convention of the Congressional Union, which is to be held in San Francisco September 14, and the purpose of which is to mature plans for definite political action on the part of woman voters in support of a National suffrage amendment. The Congressional Union is working, especially for the passage of the Susan B. Anthony amendment.

Lines Sent to Scions.
Louis Annin Ames, of New York, president of the Empire State Society, will attend. He is a great-grandson of William Seymour, a private in the Connecticut militia, and of William Patrick, a private in the Thirtieth Albany County Regiment, New York, and great-grandson of Major Daniel Dickinson, of the same regiment, and of Robert Campbell and George Palmer, privates in the New York militia.

Histories Are Interesting.
The lineal history of some of the delegates is interesting. R. C. Ballard Thurston, president-general of the National Society of Sons of the American Revolution, is a great-grandson of Charles Thurston, a Captain in the Continental Army. He is a great-grandson of Enoch Clarke, a private in the militia, and also a great-grandson of Major Edward Carnes, of the Massachusetts militia, and of Enoch Hall, a private in the same organization.

Another prominent member of the society who expects to be in attendance is Col. George V. Lauman, of Chicago, who acted as chairman of the 1913 Congress of the Sons of the American Revolution in Chicago. He is a great-grandson of Christopher Lauman, a Lieutenant in the Third Battalion of Pennsylvania.

Dr. Clarkson N. Guver, of Denver, a past vice-president-general and one of the most active members in the society, is among those who have announced their intention to be present at the Portland convention. He is a great-grandson of William Seymour, a private in the Connecticut militia, and of William Patrick, a private in the Thirtieth Albany County Regiment, New York, and great-grandson of Major Daniel Dickinson, of the same regiment, and of Robert Campbell and George Palmer, privates in the New York militia.

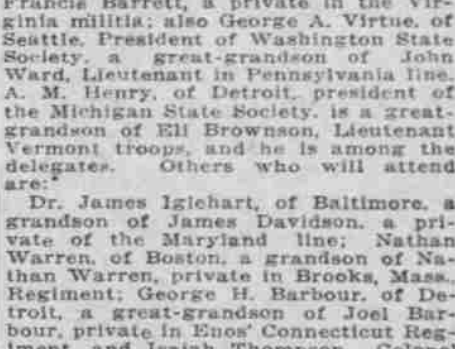

Dellegates' Names Received.
Wallace McCamant, secretary of the Oregon Society, has received a list of delegates who will attend and it is expected this number will be augmented later. Various states will be represented as follows, although additions will be made today to the list, as all registrations have not been received:

one of his trips away from the capital and the episode brought down upon the Congressional Union the charge of "heckling" the President.

Union Denies Charge.
The union disavows any intention of that and Miss Paul makes clear the movements of the union in that affair, however, not before Mrs. Catt sent an ultimatum to the President.

Effect on Party Seen.
This statement suggests a situation which does not exist. There is no anti-Democratic campaign in progress at this time. Last August the Congressional Union did appeal to the women in the suffrage states to hold the Democratic party responsible for the hostile to the Federal amendment. We believe that this election work achieved its end. It undoubtedly made the opinion of some New York women hostile to the Federal amendment. We believe that this election work achieved its end. It undoubtedly made the opinion of some New York women hostile to the Federal amendment.

Compact Break Charged.
The last interviews, together with an ultimatum by Miss Paul, had violated a promise made in a previous letter, drew forth a reply from Miss Paul in which, in part, she said:

"I have been asked by motion of the Congressional Union for Woman Suffrage to attend the convention in September. I have been asked by motion of the Congressional Union for Woman Suffrage to attend the convention in September. I have been asked by motion of the Congressional Union for Woman Suffrage to attend the convention in September."

"Heckling" Episode Related.
This was evidently written without having my letter before you. The only letter I have written to you stated that while we were planning to hold our convention and start our organization in every state, we would not hold such convention or begin such organization work in any of the suffrage states until the close of the campaigns. The deputation to Senator O'Grorman of which you speak as having been explicitly excluded from my letter was not even mentioned in my letter.

Prominent Women Ask Hearing.
The incident so described was as follows: The president of the Pennsylvania women, including nearly all the Philadelphia leaders in the Pennsylvania referendum campaign, the secretary, executive secretary and treasurer of the Philadelphia Equal Franchise Society; the president of the Home School League, and the president of the Jewish Council of Women, for example, sent two of their members to Washington to ask the President to grant an audience to suffragists while he was in Philadelphia welcoming 4000 newly-naturalized citizens. The women who went to Washington to arrange the interview waited in Washington three days for an answer from the President. He finally sent a message refusing the interview in Philadelphia and the deputation, therefore, did not wait upon him.

Letter Not Received.
"Since some of the members of the deputation in Philadelphia at the time of the interview were in Washington after he declined to meet them, it is impossible to understand how you can speak of an attempted attack, and in the support of the paper in question by sending the editor an accurate account of the interview. Certainly there should be great hope of winning him back if his defection is due to misinformation."

Brevity Marks Reply.
Miss Paul concludes: "I need hardly tell you that we are deeply interested in the success of the New York campaign and wish it success as ardently even as you do. As far as I can judge from your letter there is no difference between us as to the real course of action which the Congressional Union should pursue in the campaign states."

Pres to Withdraw Made.
In view of this I ask you to withdraw your efforts at organization in New York until the campaign is over, pleading Mrs. Catt, after telling other reasons, which in her mind, should preclude the union's programme's further execution. She concluded her letter as follows:

"At this time you may connect with disgruntled suffragists here and there, but you are not likely to command the adherence of the really efficient organization of the Empire State Campaign Committee to obtain an equal suffrage amendment to the New York State constitution, and the Congressional Union for Woman Suffrage is laid bare in correspondence between Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt, of the Empire State Campaign Committee, and Miss Alice Paul, chairman of the Congressional Union for Woman Suffrage. Copies of this correspondence have been sent broadcast by the Congressional Union, for the purpose of setting its members right on the controversy and to put a different light on the alleged "heckling" of President Wilson by members of the union. Copies of the letters have been received by Mrs. L. W. Therkelsen, of Portland, a member of the Congressional Union."

Names of Leaders Submitted.
The Congressional Union in making public the letters also makes public a list of women who are identified and in sympathy with the Congressional Union work to discount Mrs. Catt's inference that Union women are no consequence in the suffrage movement. This list includes: Mrs. Robert Adamson, of New York; wife of a New York Fire Commissioner; Mrs. Howard Upton.
